

SUNSHINE A GERMICIDE.

Tests Show That Germs of Disease Can Not Survive When Exposed to the Sun.

The United States Department of Agriculture in the "Weekly News Letter" says that sunshine is an amazingly potent germicide for the farm housekeeper and in the dairy and stables. The practice of exposing cooking and other utensils used in connection with food to direct sunlight makes use of this fact, although comparatively few appreciate exactly the work done by the sun in this regard. Probably only those who are acquainted with tests which have actually been made realize how quickly sunshine kills disease germs exposed to it. Hence the following tests may be generally instructive and interesting.

A pasty, creamy mass of tuberculous material, which was proved to contain uncountable numbers of virulent tubercle bacilli, was obtained from a tuberculous cow and spread in thin smooth translucent layers on sheets of glass, pieces of wood, and strips of muslin. Some of the sheets of glass, pieces of wood, and strips of muslin were then placed outdoors on a moderately warm, clear, calm day where the sun could shine on them, and an equal number were placed in a dark room. After 15 minutes exposure to the sun, the tuberculous material on the glass, wood, and muslin still contained large numbers of living, virulent tubercle bacilli, which were proved to be fully capable of causing tuberculosis, but after 30 minutes exposure to the sun no living tubercle bacilli could be found; every test that could be made proved that they were all dead.

Similar tests with quite large opaque masses of tuberculous material, larger and denser than any tuberculous person is apt to expectorate, proved that the bacilli in such masses on glass are still alive after 4, but entirely dead in less than 8 hours, and still alive in the material on wood and muslin after 8, but dead in less than 16 hours.

The tuberculous material in thin layers on glass, wood, and muslin, kept in a dark room, was proved to contain fully virulent, living tubercle bacilli after 30 days. The contrast is remarkable, tubercle bacilli of the same kind, on the same kind of material, dying in a smaller number of minutes in the sunshine than the number of days they remained alive in a dark room.

As most varieties of disease germs are more easily destroyed by germicides than tubercle bacilli, and as tubercle bacilli, in the thin layers in which they are likely to adhere to clothing, blankets, rugs, draperies, furniture, walls, floors, etc., are killed by the rays of the sun in less than half an hour, though they remain alive in dark places a month and longer, it is reasonable to draw the following conclusions:

(a) As a general sanitary principle it is desirable that all dwellings, stables, etc., should be so constructed that an abundance of sunshine can reach their interiors.

(b) As a general protective measure against disease germs, it is an excellent practice to expose utensils for handling milk, and milk cans after they have been cleaned, to direct sunlight, and to hang or spread wearing apparel, blankets, bedding, rugs, horse blankets, etc., periodically where the sun can shine on all parts of them.

The Four Post Bedstead

Or the Mysterious Workings of Providence

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Mrs. Henry Dowd stared coldly at Philippa Fancher, who was sitting on the other side of Lawyer Weems' office. Philippa looked expectantly at the little sandy haired lawyer, who was reading the last will and testament of the late Susan Fancher to the heirs.

"And lastly," droned Mr. Weems, reading, "I give and bequeath to my niece, Amanda Fancher Dowd and Philippa Fancher, my mahogany four post bedstead, to be divided as follows." Here Mr. Weems blew his thin nose violently and coughed nervously before concluding the important document:

"To be divided as follows: The two head posts, the headboard and one side rail to my niece Amanda Fancher Dowd; the two foot posts, one side rail and the foot piece to my niece Philippa Fancher, theirs to have and to hold forever."

"That's all," said Mr. Weems, busying himself with his papers.

The six nieces from Planerville, who equally shared the meager bank deposits and the house and furniture of their deceased aunt, smiled furtively at one another as Mrs. Dowd and her cousin Philippa rose stiffly from their chairs and, without a word to the others, carried their bitter disappointment out of the office.

Although Philippa and her cousin Amanda had not been good friends for many years, now a common cause for complaint united them for a brief time.

"It's an insult!" declared Amanda Dowd, her stout form quivering with indignation.

