

TOWN TOPICS BY THE STAFF

Most of us have heard the story about the boy who cried "wolf" when there was no wolf, then when the wolf came, none paid any attention to him.

It seems we are in a similar plight at present. One recent night four naval officers drifted over the southern part of the state in a balloon and a man seeing them and realizing the importance of investigating such things in times like these, reported the matter to the police. The policeman to whom he reported it had lived through the Orson Welles' Mars' Invasion panic and decided there was nothing to it. Only a report that the balloon was heading toward Croton Dam, which controls 14,839,000,000 gallons, of New York City's water supply prompted an investigation later.

While we should guard against unfounded cries of "wolf" these days, at the same time, we cannot be too skeptical, for there is the danger of becoming too careless and too confident that "it can't happen here."

The other Wednesday night, there were thousands of irate flight fans in the United States, because they had looked forward to listening to the Armstrong-Jenkins fight, and then found that radio executives decided they would listen to the Democratic convention, or they wouldn't listen at all.

There might have been some excuse for this, if the proceedings of the convention at that time were in the least interesting, and the balloting for presidential, or vice-presidential candidates had been going on, but at that time Senator Wagner of New York was simply talking, handing out the "bla-bla," that seems to be a necessary part of political conventions. Wagner was saying nothing particularly interesting or instructive, and it made irksome listening, especially when he knew there was something worth while to listen to.

For some time, radio appears to have been under the control of some dictatorial power that insists broadcast what is dictated, rather than what the people want to hear, and it has appeared also that some of the information coming over the radio has been grossly "shaded."

The novelty of radio has worn off by now, and the broadcasting companies owe a big obligation to the millions of persons who have bought sets, and the thousands of dealers, as well as the manufacturers who make and sell them. The people who have invested to what they want to not what the radio dictators try to push down their throats.

With the radio clogged with war news and convention broadcasts, the people were looking for radio relief, and the fight broadcast would have afforded it. Failure to recognize these facts has put radio back a considerable distance.

It is probably the fact that the scene is changing rapidly, that keeps people in this country interested in public affairs, and national problems, and what may be the topic of country wide conversation today, will never be thought of tomorrow.

For instance, recently we came upon a statement of platform of Geo. I. Record, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate in 1918. Record declared himself for government ownership of railroads and coal mines; national prohibition; woman suffrage; increased war taxes on great wealth; and for the forcing of idle land into use to provide employment for returning soldiers and discharged munition workers after the war.

Today, we have none of these problems, but are concerning ourselves about an entirely different group, while many other nations are still concerning themselves with problems that are thousands of years old.

One good thing that can be said about present day developments in Europe is that it is a big aid to us in increasing our knowledge of geography and history.

First Finland, Poland, France and other countries were much in the news as they were being "geographical" and we went to the geographicals to become more familiar with the countries that were so much in the news. Then fighting started in Africa and we found ourselves studying African geography and history to better understand the news.

Now the Duke of Windsor is appointed governor of the Bahamas and we read much about the "3,000 islands, cays and rocks" that make up the Bahamas and again we turn to the geographicals to learn more about the Bahamas.

Before all this started, most of us had a hazy idea about the location of the Bahamas, Cuba, Haiti, the island of Martinique and the island of Ball, but now we have a vivid mental picture of their location, their area and their products, and we must give all the credit for our increased knowledge, to the rapidity of present day developments.

Tuesday night the council gave considerable thought and talk to the cleaning up of the bathing beach, a subject that comes up every year.

We wonder, why, instead of having the beach dirty for the most part of the summer every year, and then having to pay considerable money because it has gotten into such a bad condition, one man is not employed there from the beginning until the end of the bathing season, to keep the beach in condition. A small amount of work each day would accomplish this and it might also be possible to have the same man act as a life guard.

RICHARD RYAN FILES PROTEST ON BATHING BEACH

Demands Action At Council Meeting Tuesday Night

When the council met in public session Tuesday evening, Richard Ryan, of upper David street, registered a protest against the condition of the local bathing beach.

Mr. Ryan declared that the beach is covered with cans, glass and stones, making it dangerous for bathers to use, and he added that it would not cost a great deal of money to put it in safe condition.

Council President Zdanewicz, in reply, declared that plans had been made by the council to clean up the beach, some time ago, but they had had gone wrong.

In reply Ryan declared, "As a taxpayer, I demand that you do something about it. It's about time the beach was cleaned up. It is in a deplorable condition."

Councilman Neirkorn taking the floor agreed with Mr. Ryan and declared, "I think he is justified. I think if I had children roaming that beach, I would be anxious to have it done too."

Councilman Walczak then entered the discussion by asking who was going to do the work of cleaning up the beach. "It's all right to complain," he said, "but did you ever consider where the money is coming from? We can't put the WPA down there and let the Street Department go down there." Then Walczak explained that the new state budget lay made it difficult to do some things nowadays that could be done in former years and the matter of allocating finances to such work was rather difficult. He intimated that the people who used the beach were largely responsible for its condition, since they threw the cans and bottles complained against, on the beach. To this, Mr. Ryan declared that the people could do nothing with cans and bottles, because there was no place on the beach to put them.

Continuing in his explanation of the difficulties imposed on the councilmen as the result of the new budget law, Walczak declared, "I don't think Mr. Ryan realized that if we, as members of council committees, go over our appropriation, we are subject to a fine and he declared that when the budget was prepared, it had been pared down to the limit, so that there was no financial provision for matters such as this that came before before the council announced.

When Councilman Walczak declared it would take ten men two weeks to clean up the beach, his statement drew a denial from Ryan, who declared it would not take more than three days to do the work.

The session passed on to other business after Councilman Walczak suggested the necessary money might be raised by having a small sum appropriated for each council account, and a motion by Councilman Neirkorn that the matter be referred to the council as a whole, was passed.

Msgr. E. C. Griffin Is Speaker At Installation of New Bishop

Msgr. E. C. Griffin was one of the principal speakers at the ceremonies held in Trenton, when Bishop William Aloysius Griffin was installed as Bishop of the Trenton Diocese.

The celebration today presents us with an unusual opportunity of letting the distinguished prelates and priests of the Province of New Jersey and many other Dioceses of the country, become acquainted with the deep appreciation the priests of the Diocese of Trenton have for the illustrious Bishops who have governed them since its establishment in 1861. The opportunity is unusual, since three of the six Ordinaries are honoring us with their presence.

"The first Bishop and founder of the Diocese of Trenton, which was formed by separating the fourteen lower counties of the State from the Diocese of Newark, was the Right Reverend Michael J. O'Farrell. He emphasized his program in the choice of his motto, 'Suffer the little children to come unto me', as he devoted himself principally to the welfare of the little ones of his flock. He was never happier than when surrounded by a group of children, and it wasn't long until every child of the Diocese came to recognize and know Bishop O'Farrell. He spent much of his time in visiting the schools, and never failed to leave after him a souvenir of his visit, an artistic holy picture, which he presented to each boy and girl, and with suchunction that Bishop McPaul used to say, 'The child felt that he was being presented with a house and lot.'

"He had the custom of spending a portion of every week in visiting the rectory of one of his priests where he became acquainted with not only the pastor and his assistants, but also with the altar boys, and was a familiar figure to the people of nearly every parish.

"Like Abraham Lincoln, who said that he plucked a thistle and planted a rose, wherever he thought that a rose would grow, Bishop O'Farrell drove on the devil by consecrating the ground, and laying a cornerstone wherever he foresaw that a parish would grow, and he soon discovered the rather vast and wide territory of South Jersey with unpretentious churches, bearing aloft the symbol of our Faith.

"He was a learned man, an author and a great lover of books. He bought up whole libraries, and had them shipped to Trenton. Nearly every priest had his personal library increased through a generous hand-out of books from the Bishop's House. The great Father Tom Burke found the material for his celebrated refutation of the false charges made by the historian, Froude, against the Catholic Church, in this library, and it was no secret that Bishop O'Farrell had made the balls which the great Dominican fired so effectively in his controversy.

Council Would Substitute Melody For 'Bessie's' Blasts

Fire Whistle Draws Complaints From Residents Near City Hall

The complaints over the loud harsh tone of the fire whistle atop the City Hall, which have been made by residents of that section had the consideration of the Council at its meeting on Tuesday evening.

Council President Zdanewicz, who laid the matter before the Council declared that he had received a number of protests from nearby residents complaining against the whistle and that it was particularly irritating to several sick people who live close to the hall.

Councilman Neirkorn, when the matter was opened for discussion, asked: "Is Bessie beginning to become a public nuisance?" then added that he thought something should be done to see if the tones of the whistle can be modulated. "Let's see if we can't change a few notes and make it more melodious," he said.

TUSTIN SUGGESTS MAJOR CHANGES IN SCHOOL SYSTEM

Test System Will Be Abolished; Manual Training Extension

Two major changes in the school system were recommended by Superintendent of Schools Tustin and approved by the Board of Education, when the July meeting was held Wednesday evening.

In order to improve the efficiency of the educational process, Mr. Tustin recommended that the present custom of having examinations at the end of each two month period be abandoned. In place of this system, he announced the plan he has devised calls for but two examinations during the school year, one approximately at the middle of the academic year and the final examination at the termination of the academic year. The new system however, will embrace a system of daily and weekly check up sessions to take place of the present examinations.

In explaining the reasons for his changing of the present system, Mr. Tustin reported that according to the past method, approximately fifteen school days of each year were used for examinations, which time represents almost 13 percent of the school year, and he questioned whether the results obtained warranted the time consumed in the examinations, and taken from progressive school work.

