About the Photographer

From the everyday to the extraordinary. In my life away from the camera I am a lineman for a major power company. Hours spent 65 feet above eye level has privileged me to see some unique beauty - a storm traveling up a deserted highway-a garden growing against the sprawl of a strip mall several streets over. I've seen power being restored to night baseball games and candle lights exchanged for lamps up and down the street.

I taught myself to use my camera to take pictures of my custom tile and stone installations, but it was these images that lead me to photography. These scenes that drew me to make sure I saw events in my own life with the same sense of privilege. What began as carefully edited shots of my children's first sporting events has grown to a passion for documenting these moments in the lives of my clients. I look forward to capturing your unique view.