"It is indeed," agreed Philippa primly. "After all I've done for Aunt Susan too. The winter when she had pneumonia I stayed with her day and night for two months, and when I went home she told me, says she: 'Phil, you'll be rewarded for this when I'm gone. I shall remember you generously in my will.'"

"Says I, 'Aunt Susan, I'm not doing it for reward'—Philippa stopped short and got very red when she saw the sarcastic smile quivering around Amanda's lips.

"Aunt Susan was fond of making promises," said Amanda hastily. "The time when I sewed for her two months steady so that she could make that visit to New York she promised I would be remembered first in her will."

"And you were last!" ejaculated Philippa sweetly.

"Except for your name I was," reminded Mrs. Dowd.

"And each of us only half of a four post bedstead!"

"It's an insult!" repeated Mrs. Dowd. "I don't understand Aunt Susan's promising us, who have done so much for her, and then leaving us nothing after all, when the Planerville nieces, who hardly noticed her, got everything worth while."

"Except half an old four post bedstead," muttered Amanda Dowd. "I've a good mind to burn my half up or give it away."

"You might give yours to Ida Finney, and I'll do the same," said Philippa. "She told me the other day that if she had another double bed she could take some city boarders. She needs the money."

"And then folks can see that we don't care a snap about the old bedstead," agreed Mrs. Dowd.

So it happened that little Miss Finney, whose hands, crippled by rheumatism, could no longer trim hats, came into possession of the four post bedstead which Aunt Susan Fancher had eccentrically divided between two of her nieces.

Ida Finney put the bed in her sitting room and rented it to boarders from the city.

One autumn day Ida hurried up the path that led to Philippa's side door. Philippa Fancher, who put up fruit and pickles for a living, was stirring a spicy mixture in a huge kettle on the stove.

"Come in, Ida," she called to the little milliner. "Your boarders gone?" she inquired after Miss Finney was seated.

"Not yet, though they are all ready to go on the 2 o'clock stage. Now, Philippa," went on Ida earnestly, "the folks who have been sleeping on that four poster want to buy it from me. They offered me—what do you think?"

Philippa added more sugar to her pickles and tasted them delicately.

"Five dollars?" she hazarded.

Ida Finney laughed excitedly.

"Fifty dollars! There, I knew you'd jump, Phil Fancher! Fifty dollars for the old bedstead that your Aunt Susan left you and that you despised."

Philippa reddened. "Did you accept the offer, Ida?" she asked stiffly.

"I did not. I told them that it didn't belong to me, being only borrowed from you and Amanda, and if it had been mine I wouldn't have sold it because it had belonged to your Aunt Susan."

"We gave it to you, Ida. You can sell it if you want to."

"I'm proud to have anything that belonged to Susan Fancher," said Ida Finney. "She was very kind to my folks once, and when I learned the millinery trade she loaned me the money to go into business. I paid it all back, too, but I ain't forgot her goodness."

Ida Finney arose and moved toward the door. "Well, I must hurry home again. I just thought I'd let you know about the offer."

"And you won't sell the bed and keep the money? We don't care," said Philippa.

"No; I'd rather not sell it. I know Miss Susan set great store by that bed. She said it belonged to her great-grandmother and it had a history."

Ida went out and closed the door rather sharply, as was her wont. She had a way of stirring one's conscience without actually preaching.

Philippa finished her pickles and then, changing her dress, went across the street to see her cousin, Amanda Dowd.

In a few words Philippa related what Ida Finney had told her about the four post bed which the city people valued at $50.

"Something Ida said made me feel ashamed of giving the bed away," ended Philippa sadly. "You see, I was very angry the day Mr. Weems read that letter, and so I didn't care about the bed or my share of it. I've been thinking that Aunt Susan was very kind to me. She did lots of nice things for me when I was a girl, and I ought not to have calculated on her leaving me any money."

Amanda Dowd nodded her head. "I feel the same way, Philippa. Aunt Susan helped my brother Jim to study for the ministry, and I guess I'll get my half of the bed back from Ida Finney. I'll give her $5 toward another one."