Mr. Tustin also declared that at the present time, examinations often occur at a time when conditions for study are adverse, and in consequence the best results are not obtainable, and in addition the occurrence of a formal examination at such frequent intervals places too great an emphasis on the idea of examinations.

It was pointed out by the Superintendent that while examinations do have some educational value, this value is recognized by the provisions for examinations as recommended.

The second major change inaugurated by Superintendent Tustin is the enlargement of the annual training department of the schools to embrace metal work.

In placing this recommendation before the Board, Mr. Tustin declared that world events have made it imperative that the United States prepare its defense to the utmost and as a result, mechanics, tool makers and kindred workers are in great demand and the inclusion of a machine such as one which has been recommended by the Supervisor of Industrial Education, in the manual training department, would provide the first step toward opening this field of endeavor for the mechanically inclined youth attending the schools.

The machine which Mr. Tustin recommended and of which the Board of Education authorized the purchase is known as a Horizontal Motor Driven Precision Bench Lathe and will cost with accessories, approximately $306. Mr. Thomas, the manual training teacher, is qualified to give metal work instruction, Mr. Tustin reported.

Taxes For Third Quarter are Now Due

City Collector Urges Early Payment

Announcing that taxes for the third quarter of the year 1940, he came due yesterday, City Collector Mary Paczkowska has urged that local residents give prompt attention to the matter.

Collector Paczkowska pointed out that because of recent changes in regulations regarding the payment of state and county taxes, it is particularly urgent in view of the fact that county taxes must be paid quarterly, regardless of whether or not they are received from the city at that time or not, that tax obligations be taken care of promptly.

For this reason, she declared, it is important that local residents abandon the policy adopted by many of them of paying taxes for the last two quarters in December, and pay them instead on the date upon which they become due.

Failure To Start Sewer Program Starts Councilmen Wrangling

Fourth Ward Councilman William Neirkorn, who some time ago was instrumental in having a WPA project for the installation of sewers on various streets in the western and southern sections of the city prepared, raised considerable of a stir in the Council session Tuesday night when he declared the matter was being held up unnecessarily, and intimidated several times this was being done for political reasons.

Neirkorn was principally concerned over the fact that the WPA allocation to the city appeared to be in danger of being exhausted before any work on the sewer installation was performed. He declared that when the budget had been prepared Council members had agreed to the earmarking of $5,000 for the sewer project, but it was evident that no intention was being made to hold this sum in reserve for the sewer work. "This money has been appropriated," Neirkorn said, "but I never found it was to the Board of Public Works. What I want to know is why $5,000 was not turned over to the Board of Public Works for that purpose."

"You, as a member of this body," replied Council President Zdanewicz, "know that the money was appropriated for WPA, and there was no $5,000 earmarked for sewer work for the Board of Works."

Zdanewicz stated that there is $4,400 left in the WPA appropriation fund and care must be exercised to keep men on WPA working, and it would be inadvisable to lay off all WPA men to wait until such time as the sewer project was approved, and they could be put to work on that.

Then Neirkorn intimated that the sewer project was being held up for political reasons and added, "I can think a lot about these things, but I can't prove them."

Neirkorn offered a verbal resolution that $5,000 be transferred to the WPA account as set up, and earmarked for sewer extension. Council President Zdanewicz declared that the resolution in that form was not legal, although he was heartily in favor of the sewer extension being carried through.

Neirkorn took exception to Zdanewicz's statement that he was interested in seeing the sewers installed, and asked, "But what are you doing about it?" "As much as you

SIX TEACHERS ARE NAMED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Mrs. Julia McCaffrey Is Now Principal of School No. 2

When the public schools re-open for a new term, there will be a number of changes in the teaching staff as the result of appointments made Wednesday night by the Board of Education.

During the meeting, Mr. Tustin, Superintendent of Schools, announced that he has appointed Mrs. Helen Gleason as his secretary. Mr. Tustin recommended that the Board increase the salary of this position from $1000 per annum to $1050 per month, because he said, the work continues twelve months a year and is sufficiently exacting and important to warrant that salary.

To fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Miss Helen Brown as principal of School No. 2, the Board appointed Mrs. Julia McCaffrey upon the recommendation of Superintendent Tustin. Mrs. McCaffrey is listed as a graduate of St. Mary's High School, Newark State Normal and the holder of a B.S. degree from Rutgers University, a supervisors certificate in penmanship and has taken special courses in music, child training as well as a course in Trainer's Business College. The salary of Mrs. McCaffrey was set at $2,175 per annum.

As the result of the advancing of Mr. Tustin to the school superintendent, the post of science instructor in the high school was vacated and to this vacancy, the Board appointed Joseph Vail, at an annual salary of $2250. Miss Frances Kress was assigned as assistant to Mr. Vail in the teaching of chemistry, at an annual salary of $1400.

The retirement of Miss Brown and Miss Mary E. Buchanan, Mr. Tustin said, made it necessary to hire at least one more teacher in School No. 2. To avoid large classes, the Board decided the appointment of two teachers was advisable, and to these posts appointed Mrs. Marion Leedom and Mrs. Miriam W. Moore. Each was to receive a starting salary of $1400.

Miss Kathryn L. Strauss, school nurse, submitted her resignation to become effective on August 1st, and to this position, Miss Catherine Sullivan of this city was appointed. The matter of salary will be decided after a conference with the State Department of Health, which bears a small portion of the cost of nurse hire.

At the start of the meeting, there were a large number of applications for teacher positions on hand, and the applications of those not given were filed for future reference. Among those making application were: Miss Edith L. Thor, West New York; Miss Cell Taub, Plainfield; Miss Frances Chazan, Paterson; Miss Margaret Black, Woodbridge; Mr. Ray Post, Jersey City; Abraham D. Parnes, Perth Amboy; Roy H. Heyen, Lynbrook, N. Y.; Nathaniel H. Moss, Perth Amboy; William Tomkovich, South River; L. J. Yabluck, Newark. From South Amboy came applications as follows: James Maloney, Mrs. Helen Lyons, Miss Margaret G. McKeon, Miss Frances A. Kress, Mrs. Miriam Welsh Moore, Mrs. Mary Primka Wilson, and Marie T. Connors, and Joseph Vail.

PLenty OF TALK ABOUT BUILDING IN THIS CITY

Materialization of Many Plans
Held Up Awaiting F. H. A.
Loans

If all the rumors about buildings that are to be constructed hereabouts turn out to be realities, and if even a majority of the applications for F. H. A. loans that are under consideration are granted, the building boom in this vicinity will far surpass anything that has been even seriously considered heretofore.

For instance there is a story going this week to the effect that there is to be built on outer Bordentown avenue a large mansion. Twenty-six rooms are mentioned as the size and prospective owner from out of town although now in business in a nearby community.

Not far away on the same desirable street another rumor has it that a well known professional man is all ready to sit down with an architect to discuss the layout of a residence.

On George street in the immediate future a large house is to be begun by a local contractor for a well known local man. Washington avenue, beyond the city limits is soon to see another residence started and on a site in the Maxfield section another local man is about to order construction begun on another house for rental investment purposes. Just recently this particular local man had completed a small house which found ready favor with the renting public heretofore.

Ground was broken this week by Contractor Morgan Lamberton on Bordentown avenue for a residence structure. L. Meiner, of Bordentown avenue, is the prospective owner.

Nearing completion for Thomas Nebus, of John street, is a new semi-bungalow on Bertram avenue. The new home is placed facing the western sun on a 50x100 foot plot, with garage in the rear. A story and half high, the construction work was done by Miller & Kosta, Keyport contractors, with the building materials coming from Miller, Bergen & Welsh, local lumber and masons' materials supply firm. The home will be heated by coal fire steam heating system and is expected to be about ready for occupancy on August 1st.

Another local contractor, Edward Munn, of Main street, has the contract for building a new home on Campbell street, for A. L. Ruff, of State street, Perth Amboy. The structure is a colonial style brick veneer of story and a half height. The lot is 50x100 in size and nicely accommodates the 30x34 foot structure. Jay Busky has the plumbing contract, which includes the installation of an oil fired steam boiler as the heating source. Nels Deats did the Masonry with the building materials coming from a Plainfield source. F. Fessler, of Hazlet did the architect work. The home will have an asphalt shingle roof and insulation on the roof will be Johns-Manville rock wool.

The foundation is down for a home on Thomas street, for Howard Wray, of Fourth street. Colonial in style, the house will be 26-32 feet in size and 1 1/2 story high. The contractors are Roads and Soden, of Jamesburg, with building materials coming from Miller, Bergen & Welsh. Insulation will be used on both sidewalls and roof and there will be six rooms and bath. Oil fired hot water heating is to be installed. Roads and Soden have also under instruction a large bungalow on Robert street, Campbell tract, for Morris Reiner, of Main street. The bungalow is to be 28x46 feet in size, all on one floor on a 50x100 foot plot and will face the north. There are to be six rooms and bath, with a coal fired hot water heating system. Architect Hickey, of Milltown, prepared the plans and it is expected the home will be ready for occupancy about September 1st.

Ferris street is filling up rapidly with new homes and on the southerly side of that wide street a two family duplex brick house, 37x30 ft., is being erected for Charles Minard, of Ward avenue. The ground plot is 50x100 in size and there are to be five rooms and bath on each side, with the owner planning to occupy one side himself and hold the other for a desirable tenant. John Kalamann, Perth Amboy contractor, is doing the construction work handling all details except the plumbing. Job has been sub-contracted to Wm. Duraki, of Augusta street. Heating system is to be a single self feed coal fired steam boiler. Kalamann furnished the architect service also and building materials came from Miller, Bergen & Welsh. There are two floors, each side having up and down stairs with recreation room in the cellar, and an attic too.