"So will I," said Philippa, who could ill afford it.

A week later Amanda Dowd and Philippa Fancher went over to see Ida Finney.

After an hour of lively persuasion the independent Miss Finney reluctantly consented to accept $10 for the bed, which the remorseful owners had given her some time before.

"I feel as mean as getout," said Ida as she placed the money in her worn pocketbook and led the way upstairs.

"As a punishment for my meanness I shall carry my half home piecemeal," said Philippa firmly as they proceeded to dismantle the ancient bed of its spotless coverings.

"And I shall do the same," said Amanda, her broad face grave with regret. "Now, Phil, do you know how to uncord the thing?"

Philippa worked with deft fingers, and presently the bed was apart and divided according to the last will and testament of Susan Fancher.

Philippa lifted one heavy post. "It looks as if it could be unscrewed here. See where the joining is quite plain. It will be easier to carry if it does come apart."

She twisted the end of the post, and it moved easily around and around until she lifted the carved top and disclosed a deep, cuplike hollow. The hollow was filled with white tissue paper, which, pulled out and unfolded, revealed a packet of money—ten $100 bills.

In dazed silence her companions watched Philippa while she unscrewed the top of her second bedpost and found a similar sum of money.

Then it was Amanda Dowd's turn, and she, too, was remembered in the same manner by eccentric, kind hearted Aunt Susan.

Little Ida Finney watched them in tearful delight as they made these astounding discoveries, but Ida was to make a discovery on her own account.

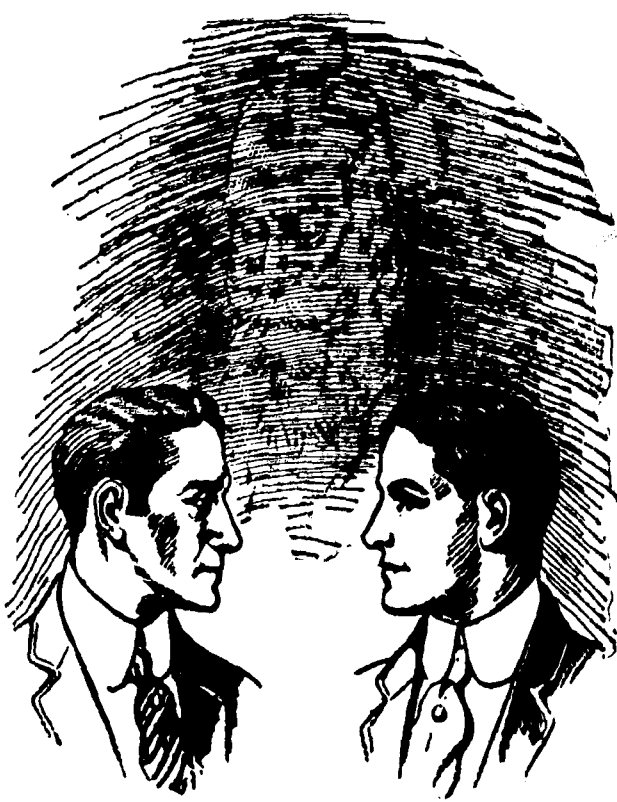

"Ida Finney," said Amanda after a short consultation with Philippa, "Philippa and I would never have found this money if it hadn't been for you. You made us ashamed of ourselves, and, Ida, you've got to take this. If you won't do it gracefully I'll have it put to your credit in the Little River bank."

She extended a packet of bills toward the little milliner.

"I don't dare decline it because I need it so badly," half sobbed Ida.

"Take it!" ordered Philippa and Amanda, and Ida Finney took the packet and cried over it like a baby, for it contained ten $100 bills.

As for the cousins, they bore the sections of the four poster home, and it is a credit to them both that each one was thinking more of the past kindnesses of Aunt Susan and of the mysterious workings of Providence, which through their own awakened consciences had brought them to a degree of prosperity.

RETURN TO NORMAL HEARING

Correspondent of New York Newspaper Tells of Good Results of Rubbing the Scalp.

For some years I had been under the impression that washing the scalp or using tonics for the hair was bad, for the reason that it was thought to have a tendency to increase deafness, and when I read your correspondent's letter on the treatment of deafness by means of manipulation of the scalp and the use of tonics in connection therewith I was at first rather doubtful about the efficiency of the treatment. But I finally tried the plan, and am glad to say that it brought surprising results, writes a correspondent of the New York Sun.

But what I cannot understand is why a wet scalp and rubbing should restore normal hearing. I cannot account for it. After trying the scheme I discontinued the rubbing and use of the tonic, with the result that the hardness of hearing returned; and with the resumption of the treatment I was again relieved. For many years I could not hear ordinary conversation with my left ear, but with the use of the above treatment the hearing in that ear became normal.

It would be highly interesting to learn what explanation our specialists have to give for this phenomenon, and whether it can be utilized in the treatment of all cases of deafness, or whether it is only good for some special or particular cases. The habitual use of coffee does not appear to be harmful in my own case.

The dismissal of Miss Everitt as teacher by the Board of Education seems to be the beginning of another long drawn out suit, as it has been announced that Miss Everitt will appeal her case to State Board of Education. Should such be the case it is to be hoped that the Board will not be subjected to excessive counsel fees, as in the Fitch suit.

The act of an official of North Plainfield in felling twenty-five trees in front of a residence because the owner failed to clean up the leaves that littered the street was surely the limit of officialdom. If he received any satisfaction in destroying these beautiful shade trees, we fail to see it.

Matawan surely has one nervous person within its limits. This party says the striking of the town clock annoys him, and he has appealed to the courts to have its striking privileges stopped. The clock was installed in the M. E. Church as a memorial to the late E. I. Brown, and now the trustees of the church will be compelled to spend some money to defend the clock in striking the hour.

WINES CONVICTED OF ASSAULTING GUARD

James Wines, chief of guards at the plant of the Union Powder Works in Sayreville township, was convicted in county court at New Brunswick on Wednesday of assault and battery upon John Konecks, who had been employed at the plant on July 20 last as a helper to plumbers. The jury was out but a few minutes.

Assistant Prosecutor Coan conducted the State's case, and Edward Bowne, of South River, defended Wines. The State's witnesses were John Konecks, of Perth Amboy; Herbert Daly, of New Brunswick, and Edward Bullock, of Metuchen. All agreed that the assault was unprovoked and that the only explanation given by Wines for striking Konecks was that he "didn't like the grin on his face."

The witnesses said Konecks received a black eye, was hit in the ribs and kicked twice while on the ground. It was brought out that Konecks, with Daly and Bullock, endeavored to see the superintendent of the plant after the assault, but that Wines and his fellow guard prevented this by ordering them off the place.

The defendant admitted striking Konecks, but said there had been some trouble among the plumbers and their helpers about the employment of a non-union foreman, and that Konecks had called him a "strike-breaker," and had raised his hands in an attitude that made the defendant think Konecks was going to strike him, and he acted to protect himself.

James Comiskey, sergeant of guards under Mr. Wines, was the only other witness for the defense. He corroborated the story told by his chief. The jury was as follows: Hyman Weedon, Otto Wittenbert, Fred Woerner, Frank Hoffman, John Van Cleef, Nelson Stryker, Charles H. Davison, Christopher Jacobson, William T. Emmons, Harvey H. Hoffman, L. von Spreckelsen and W. W. Comegys.

Wines was recently charged with shooting a fellow guard at the plant and is now on bail on that charge.

GETS DUN, COMITS SUICIDE.

Having received a bill for $28 on Thursday, Julius Korn, proprietor of a grocery store and lunchroom in Palmer avenue, Keansburg, went upstairs and committed suicide by shooting.