The Bergen Hill builders have all but completed a colonial style story and a half home on Fifth street for John Galdamowicz, of South River, a DuPont employee at Parlin. The structure is frame 24x26 in size, faces south and has five rooms and bath. The plumbing and heating contracts were taken by A. G. Nebus, Broadway plumber and heating man. Architect Fessler, of Hazlet, furnished the plans and insulation is used in both the walls and ceiling. Oil fired steam will keep the place warm. Nels Deats did the masonry work and Adam Sopka the electrical installations. Building materials came from Miller, Bergen & Welsh and the new home is expected to be ready for occupancy about the first of August.

The Bergen Hill Builders have all but completed a colonial style home on Roosevelt avenue. President Far, of Mr. and Mrs. John Bogdanowicz, of David street. Of frame construction 26x32 feet in size, the new home faces the north and will have five rooms and bath. Steam is to be used for heating with A. G. Nebus making the plumbing and plumbing and heating installations. Building materials came from Miller, Bergen & Welsh.

Another local concern that is more than usual recently in the So. Amboy Construction Company. Their most recent large contract covers the construction of two large machine stations for the Sun Oil Company, South Amboy. Construction of the stations is now well advanced. The stations are to be built on the corner of Pine avenue and

The Home Builder

"Have you noticed how much building is already under way here this year? Seems to me that almost everyone is doing something in the way of property improvement... painting, repairing, remodeling, modernizing and building new homes.

"Well folks, this is a mighty good thing for the entire community. It means that men are working, earning money and spending it. Every business is benefited directly or indirectly.

"Those who are doing the improving are making mighty good investments and they are also sharing in the added measure of prosperity that is being created.

"Get on the bandwagon... join your friends and neighbors in this constructive building program.

The Home Builder

The words "Build Now" hold greater significance than ever before because a great many more families will be able to do so, due to the more favorable terms at which loans may be secured. This applies both to loans made under the new Federal Housing Act and those made under plans worked out by individual Banks, Savings & Loan Associations, Mortgage Companies and other lending agencies.

*** FHA *** Insured Mortgage System MONTHLY PAYMENTS Over An Extended Period at Reasonable Interest

Such loans can be repaid in monthly installments, carrying reasonable interest over an extended period of years. And, these monthly installments include interest on principal, taxes, insurance and interest.

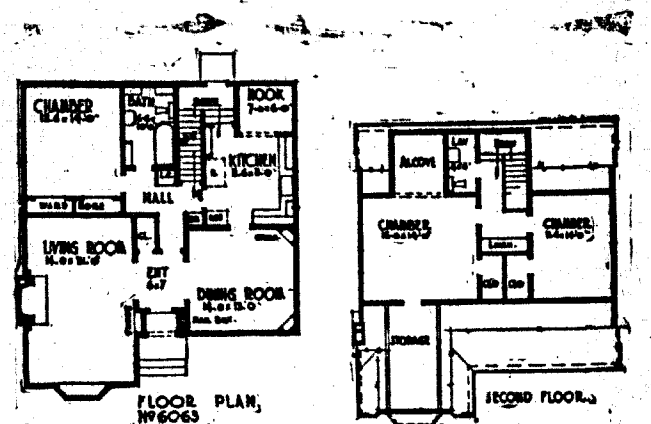

Consult a representative of one of your local lending agencies now! Decide what size and priced home you can afford, what amount of monthly payments you can meet, and secure a loan accordingly. The next step will be that of consulting your architect, lumber dealer and contractor... then you are ready to start the dirt flying.

Pay Cash if You Have It or Part Cash, if You Can

Naturally, it is to your advantage to make as large a payment as possible, thereby reducing the amount of the original loan. This enables you to arrange for smaller monthly payments or to reduce the term of the loan by making more substantial monthly payments if you desire. Pay as much monthly as you can, cut down the principal as fast as you can, thereby saving interest charges.

FIX UP - PAINT UP Repair and Modernize

How many things need changing or replacing to make your home more comfortable and convenient? What improvements have you postponed making because you didn't have the ready cash? No need to delay longer, for you can obtain a loan of any size from $50 to $10,000 for such purposes, under terms of the new F. H. A. ... and you have 5 years to pay back the loan at a moderate rate of interest. This applies to urban, suburban or rural homes and other property.

Fine Colonial House

Nothing has been left out that might make this house more complete; the rooms are generous, the arrangement provides perfect privacy and convenience, and ample size provides every possible built-in convenience such as dressing tables, cupboards and other storage spaces.

The exterior is formal and lovely with a metal roofed bay accenting the front gable which protects the recessed entrance door and its dignified entablature. Plans provide for a rectangular full basement which may be divided into the usual fuel and laundry rooms as well as other storage space, or by simply building another flue in the broom closet and excavating under the entire living room a party room may be built in the basement. Shakes or siding would be equally effective as an exterior material painted white with green shutters and dark roof.

ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

It's a big country, the United States. No map is big enough to show all the tens of thousands of cities and towns and tiny villages that exist in every part of it. But even a casual glance at any map of the whole nation or of any single state or section in it will reveal one surprising thing.

That's the number of towns and cities in America that have been named after some industry. Names like Steelton and Valley Forge and Tannerville dot American maps by the hundreds.

These names offer quiet but convincing testimony to the importance of industry to the general scheme of things in this country. The communities in question were named after industries, and another large group of communities have been named after men who founded these towns.

And there is outstanding evidence that industry has had a lot to do with building up the community—and through that, the national—life of this nation!

"CHIEFLY U. S."

Vacations are a typically American activity. No other nation makes such a point of them. In fact, if you look in the dictionary at the word you'll find a little notation after one definition which reads simply: "Chiefly U. S."

Americans have built up a system where they can produce a lot of goods and services and still find time for the joys and pleasures of life. We now spend close to ten billion dollars a year just for amusement and recreation.

And we have the time as well as the opportunity to have holiday fun. In industry, for example, one out of every three working hours has become leisure time since 1890.

It makes an appealing picture in this, the "good old summer time"—millions of men, women and children at the beach, in the mountains, driving around in their cars exploring the country. It's something not matched in any other part of the world. And it's part of the American pattern—made possible by our business habits and abilities and based upon our traditional freedoms—a pattern we'll do well to preserve!

VERY HEAVY READING

Even if you go in for reading on a heavy scale, you probably won't have the Code of Federal Regulations, now being published by the Government Printing Office, on your bookshelves. When completed it will include 23 volumes and 27,000 pages and we don't know how many words—which makes it considerably bigger than the Encyclopedia.

Yet much of the material contained in this lengthy compilation is of direct concern to you as a citizen. For it is going to contain a complete record of the things that governmental agencies—none of them directly elected by the citizens of this country—have forbidden Americans to do.

The number of these agencies, and the extent to which their actions today affect the life of the ordinary man or woman in this land of ours, is truly staggering.

The Logan-Walter Bill, now in Congress, is an attempt to guarantee the individual fair judicial protection against the sometimes arbitrary actions of these dozens of quasi-legislative boards and commissions. The actual physical record of the past rulings of these agencies—embodied in the Code of Federal Regulations—bears striking witness to the need for such protection.

St. Mary's Church News

Christ Instituted Confession Difficulties and objections: Let us consider some difficulties and objections which prejudice or ignorance oppose to the Divine origin of Confession.

CONFESSION NOT A HUMAN INNOVATION: Some contend that Confession is an innovation introduced during the Middle Ages. Those asserting this are usually very vague about the date. Yet the introduction of such an obligation, so hard on nature, would have been one of the most startling events in the history of the Church. The Pope or Council introduced it would be known. Events of less moment have been introduced wholesale into the Church. But there is no vestige of such a stupendous upheaval. Moreover, it would have been very likely that the Pope introducing such an obligation would have exempted all the clergy from it. Yet, popes, cardinals, bishops, and priests are all bound to it, just like any layman.

THE LATERAN COUNCIL AND CONFESSION: Calvin asserted that Confession was introduced by Pope Innocent III at the Fourth Lateran Council in 1215. This Council did not introduce Confession but decreed that all Catholics who have reached the age of reason must confess their sins at least once a year. Thus it determined the mode of fulfilling an existing obligation. The schismatic Greeks and other groups, separated from the Church since the ninth century, were present at the Council of Lyons in 1374 and at that of Florence in 1439, to discuss reunion with the Church. They made no objection to the Lateran decree and have always held to sacramental Confession. Were it a human innovation they would have rejected it.

EVIDENCE FROM THE FATHERS AND OTHER CHURCH WRITERS: The testimony of the Fathers and other Church writers is so positive that even Gibbon, no friend of the Church, had to state that "the scholar cannot resist the weight of historical evidence which establishes the fact that Confession was one of the principal points of the faith of the Papal Church during all the period of the first four centuries." Lack of space forbids detailed citations but we can refer to the writings of St. Cyprian, Origen, and Tertullian of the third century. Saints Augustine, Ambrose, Basil, Gregory Nazianzen, Cyril of Jerusalem, Ephraem, Athanasius of the fourth century, Saints Leo the Great, John Chrysostom, and Jerome of the fifth century, Saint Gregory the Great of the sixth century.