The bill was from a German society and requested prompt payment. Mrs. Korn and the couple's daughter, Gertrude Korn, heard the shot and rushed upstairs. Dr. J. B. D. Silcox, who was nearby, also ran to the house, but Korn died ten minutes after he had sent a bullet through his temple. He was sixty-five years old. Mrs. Korn explained he had been worrying over financial troubles.

CELEBRATED TWENTY-FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fox celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Thanksgiving evening. Their residence on Highland street was tastfully decorated and a large number of relatives and friends were in attendance to honor those who had a quarter century ago became man and wife. The evening was spent in a very social way, games being the attraction for the younger folk and a musical program was provided that was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox were the recipients of a great number of handsome gifts, one room being set apart for the numerous presents of silverware, cut glass, furniture, etc., that were received. One of the gifts was a box containing a number of silver dollars.

The following attended the silver wedding celebration: Mr. and Mrs. Edward McKenna, Masters Floyd and Edward McKenna, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Tracy Dill, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Roddy, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McKenna and son of Matawan, Mrs. Sarah Ayres, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Broome, of Bradley Beach; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Grimshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Disbrow, Master William Boyce, Miss Zora Boyce, Mrs. C. Hendrickson, Miss Ella Hendrickson, Mrs. Peter Cassidy and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Ward, Mr. and Mrs. George Henne and family of Tottenville; and Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Munn, Mr. Jefferson Munn, Mr. and Mrs. John McKelvey, Master John McKelvey, Master Pierson McKelvey, all of Perth Amboy; and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Newman, Miss Blanch Bunting, Mr. Chas. Roddy, and Rev. W. H. Berlew, of this city.

ALARM FROM BOX 36.

Friday evening, November 26, the peaceful quiet of the city was disturbed by the sound of the fire alarm turned in from box 36. The excitement proved to be a small blaze in the business establishment of the late George Green. Fire extinguishers in the efficient hands of some of the firemen were sufficient to quench the blaze and but small damage was done.

The store is lighted with a gasoline vapor system and it seems that in closing the store one of the clerks started to turn off the lights. Turning the regulating valve the wrong way opened instead of closing it and caused an explosion.

Mrs. Green, the present proprietress of the business, was absent at the time and did not learn of the occurrence until her return. Suspension of business was not at all necessary.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY OF STEALING TIRES

On Friday, November 26, Joseph DeAngelis of Highland Park, entered a plea of not guilty in the county court before Judge Daly to an indictment charging him with receiving four rubber auto tubes, with rims and tires, knowing them to have been stolen. DeAngelis was represented by Freeman Woodbridge and bail was fixed at $500.

The property which DeAngelis is charged with receiving was stolen from the garage of Charles Safran, at South Amboy, on October 19, and Andrew Slover and George Keller were arraigned on an indictment charged with the larceny of the tubes. Through Leo J. Coakley they entered a plea of not guilty and bail was fixed at $500 each.

Slover and Kellner also pleaded not guilty to the larceny of one rubber auto shoe and cover, the property of William Stephenson, also of South Amboy. Bail in this case was fixed at $100 for each defendant.

AT FATHER'S FUNERAL MONDAY, FOUND DROWNED WEDNESDAY

Children playing about a brook near the home of Francis Woerner at Donhamtown Wednesday, discovered the body of Louis Rowland of Metuchen, fifty-six years old, lying in the brook which was but two feet deep. He was the son of the late Thompson E. Rowland of Metuchen, who was buried last Monday afternoon. Rowland attended the funeral and had not been seen since the interment of his father's body. It is thought he brooded over his father's death and wandering through the woods stumbled into the brook. Coroner J. V. Hubbard believes death was accidental. In Rowland's pockets a gold and silver watch were found and $40.

Rowland was the nephew of Dr. Rowland and a cousin of Edward Rowland of Metuchen. He made his home with B. Wittenbert in that borough.

BARR'S CHARGES ARE SUSTAINED.