"I CONFESS TO GOD WHO ALONE CAN FORGIVE SIN": This may be summarized a number of objections, for instance: "Priests are not Divine, hence they cannot forgive sins"; "It is absurd that God should delegate His power of forgiving." "No man can come before God and be forgiven." "If priests can forgive sins, Christ is not our one Mediator." The plan of confession to God alone would be very convenient, but it is against God's will. Those seeking forgiveness must not arrogantly dictate how forgiveness is to be given. God has revealed how forgiveness is to be secured. St. Augustine replied to this objection fourteen hundred years ago: "Let's no one say to himself 'I do penance to God in private; I do it before God.' Is it then in vain that Christ said: 'Whoever ye shall loose upon earth shall be loosed in Heaven'? Is it in vain that the keys have been given to the Church?"

THE MINISTRY OF MEN: God in His Wisdom has been pleased to decree the ministration of the mass of grace through human agents. Both the Old and the New Testament show this clearly. He has delegated His power to men much as kings do to their ambassadors, corporations to their representatives, or individuals to their attorneys. Such delegates act, not by any power of their own, but in the name of the one delegating them. Such delegation is not absurd, but quite in accordance with human nature. Priests are not Divine; they are human agents acting with power given by God, and acting in His Name. Christ is indeed the one Mediator, at once Divine and human, who has redeemed us. Acknowledging Him as such, we obey Him and do as He prescribed for the forgiveness of sins.

"CONFESSION IS TOO EASY A MEANS: CONFESSION IS TOO HARD ON MAN." Such contradictory charges are made. "All a Catholic has to do is just tell his sins to a priest to be absolved." It is not quite so easy! Every Catholic knows that unless he has sincere supernatural sorrow for his sins and a firm resolve to avoid sins, to make restitution if necessary, and to take means for avoiding sins, the absolution by the priest is useless. Hence Confession does not incite men to sin just because a priest can absolve him, any more than a man breaks his arm just because a doctor can reset it. "Confess to a priest? Why that is an intolerable burden. Shame would deter me." Then Confession is not so easy! Hard or easy, we have no choice since Christ prescribed it. It is much easier to bear a possible momentary shame in confessing secretly to a priest bound to die rather than reveal our sins than it is to have our sins revealed, to our eternal shame, before all mankind at the Last Judgment. A momentary embarrassment is a trifling price at which to purchase freedom from the eternal pains of Hell. To the contrite soul, the confessional is the tribunal of God's mercy, which he approaches with confidence, and from which he emerges comforted with the supernatural solace of sanctifying grace.

LOOKING BACK 22 YEARS

Issue of July 27, 1918.

A committee from South Amboy Council No. 428, Knights of Columbus, on Friday evening, July 19, presented to Company B, U. S. Guards, athletic equipment and other articles for their amusement. Among the articles presented was one folding machine, a selection of records, four sets of boxing gloves, nine baseballs and bats, a basketball with baskets and a quantity of writing paper and envelopes, pens, ink and pencils.

Grand Knight Michael F. Nagle acted as the chairman of a meeting held at the local barracks of the company and the meeting opened with playing the "Star Spangled Banner" and in well chosen words, accepted by Lieutenant Iyer's hospitality and thanked him for the privileges that he extended to his committee.

George L. Record, candidate of the Republican United States Senatorial nomination, comes to Middlesex county next week, on his second tour of the state. He visits this city next Tuesday. Record's meetings in this, the second tour of the state, are even more largely attended than were the meetings of his first tour. Record comes into Middlesex county after a trip through South Jersey, where he spent the larger part of this week.

Holmes A. Cliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cliver of Second street, has received his commission as second lieutenant. Lieut. Cliver is now instructor in Company I, of the O. T. C. at Camp J. E. Jackson, Jacksonville, Fla. It took a great deal of hard study to reach this honor but Lieut. Cliver was equal to the occasion, and is to be congratulated upon his promotion. It goes to show what a young man may obtain, if he is attentive to his duties, and is possessed of good education.

Rapid progress has been made toward the establishment of a local hospital by Miss Olive Burke, in her home on Main street.

At the start, sixteen patients may be accommodated at the hospital, and should at any future date more room be necessary, the second floor will be arranged into wards.

It might be stated in connection herewith that the home of Miss Burke was formerly the Stevens mansion that stood on one of the highest points on Stevensdale park. It was the homestead of the late Commodore Stevens, who afterwards removed to Hoboken. A number of years ago, it was occupied as a boarding school for young men by the late A. H. Withington.

This property went into the hands of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and the house was purchased by Mr. Burke, who had it removed in part to Main street.

The trolley service between this city, Keyport and Perth Amboy is getting back to the same condition that it was during last winter. During the cold weather, the excuse of the company for the poor service was on account of the local situation. Now that the coal situation has been overcome and every manufacturer and producer has an abundant supply, the excuse does not remain good. There was not a car moved on Tuesday night from eight o'clock until nearly eleven. The same difficulty was experienced during the day. The cars are not run with any regularity at all, and cannot be depended on for getting from one place to another with any speed. "More" Forgiven of this city, has started training for the next boxing bout in which he will participate. He will meet Kid Potty of Perth Amboy, in the star bout of the Lotus Club of that city on August 5. It will be an eight round affair and promises to be one of the best bouts seen since the re-opening of boxing clubs. It will be remembered that these two men fought a draw in the same club some few weeks ago.

The extreme hot weather of Sunday and Monday made the beach the "Mecca" for the people of this city. About five hundred people enjoyed the cooling waters of the bay on these days. Some time last winter the Common Council was considering acquiring this property and establishing a public park. South Amboy needs just such a place.

The actual construction and repair work on school building No. 1 has commenced. The contractors have the entire interior of the old building torn up and material that will be of no use has been removed. The actual back laying of the new addition commenced on Tuesday morning and the progress made during the first day was amazing. The contractors are trying to get the building done in time for the opening of the new school year. If not the addition, at least the old building will be remodeled by that time.

The "Lightning Division," which was made up at Camp Dix and in which a number of local boys are members, is one of the units in the recent drive against the Germans. This information was given out by the Secretary of War early this week. This brings the war close to home and the local people are getting anxious as to the welfare of the "Tin-bony boys."

MSGR. GRIFFIN SPEAKER AT BREAKFAST TO BISHOP

cond Bishop of Trenton.

"The youthful Bishop, with his unusual ability for systematizing and organizing, soon had the Diocese of Trenton on a sound running basis. The statutes which he personally drew up with great care, become a model for many other dioceses in the country.

"With an interest that went beyond the limits of his diocese, he recognized that the Church in the United States was in need of uniting for the purpose of having a voice that would be recognized as expressing the sentiments of the deserving and influential minority of Catholic laymen. He began his efforts by uniting the then most prominent group, "The Ancient Order of Hibernians," which was divided into many groups and factions; and the resolutions of their conventions, backed by so many thousands, attracted the attention of the newspapers of the country. Shortly after this success was attained, he enlisted the assistance of his life-long friend, Archbishop Mesmer of Milwaukee, who was a leader in German-American Catholic Societies which held its annual conventions throughout the country, and attracted great numbers of the hierarchy, and the latter soon became to recognize it as the most valuable organization for influencing public thought from a Catholic viewpoint in the country.

"Through this, the name of Bishop McFall became nationally known. He was a forceful, magnetic speaker, interspersing his remarks with a fine sense of humor which captivated his audiences, and occupancy houses came out to hear him whenever it was announced that he was going to speak throughout the country. This organization may well be considered the forerunner of the National Catholic Welfare Council of today.

"He was very proud of, and loved his priests and diocese, and under his prudent administration, religion flourished both in church and school, and in the home. His pastoral letters were classics, and were universally read and quoted from. He never feared controversy, which he frequently stirred up through the press or in addressing a public gathering, by attacking by name those whose writings or utterances had cast reflection upon the Catholic Church or were undermining the morals and faith of American youth. He wielded considerable influence in the state, and brought about legislative benefits to religion and morals and secured recognition for the church by overcoming the prejudices which had kept our priests from officially visiting state and county institutions.

"As he had spent his entire life in the Diocese, and knew every nook and corner of it, he was well known to the people, and his fearless leadership was proudly acclaimed by them. He was loved and admired by his priests for his justice and interest in their successful pastorates. He spent much time in their company, and loved to be surrounded by a group of them, enjoying their conversation and criticisms, and with his eagle-eye, learning to know them individually. Societies flourished in every parish, and parochial schools multiplied, but were never allowed to be overburdened with debt. Economy characterized his administration of the Chancery office which was carefully systematized, and no important record was missing for the information of his successor.

"Because of his long reign, his memory is still green, and in every gathering of the diocesan priests, anecdotes in which he is the central figure make up much of the conversation. He took excellent care of the great influx of foreign groups who came into the diocese of Trenton, and every nationality was provided with priests, churches, schools and parish buildings in a manner unsurpassed by any other diocese in the country; and they were signified by an absence of litigation, or schism, due to his wise supervision. After twenty-three years of successful administration, his memory is still held in benediction; and the accumulations from his Cathedral priory were returned to the Diocese before his death, in the erection of the wing and the beautiful Chapel at the Home for the Aged at Lawrenceville, where according to his provision, a Celtic Cross rises as a monument to note his last resting place, and testify to his lasting love for God's poor.

"After an unusually long delay under the able administration of one of the Diocese's most learned and distinguished priests, Monsignor John H. Fox, Pope Benedict XIV was pleased to send a great blessing upon the Diocese of Trenton in nominating as the third Bishop of Trenton, the zealous and energetic Chancellor of the Diocese of Buffalo, Thomas Joseph Walsh, now our distinguished Metropolitan. His Excellency came to us a stranger but did not long remain such. He was installed at the close of the World War, and got ready to meet the changes in Church and state which followed the momentous days of 1918 and 1919. He began at once to give his attention to providing more and better schools for the youth of the diocese, and made possible the purchase and opening of Georgian Court College. The number of parochial schools was soon doubled, and High School Centers to provide secondary education for nearly all those who would avail themselves of it, were erected. He made the diocese of Trenton second to none in the percentage of children in free Catholic High Schools.

"By the early establishment of the Conservation of the Faith fund in the diocese, the erection of a number of new churches and missions were made possible and maintained. He wisely recognized that in saving the Faith and preserving for the future, the children of Italian parentage who constituted the most unprovided for element among the youth of his diocese, he was fulfilling one of the most important duties of his Episcopate. These children, with their cultural intelligence and artistic background were to become either a menace or a blessing to the future of the country. This was to be brought about by schools, and bringing the little ones in contact with the Sisters; and he successfully planned for the extent of performing the embarrassing task of going to the homes of wealthy Catholics, and with his tact and zeal, submitting, however, to many a rebuff, he succeeded in securing from a number of wealthy individuals, large donations, which enabled him to found the Villa Victoria as a Normal School for the Maestre Pie Filippini, and erect four eight grade schools which never would have been possible without these donated funds.

"Having experienced the invaluable services of the Mount Carmel Guild which he established so successfully in the diocese of Buffalo, Bishop Walsh organized the women of Trenton into a Mount Carmel Guild for the city of Trenton. His first great work was to join with the Sisters of schools through the establishment of one of the flourishing groups of Parent-Teacher Associations in the United States, so that in a short time, annual conventions were held, over which the Bishop presided, which brought together and made acquainted the mothers of the diocese. This work is still flourishing, and its cultural, financial and spiritual values are easily the most valuable asset of our Parochial Schools.

"Recognizing that the teaching of religion should take precedence over every other study, His Excellency was somewhat shocked to realize that it was not so. He quickly set about to remedy this defect, and thanks to his efforts, the teaching of religion is no given the highest ranking in the curriculum of Parochial Schools. To make sure of this, examining classes that were presented to him for Confirmation. As a result, the children were very carefully assumed the terrific burden of fully prepare and with the sponsors and parents crowding the church, a review of the Christian Doctrine was presented on the occasion of his Episcopal Visitation that gave him the opportunity which merited for him the title of first teacher of religion in his diocese.

"The Novena to the Holy Ghost for the increase of vocations to the Priesthood, and Sisterhood which was scrupulously observed, resulted in many young men and women bringing themselves from our high school centers for the Diocesan examination for admission to the various religious communities. The invaluable assistance which his generous offer to defray a portion of the expenses through college and seminary of deserving applicants has given us some of our most valuable young priests. His almost prodigious provision for the care of recovery provision followed, endeared him to his clergy. His personal benefactions to the sisters, to poor priests and students, and many poor families, made us realize his detachment from wealth, and his spirit of charity.

He was untiring in lending his presence to Diocesan celebrations, high school commencements, jubilees, and conventions, on which occasions he tried to know as many people as he could, and allowed the people to come in close contact with him. With such a record of achievement, it was most natural that the Holy See would recognize his value in a larger field of activity, and when the populous diocese of Newark was vacant, one of the earliest and most persistent rumors designated him as the successor to beloved Bishop O'Connor. His promotion was our loss, but Newark's gain, and while our regret was genuine at his departure, we recognized that as events have proven, he would make the diocese of Newark famous. He still preserves our affection and gratitude, and his never-failing ability to recognize and greet his former priests of the Diocese of Trenton wherever he sees us, induces us to believe that we still have a very warm spot in his heart.

Simultaneously with the news of the promotion of Bishop Walsh, came the announcement that his successor was to be the Rev. Dr. Joseph McMahon, again from Buffalo. He, too, was a stranger, but was endowed by the Creator with a very handsome appearance, and since we liked his face, and first impressions were favorable, we looked forward with satisfaction to his coming, as he had been a friend and close associate of Bishop Walsh.

Unfortunately, his health broke early in his Episcopate, and somewhat hampered what promised to be a very successful career. He singled out as his great work: the promotion of activities for the youth, and particularly the young men of high school age. He encouraged all the young priests of the Diocese to take an interest in the boys and in the young men. This enabled the youth of the Diocese to become acquainted with one another as they went from town to town with their fans and followers to participate in contests and tournaments. In the winter, there were indoor athletic meets, and then the grand final basketball tournament at which the annual marathon at the great Trenton fair grounds again brought the Sisters with the children and their parents, and the Bishop was present from the beginning to the end, presenting trophies, and by his gracious manner, endeavoring himself both to the children and their parents. As the Parent Teacher Association united the older people, so the youth movement united the boys and the future men of the Diocese, and by means of this, much good was, and will be accomplished.

He early arranged for, and presided at the Third Synod of the Diocese which resulted in a new edition of the Statutes. We raised one fund and added much needed improvements to St. Michael's Orphanage and the Home for the Aged, and introduced a number of religious communities of both men and women into the Diocese. He continued all the policies of his distinguished predecessors, and was held in high esteem by his priests for his kindly manner, his personal piety, and his priestly dignity.

His rather premature death, though not altogether unexpected, was, nevertheless, a shock and a cause of deep regret. Nearly all that the Diocese had given him, and a great more, he willed for the charities and educational institutions of the Diocese. His remains are in the Cathedral Cemetery in the center of the priests' plot, surrounded in death as he loved to be in life, by many of God's Anointed. Again the Diocese was vacant for a long time under the able administration of our beloved Vicar-General, Monsignor Spillane, whom we are so proud to have with us today. During this time there were many rash rumors, and some whisperings, of the financial embarrassment in the Diocese, Rome, as usual knew whom to send, and another complete stranger was sent to us from the Eternal City—the Most Rev. Moses Elias Kiley, Spiritual Director of the American College at Rome. A few of us were privileged to witness his consecration by a Cardinal of the Curia in the presence of several Princes of the Church, and a distinguished gathering of the hierarchy. We who were thus privileged, realize how highly esteemed Monsignor Kiley was at the Vatican. Bishop Kiley early endeared himself to his priests by his democratic manner, his willingness to receive and become acquainted with them and their needs. It was marvelous how quickly he became conversant with the affairs of every parish, due to his careful perusal of the annual reports which he found in the Chancery Office.

His principal task was to lighten some of the financial burdens which were the outcome here, as well as all over the country, of the depression. It wasn't long until he manifested his ability as an able physician, and cured most of the headaches that had been distressing a number of pastors. He was likewise a clever dentist, in as much as he painlessly extracted, and almost without our knowing it, two new and large assessments, and by setting the example himself, induced the priests to voluntarily surrender twenty percent of their salaries for two years. As a result, he accumulated a fund which enabled him to talk terms to the banks and force them to lower their rates of interest. Thus he put the Diocese again on a solid financial basis.

Believing in the old adage that "Quid facit per alium facit per se," he carefully prepared a "schema" of instructions, amply annotated, which was sent out each year for the first Sunday of Advent. Those instructions were both practical, timely, and very interesting. To people welcomed them, and as a result, the laity became much better informed and instructed in the Christian Doctrine. As most of it was the fruit of his own careful meditation, the shepherd was really preaching to the will of the Holy priests. As soon as possible, he established the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, and before he left us, saw its units doing effective work, particularly among the Catholic children attending the Public Schools which had been, as it was to all Bishops, a source of great anxiety. He accepted the division of his fine diocese, with admirable resignation to the will of the Holy See, after he had built it up and increased the personnel through the addition of many more priests, and opening of parishes, to one of the leading places among the dioceses of the country. His attention to duty kept him always at his desk. He was never known to have taken a vacation, except to make his "ad limina" visit, his slogan being "It is better to wear out than to rust out."

We were all convinced of his superior ability, and we were justly disappointed in experiencing another break just when affairs were running so smoothly in the diocese. We were not surprised that he was elevated to the important dignity of Archbishop of Milwaukee. He had our good wishes; merited our deepest respect, and every one of his priests was convinced that Bishop Kiley was in his own life, the epitome of those priestly virtues and personal holiness which he desired to see in each of us. We are happy to have this opportunity of letting his fellow bishops and the priests and the assembled clergy know how deeply we revere the fifth Bishop of Trenton and the sixth Archbishop of Milwaukee.

Bishop Kiley has put into the Diocesan Treasury, the offering we made him at his installation; refused to accept any token of appreciation at his departure, and because of his unusual generosity to the Diocesan Institutions and Charities, and as what was supposed to be a secret, leaks out from day to day of his having cancelled notes for a few thousand here, and a few thousand there, in the last weeks of his administration, which represented loans from his personal funds to different parishes; took very little with him of what the Diocese had given him during his all too short six years in our midst.

And, finally, let me say a word about our new Bishop, who is the first native Jerseyman to become the Ordinary of Trenton. He is well known to many of us, and served as an assistant during the summer at Belmar for a decade or more; and I count it as one of the greatest honors to recall that I was privileged to have a part in inaugurating him into the priesthood, as the Archbishop at his First Solemn Mass. A Griffin, as you know, stands for supremacy, being that fabulous animal with the body and legs of a lion, but wings and beak of an eagle, and with listening ears representing what is king both among the beasts and birds. But it has a more noble meaning in Ecclesiastical Heraldry, as the Griffin is the symbol for Christ. It is not too much to say that our new Bishop measures up in the fulfillment of his various offices to the significance of his name.

Baby's Toilet Habits

BEULAH FRANCE Registered Nurse
(This is the fourth of a series of eight articles on "Teaching Children Proper Bathroom Habits" which author is a registered nurse, nationally known health educator and hygiene lecturer to the South Jersey Company of Chester, Penn.)