(Continued from Page One.) offered a motion authorizing the committee to look into the question of filling the vacancy left by the dismissal of Miss Everitt and report at a subsequent meeting. This motion was the outcome of some discussion of the matter, Mr. Grace expressing the opinion that in securing the new teacher that the question of installing a domestic science course should be given consideration. Mr. Fulton, too, thought that the combination of drawing and sewing was a poor one. Others thought it would be well to have the teacher a special teacher entirely. Professor Barr advocated domestic training not only for the study itself but to even up the girls with the boys. The boys are now getting more than twice as much special teaching as the girls on account of the manual training course, etc. The consensus of opinion seemed to be in favor of the new course and it seems probable that it will eventually be installed. Mr. Barr expressed the opinion that very little difficulty would be experienced in filling the vacancy by the first of the new year.

Other business transacted by the board was the payment of a bill from Lambertson & Reese for work on School No. 1, for $204.27. This bill had been presented before but returned for tabulation. Authority was given the supply committee to procure some magazines recommended by the superintendent, the list including the Gregg Writer, a short-hand publication covering the system taught in the schools. At the suggestion of Mr. Mason half a dozen of these latter magazines were ordered instead of one as the magazine serves as an up-to-date text book and is extensively used by teachers in the presentation of the work.

The matter of a bursted tube or flue in one of the boilers in School No. 1 consumed quite a lot of time. The trouble referred to by Mr. Littlell at the last meeting in this respect had been found to be the result of a leaky flue. Opinions of mechanics had been sought as to what was the best course to pursue. The committee on buildings and grounds seemed to be in doubt as to whether plugging the flue would suffice or whether a new set of flues would be required. While the handling of the matter was left entirely in the hands of the committee the consensus of opinion seemed to favor the plugging of the bursted tube. Then, if any more gave way, it could be easily ascertained as to the necessity for an entire new set of tubes.

The full membership of the board was present at the meeting together with the secretary and the superintendent of schools. There was only a single representative of the interested public in attendance exclusive of the newspaper reporters.

A CHIMNEY FIRE.

Saturday afternoon the fire department was called out in answer to an alarm from Box 36 at the corner of Broadway and Augusta street. The fire proved to be only a blaze in the chimney of Chris Straub's residence on Broadway. A few minutes work by the fire ladders sufficed to extinguish the cause of all the excitement.

SENTENCES IMPOSED AS PENALTY FOR CRIMINAL ACTS

On Friday, November 26, Judge Daly imposed a term of not more than three years nor less than two years in State Prison upon Regina Albok, a Perth Amboy woman who was convicted recently of keeping a disorderly house. John Csontos, who was convicted with the woman, received a similar sentence.

Ex-Judge Cowenhoven, who defended the prisoners at their trial, made an eloquent plea for clemency, declaring that there had been a popular clamor against them and that the crime had been heralded as "white slavery" whereas the indictment charged nothing more serious than the keeping of a disorderly house.

In closing his plea, Mr. Cowenhoven referred to the words of the Savior, "Let him who is without sin throw the first stone," and Judge Daly remarked that this was the most heartening expression ever voiced but was not to be used mawkishly, because it came from divine lips.

The court said he was convinced that Christ never meant his words to apply to a woman who made money out of the sins of others. Judge Daly said he has the greatest sympathy for the fallen of either sex, but the remembrance of the testimony in this case was such as to so depress a man as to make him hardly able to use his faculties properly.

"Fully 90 per cent. of crimes are committed by those who have temptation offered to them, and in this case it was shown that the prisoners at the bar deliberately tempted others to sin, nevertheless the sentence to be imposed is measured from the heart as well as from the mind." The sentences as given above were then imposed.

Trio Sentenced for Highway Robbery

John Chismar, John Chaowski and Daniel Egri, who had pleaded non vult to an indictment charging highway robbery, were arraigned by Prosecutor Florance and an appeal for leniency was voiced by ex-Judge Cowenhoven. The men had held up and robbed Michael Kuchta on the outskirts of South Amboy on August 26 and relieved Kuchta of $21 in cash.