As the children grow older and assume toilet responsibilities for themselves they must never outgrow the habit of careful drying after every urination. The tissue used should possess a high degree of softness for comfort. And at the same time it should be sufficiently strong to prevent tearing and assure thorough drying. Tissues like ScottTissue and Waldo are made with the proper balance of these two qualities.

When the baby is running about, he may want to use the regular toilet instead of a nursery chair. If so, he should be allowed to, but he must be made comfortable. There are on the market children's toilet seats which may be securely fastened to the regular ones and are very convenient to use. They have foot rests which are important adjuncts. The baby's feet should never be left to dangle in mid air.

Also on the market are pretty wooden steps by means of which a child may climb with ease to the toilet seat. All these appliances make good bathroom habits attractive, which is one of the secrets of success.

Perspiration and constant wear are hard on leather; have at least two pairs of shoes for general use so that one pair can rest between wearings.

MUNICIPAL TOPICS

"It is not enough to vote regularly, to pay taxes promptly, and to live well within the law. One who does these things would certainly be classified as a good citizen. Every community needs many such people if it cannot do better."

"But a community with only good citizens is likely to be commonplace and lacking in progressive spirit. It takes more than the performance of the minimum requirements of citizenship to make a great community. Many citizens must give their time and energy beyond that which would give them a passing mark. It is that amount of energy above the minimum which individuals pour into the life of the community that makes the difference between that mediocre place and the one of distinction." Harold D. Smith, Director of the United States Bureau of the Budget, made this thought-provoking observation on civic responsibility in a recent address and had more to say pertinent to the subject and in succinct form that every citizen with the welfare of his community at heart should digest and consider.

"Failure to exercise the privilege of voting is all too prevalent, as has been demonstrated by a number of municipalities. This is the most elemental civic duty yet many citizens pass it over with the excuse, 'my vote does not count for much anyway. What a feeble excuse for failing to perform the number one duty of citizenship!'"

"Since only a relatively few citizens may hold official positions and thus acquire a sense of participation beyond that afforded by the common duties of citizenship, there are other ways in which the individual may participate in community affairs. Most towns and cities have various organizations with community objectives which should invite the interest of many people. There are luncheon clubs, neighborhood organizations, the chamber of commerce, the community fund, labor organizations, church organizations, parent-teacher associations and farmer groups to maintain a few."

"It is often stated we are over-organized. There is much more danger in under-organization; danger that there are too few organizations to permit the individual to join with his fellows in the advancement of some community objective. He should not be permitted to lose his identity in the community mass and fail to achieve a feeling of constructive participation. His association with some smaller group in the community brings the individual out in sharper relief, and focuses attention upon his role as a member of the community. When he is not allowed to slip into the oblivion of the community mass, he is made more keenly aware of his responsibilities."

It was a month ago, or a little longer, Adolf Hitler was behind the front lines of the German army that was surging over France like successive banks of grey fog. He had granted one of his rare interviews to an American newspaper correspondent. And the reporter asked Hitler about the "fifth column."

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

The "fifth column" is now the classic phrase used to describe the activities of the traitors and saboteurs in European countries who laid the preliminary groundwork for the Nazi successes before a single blow was struck on either side.

The phrase was originated by the rebel General Mola during the Spanish War. Mola declared that his troops would capture Madrid because there were four strong columns of soldiers advancing on the city and also a "fifth column" of fascist sympathizers within the gates.

The swiftly-developing and terrible events in Europe this year have brought the words very closely home to Americans. There's even the danger that a nervous public will start seeing spies where none exist, and that admirable and loyal citizens will suffer as a result. In times of tension, the just and the unjust sometimes suffer alike. It's a sad fact but a true one. Besides, the injustice that would occur as a result of all this, there's another danger: Americans may mistake the shadow for the substance, and in their zeal to protect this country from the enemy within they may lose sight of far more real dangers confronting all of us. But let go back to Adolf Hitler and the American correspondent.

When the subject of the fifth column was brought up, Hitler laughed one of his rare laughs. He is probably the world's leading authority on this particular unhappy subject, so he knew what he was talking about—and the reporter listened carefully. Here, in a nutshell, is what the German dictator said.

People with a dramatic turn of mind have made up the story about the careful plans of secret agents to build fifth columns throughout Europe. Actually, there is nothing difficult about the technique. In any country, you can find dissatisfied groups and individuals, self-seeking, egotistical, or merely unable to comprehend the dangers of what they are doing, who can undermine the nation's security in one way or another. It is the actions of these men—some of them pursuing courses contrary to the national safety with the very best of intentions—who make Hitler, in the real story behind the rapid, smashing triumphs of his war machine.

On this particular point, it might be wise for Americans to assume that the Nazi dictator is telling the truth, or at least part of the truth. And there's a powerful object lesson buried in his remarks.

That lesson is plain. The best insurance we can possibly have against a repetition of the fate of other countries is to look with a fishy eye upon those who, under the guise of attaining laudable objectives, would seek to pass legislation or indulge in actions that would prove hampering to our national defense program. Over the years, manufacturing industry and business in general have been seriously weakened by measures of this type.

Let this country and this country's government watch out for spies and saboteurs and foreign agents by all means. But let us not in the process forget the far more potent danger in the state and mind which holds that industry can prepare the United States for national defense while it's wearing handoffs, accessory shackles, and a ball and chain firmly attached to each ankle!

Know Your Government

APPROPRIATIONS DETRACTED

Fortunately for taxpayers the New Jersey Legislature has adjourned until November 12 without taking action on the many "supplemental" appropriations bills in the legislative hopper.

Despite the public's unmistakable demand for governmental economy, some of the legislators had planned to take advantage of the hubbub of adjournment preparations and rush through at the last minute their "pet" spending bills, most of which had been framed to quiet the clamoring of selfish minority groups and special spending interests.

Richly deserved credit for blocking this attempted spending raid goes to those legislative leaders who, once the really important legislation was out of the way, insisted upon prompt adjournment. In the face of legislative pressure to reconvene the legislature, these leaders have remained firm in their determination to check excessive spending by the state government.

Their loyalty to taxpayers has kept under control a flood of r. spending bills that might have wrecked economy gains made during the current legislative session. Those who sought increased spending were still smarting under the blow of the three-quarter million reduction made in the general appropriations bill as the result of widespread taxpayer demand for economy. Evidently the "spenders" had hoped to renege on the promise of the reduction through steamroller passage of their supplemental appropriation bills.

Effective control of the state government's expenditures would be aided to a great extent if appropriations were confined exclusively to the regular appropriations bills. Piece-meal introduction and passage of appropriations is obviously a bad practice. After the state budget department and the legislative appropriations committee have held hearings for many weeks, reviewing departmental requests for funds, it is unbusinesslike and extravagant to unleash a lack of additional spending bills. Once the general appropriations bill has been made into law that should be the end of appropriations, except in cases of extreme emergency.

Governor Moore recognized the need to curb supplemental appropriations when he submitted his budget recommendations to the 1940 legislature. In his budget message he declared: "I respectfully suggest that this Legislature adopt a hard and fast rule that no supplemental appropriations be made. Such a rule would relieve the members of your honorable body from a great deal of worry caused by groups that seek funds for their own selfish interests."

This advance should be followed not only by the present legislature but by future legislatures as well. The seriousness of supplemental appropriations can be judged by the fact that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, the legislature authorized supplemental appropriations totaling $3,121,000, which was in addition to the state appropriation bill of the same year totaling $39,250,000, and the highway appropriation bill for the calendar year of 1939 totaling $30,250,000. The New Jersey Taxpayers Association believes that such a rule should be worked out to prevent the annual re-occurrence of this practice, and to make it extremely difficult to introduce and pass any supplementary legislation.

PIPE DREAMS

By Nick-a-Time

"Hercules", the carpenter, is now parading Broadway talking politics, and naturally the kind of politics he is talking is Republican politics.

"Hercules" is having a lot of trouble talking against "third term", running and prospering being around the corner if the next administration is Democratic.

"Hercules" knocked down statements that prosperity is coming if we have a Democratic administration. Saturday morning, when he recalled that Democrats said people were starving to death, when Hoover was president. He said at that time he visited local undertakers and when he asked how business was, found the undertakers complaining because everyone was healthy. He said he visited the morticians again during the Roosevelt administration, and the undertakers were smiling broadly.

Ingenuous gang that bunch of WPA sidewalk engineers who are using the Palmer method of laying the flags.

The other day one member of the gang wanted to cut a piece of slab to fit a vacancy in the sidewalk, so remembering that wood can be cut with an axe, he thought he could do a likewise on slab and grabbing an axe, tried to cut it to the size he wanted.

Never in the history of softball in this city, has there been a team like the aggregation on the Hill, each of whom has a heart.

Those boys will probably be glad when the softball season is over with all the double headers they are playing; they play each game twice, the first time on the baseball field, and the second time in a garage in the First Ward that the team uses as headquarters.

Because of the heat during the last several days the most popular style was "going without". Half the men wore so little they had to keep in the sunlight to keep from giving the impression they had evil designs, and half the women had to keep out of the sunlight for the same reason.

Saturday afternoon we saw the track fixing gang of the railroad, of which several local men are members. They were riding on their hand car coming from work, and we never before saw so many nudists on wheels.

For a long time the wife of that recently married slim bartender of the "Hill" has wanted him to get a sun tan.

Saturday she took him to the Englishtown market, figuring he would walk around in the sun and get the tan, but instead he had his picture taken with two friends then wandered off to a tavern, where he ordered a glass of soft stuff and told the proprietor to bring him a fan. Soon his wife found the bartender sitting by the fan in the tavern sipping soft stuff instead of walking around in the sun to get a coat of tan, and she yanked him out in the sunshine.

When the bartender got back to the "Hill", he exhibited the photograph he had taken to show what a handsome lad he is and one of the lads who went to Englishtown with him got bawled out by the tavern-oldest's wife because he took him out at Englishtown instead of getting him out of bed in the morning.

Recently an unholy trio, consisting of the clay bank railroad brakeman, the clay bank railroad conductor, and the foreman of Pier 18, Jersey City, went to South River to try out a new racket they conceived.

The brakeman would give a P.O. box ticketing exhibition and the conductor would do a crooning act and they got free drinks in three places for putting on their acts.

In the fourth place, however, they encountered a woman bartender, who took a look at the brakeman and told him he couldn't have a drink because he wasn't old enough, and he talked himself dry telling her he had been married five years and had a three year old relative child at home.

Operative No. 1297 and 11844, report that a certain ex-fire chief of town, who is now pounding his laying the sidewalks, has ceased threats on our life and is now planning to burn down the office, so as soon as we smell smoke, we'll look around for the popular ex-chief.

The other morning the lads were gathered around the mahogany in that famous thirastorium on the "Hill" and the bartender, known by a nickname that indicates he's slim, was telling the boys that he's the boss in his house (He married recently).

The conversation was interrupted by his wife who walked in with a shirt and a pair of pants she had just bought for him and told him to try them on.

He replied that they were too big for him and wouldn't fit, and to this she replied, "I bought them for you, now you've got to wear them."

The boys who were standing around immediately forgot about the conversation several minutes before, which was about the bartender being boss in his house.

At least one Republican candidate for council appears to feel certain of his election in November.

The "Midnight Whistler," who resides on the "Hill" and whose name will appear on the Republican ballots in the fall, recently had a large front porch installed on his home, apparently so that he may be there to greet the visiting delegation that calls around on election night to congratulate him on his victory.

You will remember that some time ago, the "Sage of Baptist Hill" started quite a controversy about town when he started a number of arguments by asking, which is the front and which is the back of the church." The only answer to that one seemed to be that the back is the front and the front is the back.

Now another paperhanger seems to have started another controversy, on where the ceiling starts and the sidewalk ends. It all came about, one morning recently, when the new tenant looked at the paper hanging job in the house he is to move into on Stevens avenue, and told the paperhanger in no uncertain terms that he didn't like the job because of the differentiation, or lack of differentiation, between the ceiling and the sidewalks in a hall.

The "Count of Stevens avenue," apparently is worried about the enemy coming in town, and thinks they are going to enter it by way of Stevens avenue.

However, he seems to have a good idea of how to stop them, and if they do try to get in, will probably push the building in which his thirastorium is located, over on to Stevens avenue, blocking the street.

Monday night he was back of the building pushing it, evidently training for the day of the emergency, but he couldn't push the building over.

Every morning a good looking blonde gets on a bus coming to this city at Kirkmans Place, Perth Amboy shortly before eight o'clock, so she can get to the factory in this city, where she works by eight o'clock.

The other morning she was riding on the bus and a cop with the same name as a famous soft drink was on duty at the light on the Perth Amboy side of the bridge, and had the light turned against the bus. When it stopped, she promptly got out of the bus, walked in front of it and shouted to the policeman, "I'm calling him by name, said "Hey turn that light, do you want me to be late for work?"

He never said a word, and promptly turned the light to green, and the bus went on its way.

A local bus driver, who of course is a wow with the ladies (all of them are) is romancing with a nurse who does a lot of riding when she has time off, but little of it on her bus driver's friend's bus.

The nurse however can be seen bicycling along various roads in this section. She's not going anywhere in particular when you see her riding around, she is just plenty worried about losing her "perfect 88" and is bicycling to reduce.

Sunday the handsome butcher of the "Hill" went to Atlantic City with two friends, one of whom had a broken thumb.

The boys spent some time drinking Atlantic City gin, then got hungry and went into a restaurant. They ordered roast beef, but when he got it, the lad with the broken thumb couldn't eat his, because the broken thumb prevented him from putting it up, so the waiter, who took a liking to him, cut it up for him and fed it to him.

When they got back from Atlantic City, the day in Atlantic City, the waiter, who fed him all the scraps, because the lad with the broken thumb couldn't get his hands in his pocket, counted up and discovered they had spent eight dollars on the trip.

The other night the Valley brakeman a "Hill" resident, was having a grand time in that famous thirastorium on the Hill, with two girls, when his wife walked in. Now he's got to imitate the ground hog and stay out of sight until pay day when we understand he will be allowed out again.

Will Tell Newark's Pennant Chances

Bears Seek To Wrest Lead From Red Wings

Some time before next Wednesday night North Jersey baseball fans probably will know just what chance the Newark Bears have of overhauling the leading Rochester Red Wings and retaking the International League pennant to its accustomed place atop the flagpole at Ruppert Stadium.

The week beginning Thursday when the Montreal Royals moved into the Newark arena for a five game series in three days promised to be the most crucial of the season for the Bears. Toronto will be encountered in a Sunday double-header at Ruppert Stadium and that night the Bruins will entrain for Rochester where they will have an opportunity of personally closing the gap separating them from the Red Wings and the league lead. This will be a four game series opening Monday and closing Wednesday and its conclusion will either see Rochester way out in front and all alone or the Bears right up there challenging the Red Wings for the lead.

But in order to move into Rochester with any chance of making a battle out of it, the Bears will first have to dispose of the Canadian clubs. The Montreal Royals, who have had the best club in the league on paper since opening day and have been living up to their notices of late, have advanced from sixth place to third within the last month and are resolved that they shall be the club to overtake the fast going Red Wings.

This rejuvenated outfit of Brooklyn owned major leaguers was scheduled for doubleheaders Thursday afternoon and Friday night and a single "Knot Hole Gang" game Saturday. Friday night, of course, will be ladies' night. Should the Bears prove able to successfully cope with the Montreal threat they will have another tough job in the Toronto club Sunday afternoon. Despite the lowly position of Tony Lazzeri's club the Maple Leafs have been more successful against the Bears than any club except Rochester.

Qualification Races At Langhorne Next Sunday

Drivers Will Be Selected For Early Conquest Classic

Langhorne, Pa., July 25, 1940: As a forerunner to the Second Annual AAA 200-mile All-American Championship Stock Car auto race, set for Sunday, August 4, stock car qualification races will be held next Sunday afternoon, July 28, when a score of drivers will be selected at Langhorne Speedway for the big classic in early August.

Stock car drivers from a zone within 400 miles of Philadelphia are required to run for their right to finally compete, while distance drivers will be given a final chance ahead of the regular race day.

An innovation for Sunday's races will be that for "a half a dollar," race fans of the East will be afforded a grandstand seat for the ten-mile heat races, the lowest scale to ever prevail at Langhorne. As an Indianapolis, thousands are expected for the preview competition.

Among drivers from the big field who are expected to assuredly be designated for August 4, are Ted Horn, Everett Saylor, Mark Light, Ted Nyquist, Manuel Cooper, Joe Littlejohn, Bert Ross, Walt Keiper, Dan Goss, Bill France, Bob Baker, Tom Kinney, Bill Strauss, Bob Irwin, Bud Woodward and Tommy Simore. Many others are newcomers to stock car racing and will have to fight it out to get in the final chosen 36 who will breeze along in the 200 mile grind hoping for ultimate victory.

Promoter Ralph Hankinson, the only one who is granted an AAA sanction for stock car races, is looking for the largest crowd in his ten years operation of the big mile oil-bowl, the most famous race course in the United States outside of Indianapolis.

UP AND DOWN THE ALLEYS

By JOE KER

Well, the Georges outfit have certainly put the squitch on our recent selection of who is gonna wind up where in the WPA Softball League. According to the way we picked 'em the Georges crew were supposed to finish up after the Hearts and Jeromes, but just to show us how wrong we were the boys went out and copped the first half. Now the worst they can do is end up second, with a better than even chance of grabbing the number one spot.

But, like a good umpire, we're not changing our decision as to the ultimate winner of the league. Our choice was, and still is, the Hearts.

The Georges squad proved their might and right to the first half title by knocking off the Jeromes ten in their final game of the initial round. Had Jeromes won they would've forced their opponents into a tie for first, but as matters turned out, they didn't... and speaking of that contest, we take time out to toss a couple of bouquets.

First, to "Dewey" Dwyer, flinging star of the beer boys. We've already ranked "Dewey," along with Lagoda of the Hearts, as the league's topmost moundsmen, but D's performance against Jeromes sorta gives him the edge over Al, so far.

In that affair, Dwyer gave an exhibition of how the pitching job should be handled by allowing the opposition but one hit, the first man up batting the first ball heaved for a safety. A stunt of that kind is quite a feat, considering the fact that almost anything's a hit, errors being an unknown thing in softball; and besides, the bunch he was tossing against were by no means new to the game.

Of course, in pitching such a brilliant game "Dewey" did have SOME help from his mates. Notable among them being one "Hand-the-Head" Chonsky. Playing short-field, the guy proved to be a big pain in the neck to the other side, but a bigger help to his own by chasing all over the outfield robbing the batters of seemingly sure hits by making some "impossible" catches... yesir, "The Head" was just like a tent... he covered everything.

The way we look at it, the second half contest between the Georges and the Hearts should be a lulu.

Speaking of a game between these two teams, we understand that they are slated to meet each other in an affair to decide which will represent this fair hamlet in the forthcoming Middlesex County Elimination Tournament. The tourney will include crack outfits from eight of the county's burghs, and after its completion the winner will participate in a sectional and State junket.