A sentence of not more than 15 years nor less than 5 years in State Prison was imposed upon Chaowski, but the court directed that an examination be made by County Physician Carroll and Dr. Laurence Runyon to determine the man's mental condition before the sentence is carried into effect. If the examination discloses that Chaowski should be sent to the State Hospital, the sentence will be reconsidered.

Chismar was sentenced to the Rahway Reformatory for a full term, and Egri was placed on probation for a full term. The latter had never been in trouble before, while Chismar is an old offender.

Thomas Zimmerman Fined.

A fine of $50 was imposed upon Thomas Zimmerman, who pleaded non vult to simple assault on Frank Johnson, the offense being committed in South River. Zimmerman was represented by Thomas H. Hagerty, who said his client was a conductor of the Public Service and had punched Johnson after a quarrel over the payment of a trolley fare.

More Haste, Less Speed For this Active Fireman

That the practice of turning in false fire alarms does not meet with very hearty commendation from the members of the fire department is a surety. That they may do a great deal of damage in more ways than one was very clearly demonstrated last Monday afternoon when the alarm rang out from box 41. There is a story going the rounds that tells of the experiences of at least one member of the department when he attempted to make good on his usual record in getting to fires.

Now, Nick is a member of one of the companies located in the Broadway fire house, and he is also an air inspector on the coal piers—and a pretty good one at that. As is well known to his friends, the welfare of his fire company occupies a prominent place in Nick's thoughts at all times. They, therefore, were not at all surprised to see him drop his tools and start at full speed for the fire house when the alarm began to sound its warning notes. Unfortunately, perhaps, he didn't much more than get fairly well started when he encountered an obstruction that came near being a regular Waterloo so far as going to the fire was concerned. In other words, he stubbed his toe on a brick or a hunk of coal or something else similar to that. Now a railroad track isn't as a usual thing considered to be very good walking, and it is, therefore, a vile place to stub one's toe, especially when one happens to be straining every muscle and sinew in an effort to put on still more speed. As a result of his stubbing his toe, Nick's equilibrium was sadly disturbed, in fact it was completely upset. Then, as a direct result of this, he, to use a slang phrase that admirably expresses the act, "hit the grit." Furthermore he not only "hit" it but he "ploughed" it up considerably. It is said that when he hit the ground there were ominous sounds that would indicate a severe disturbance of the right-of-way. Another version states that the ties were splintered with the force of the impact, that the rails were bent, and that for a moment the scene of the catastrophe was completely hidden by the clouds of cinders that flew in all directions. Of course it did not require the services of a derrick to repair the damage wrought by this accident, but it is a sure bet that the enthusiasm at first manifested was considerably dampened thereby and when it was learned that it was only another false alarm it is safe to say that chagrin was undoubtedly the most prominent emotion that struggled for expression.

JAIL NOT TO HIS LIKING,
SO POPP PAID FINE
John Popp of New Brunswick was arrested on complaint of Game Warden Charles Steuerwald, of this city, who charged that Popp allowed a dog to run through the woods and kill a wild rabbit on August 28. The man was brought before Justice Sedam, who imposed a fine of $20. Popp at first refused to pay the fine, and was committed to the county jail. Later he paid the fine and gained his freedom.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1914.

M. P. CHURCH NOTES

On account of a slight indisposition the pastor was deprived of the pleasure of prayer service last week, Mr. Fulton having entire charge. There was an extra large attendance, quite a few visitors, and a splendid meeting.

The service last Sunday morning found the usual congregation present when the pastor preached on the text found in St. John's Gospel 1, 6; "There was a man sent from God whose name was John." The theme was, "A Godly Man." Mrs. Edward English sang an appropriate solo.

A very nice attendance at the Junior C. E. at 2 p. m. The superintendent, Mrs. Peterson, was in charge. The topic was "Foreign Missions in India." The superintendent held the close attention of the children as she read and explained some very interesting incidents, stories and modes of living in India.