We'd certainly like to see which ever of the two localers that win, go to town; but we can't see why an all league team isn't selected to represent this town... after all, neither of these team's rosters can be said to have on them the city's best S. B.'ers, and then again, neither of them are the city champs... yet.

Our local Senior WPA Recreation Director, Tom O'Leary, tells us that he intends taking up the slack between the softball and basketball seasons this fall by organizing a touch-football league.

Tom has already given the matter considerable thought and states that he's figuring on at least an eight-team league with seven or eight other teams.

While he's in the mood, we wonder if Tom can do anything about starting a city checker tournament, more or less to see if Alley Kake, who we've itemed before as staking his claim on the works (and for a fin on the side), can live up to all the bragging he's been giving vent to lately.

Softball Static: The way the Hearts work it, the best batsmen are usually up at the head end of the batting order... it seems that a couple of their FORMER hardball stars have dropped to a point where the manager has trouble deciding whether to put 'em before or behind the pitcher. "Tennyrate, if they keep it up they'll probably finish the season batting eleventh or twelfth.

Our vote for the most dangerous hitter with men on the bags—Tom Fitzmorris, of Georges... league's best place hitter.

We tab Lefty Mackel, of the Par-lush Club, as one of the best sluggers in the circuit... he holds the record for the longest hit ball so far this year... hit the top of the right field fence.

Bowling Batter: Joe (Three-Gun) Toth of the Kohler clan in the Rec's summer stint, burning up the league with his maple-mauling activities—hitting them at a better than 200 clip and holds league high game to date... a 236-er.

We heard of a ball player who his wrist reaching for a highball.

Or with its playing twitch...

SACRED HEARTS BEAT MECHANICSVILLE

Monday night's WPA city league baseball game between the Sacred Hearts and Mechanicsville, went to the Sacred Hearts by a 5-2 score, largely because of their ability to cash in on a series of errors.

The Hearts did all their scoring in the first four innings, grabbing off one each in the first three innings, and two in the fourth. Mechanicsville averted a shutout by scoring their runs in the fifth inning.

Mechanicsville scored seven hits off the delivery of H. Conroy and Netus and Mechanicsville secured five off the offerings of Harris.

DIAMOND DUST

Editor's Note: The opinions expressed here are those of the writer and do not necessarily agree with those of the management.

Judging from all accounts it seems evident that the Romeo Association is encountering more than their share of difficulty in attempting to have the Romeo-Mechanicsville game ruled a no contest.

To date the Mechanicsville team continues to receive credit for the victory even though outstanding facts prove that the game should be replayed. Regardless of the outcome of the protest I wonder if the Mechanicsville team feels justified in receiving credit for the game.

I know for a fact that if Austin Stoltz served in the capacity of manager of the Hole in the Wallers he would insist on the game being replayed. Not only because he possesses more than the ordinary share of sportsmanship but mostly because he wouldn't allow any of his teams to receive credit for a victory where such evident facts proved that the Sporting Club was erroneously awarded a victory.

Only recently a game of the same nature was played in Philadelphia between the New York Yanks and the Athletics, and the league ruled the game to be replayed because both teams were guilty of misconduct. Possibly local authorities are more educated on the fine points of the game than are the league authorities.

This corner has witnessed John Satsky receive tremendous power when batting but simply averaged the reason was due to the fact that he possessed perfectly noulded shoulders for a terrific drive. But on closer investigation, Yours Truly noticed that the main reason for his power is the result of the follow through that he exhibits in his swing. He, no doubt, owns the best follow through of any ball player in the city.

Things I Never Knew Till Now: That Bob "Mugs" Holton, Mechanicsville's erstwhile second sacker, is a talented singer. In fact, he is employed at a down shore night club every Saturday night. In the near future he will be booked to sing with one of the nation's best swing orchestras. This corner hopes to see that day.

And lest we forget, this corner would like to take time out to thank and congratulate Mike Marks, Mechanicsville assistant manager, for predicting in an astonishing manner. Last week, before the Ernest-Mechanicsville game he predicted the score. He said Mechanicsville would emerge victorious by a 6-4 score, and believe it or not, the game terminated as predicted. Hats off to you, Mike.

After following Brooklyn in the box scores of late, yours truly is of the opinion that Brooklyn is the team that would end the season beyond third place. But I don't if I'll collect the wager that the Yanks would win the American League pennant.

Lefty Zebro received another trial with the Brooklyn Dodgers Saturday. The box score of the Romeo game in the Inter City League stated that Zebro had two for four, but in reality he received four bingles in four trips to the plate. Don't tell anybody, but the Romeo team won a game in the Inter City League Sunday afternoon, when they defeated the Keasby Club by a 5 to 2 count largely because of Duck Meinzer's pitching.

Don't say I didn't tell you, but the Romeo team will emerge victorious in the City League when the circuit's festivities have terminated. How come the DeSantis team is starting to slide in the Interboro League.

WASHINGTON

LETTER

BY CONGRESSMAN

WILLIAM H. SUTPHIN

REVEREND RENOMINATION

Apocryph of President Roosevelt's renomination, I would like to quote part of a letter written by General George Washington to LaFayette in the year 1778: "As to the necessity of that office (the Presidency of the United States) I can see no propriety in precluding ourselves from the service of any man who on some great emergency shall be deemed universally most capable of serving the public." So, third terms seem to be nothing new.

The War Department has informed me that I am entitled to the appointment of a cadet to the United States Military Academy next June (1941). Therefore, I am inviting young men who are actual residents of the Third Congressional District, not under 17 nor over 22 years of age as of June 1, 1941, and not less than 5 feet 6 inches in height, who are graduates of high school to enter my qualifying examination which will probably be held sometime next October. Any interested young man should write me, giving his full name, the exact date of his birth, and his legal residence.

PARACHUTE TRAINING

The Army has decided to use the parachute tower at Hightstown for the training of parachute jumpers.

A test platoon of 2 officers and 48 infantrymen has been organized and will receive training from July 29 to August 3 in the parachute landing methods used by Germany and Russia. The men who are to do this experimental training are stationed at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

ANOTHER CALL FOR NAVAL RESERVES

The thirty day training cruises started last month for Naval Reserves has proved so popular that applications are being received for another cruise to start on August 19th and still another to start on September 20th. Because of the large number of applicants for the previously scheduled cruises a "first come, first served" policy has been adopted. The training program was instituted recently by President Roosevelt to create a force of naval reserve officers who would be trained to man the increasing number of warships being put in active duty by the Navy Department. The program consists of one month of training at sea and three months shore instruction aboard a battleship. Men between the ages of 18 and 27 who have two years of college training and can pass a physical examination are eligible to enroll. Students attending college, but who want to participate in the program may take the cruise this summer and complete the shore session next summer. Applicants should apply to Lieut. Comdr. Frederick M. Curran, Jr. on the Training Ship Illinois, at 136th street and the Hudson River, New York.

NAVAL EXPANSION

When the President signed the two-ocean naval expansion bill last week-end, the shipyards began to worry about more room for turning out these vessels. All Government and private shipyards are working at full capacity now and it is rumored that old yards, such as the Cramp Shipyard at Philadelphia will soon be placed back into service. This expansion and the crying need for skilled workmen should certainly place more and more men in New Jersey to work.

Recently I mentioned in my column that Government shipyards require that applicants pass Civil Service examinations. For those seeking employment, I repeat that application should be made to the U. S. Civil Service Office at New York for those residing in Middlesex and Monmouth Counties; and at Philadelphia for those residing in Ocean County. Also, applicants for work in the Navy Yards should write Mr. Edward J. O'Brien, Philadelphia Navy Yard and Mr. Henry F. O'Connor, New York Navy Yard.

Initial Performance

At McCarter Theatre

"By Any Other Name" Will

Open at Princeton Monday

"By Any Other Name," a new historical comedy which probably will prove the most controversial play of the coming Broadway season, will be given its initial performance at the McCarter Theatre, at Princeton, the week of July 29-August 3.

It is the work of Warren P. Munsell, Jr., producer of the Princeton Summer Theatre Season, and is further distinguished by the fact that Warren P. Munsell, Sr., business manager of the Theatre Guild, is directing his son's work. The play marks one of the rare occasions in the theatre where father and son have collaborated in the production of an opus.

Harry Elmer, brilliant young actor-director who staged "Captain Brassbound's Conversion" and "The Bat" several weeks back, makes his first appearance this season on the other side of the footlights in the leading male role. Winifred Lenthall, distinguished American actress who took New York by storm in the original production of "St. Joan," makes one of her infrequent stage appearances in the important part of Queen Elizabeth in this comedy of Elizabethan times.

"By Any Other Name" depicts the intimate life of one of the greatest literary lights of the Sixteenth Century: Edward de Vere, the 17th Earl of Oxford, Lord Great Chamberlain of England and first peer of the realm in Queen Elizabeth's reign. The play expounds the theory (gaining great momentum lately) that the Earl of Oxford and not Shakespeare was the true author of Shakespeare's plays.

Current plans call for a Broadway production of "By Any Other Name" in the fall, under prominent auspices.

A CORRECTION

In a story last week which concerned the change of ownership of the Amboy Diner at the Corner of Stevens Avenue and John Street, the heading of the story declared that the Raritan Diner had changed hands. The head was in error.

The new owner of the Amboy Diner at the corner of Stevens Avenue and John Street, is Peter Alexander, but the Raritan Diner on Borden-town Avenue, is owned by Captain James Lanahan and James Farley, who state that they intend to continue as the owners for many years to come.