A Sunday School session with a great deal more than the ordinary interest was held last Sunday. 1st. There was an unusual study of the lesson, the parable of the ten Virgins. 2d. The extra number of visitors was a noticeable feature. 3rd. The delegates' report from the Middlesex County Sunday School convention was such a rich treat that the very spirit of revival seem to be prevalent. It has been some time since such a spirit has been manifested as last Sunday in the school. The result of reports means the attempt at starting a home class department in the school and other advancements in teaching, etc., has already been inaugurated to make the work more efficient. 4th. The thing that made it so interesting was the offering to the parsonage fund. We had asked for a certain amount and to the great surprise and joy of the school it was $12.62 more than we asked for. The total monthly collection was $32.63 making all told $358.39, the school has raised this conference year toward the parsonage indebtedness, besides other monies. There was also a very noticeable increase in the attendance.

A special meeting of the officers and teachers will be held next Sunday after Sunday School.

Mr. C. H. Berrien led the Senior C. E. service at 7 p. m. The topic on education was an appropriate one for this time of the year and ably discussed.

An extra large attendance of the choir Sunday evening added to the popularity of the song service which the choir conducted.

At 8 p. m. regular service, pastor preaching on Ps. 37, 23, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord and he delighteth in his way." A nice attendance and a number of visitors and a very spiritual service. A quartette consisting of Mr. Edward English and wife, Mr. Louis Clayton and Mrs. Marion Dill sang very beautifully "The Haven of his Breast." It was very impressive.

Several assessment cards with amount have been turned in. We hope for others in good time.

The Ushers' Association announced to meet at Mr. Jas. English's Wednesday evening. Business of importance.

The last quarterly conference of this conference year will be held Friday evening, September 25, at 8 o'clock. All members try and be present as it is of great importance.

The last quarterly meeting Sunday morning, September 27, at which time, baptism, holy communion and if any desire to join the church will be received. Any having children to be baptized or adults please be present.

After a suspense of several months due to vacation, hot weather, etc., the usual quilting by the Ladies' Aid was resumed this week and will be continued during the fall, winter and spring.

If you buy mail-order clothes for your daughter, don't be astonished if she elopes with a stranger.

SOME JOTTINGS COLLECTED BY OUR REPORTER WHILE GUNNING ABOUT THE CITY.

Wonder how Guerin likes his new job by this time?

Don't see where the Middlesex team manager made much improvement in the change he made in his eligible list lately. (Wappa vice Levondusky).

There must be pretty near enough "Maxeins" to make a ball team all by themselves?

Nick Tollis must be some football player from the head cracking he did last Monday afternoon.

The chief trouble with the teams in the South Shore League is their ability to get only half a team together at one and the same time. Well that being the case they shouldn't meet with so much trouble if they start to play basketball for that's the size they run around with nowadays.

We've never been able to figure out why a tennis player will almost invariably deliberately waste the first ball of the serve. They do it, and they also need that wasted ball might have had sometimes.

OUR BATTLESHIP MASTS.

Perilous Perches For Range Finders Strapped to Their Tops.

A smudge of smoke on the horizon, then two skeleton towers of steel lattice-work just above the sky line.

A battleship! A United States battleship!

Why? Because United States battleships are the only ones that have masts of latticed steel tubing—towers that look as if they were meant to train crimson number roses and a hundred or more feet high.

Fighting tops are obsolete in the United States navy. The men who occupy the nests at the top of the masts nowadays are unarmed. Their sole usefulness to the ship consists in finding the range for the gunners down below.

The towers are made of the latticed steel so they will remain upright although riddled with shots from an enemy's ship. Shells may pass through the network of tubing until every strand is severed and still the tower will stand.

The old style steel masts with a single support could be cut in two and sent crashing to the deck with a single shot from the enemy's gun. The new masts are used as wireless towers and for searchlights and signal platforms as well as for range finding.

The range finders, usually three men, pass canvas belts around themselves in action. Otherwise they might be thrown far aboard by some sudden lurch. The top of the "wastebasket" mast is like the lower end of a clock pendulum when it comes to swaying. The ship leans over just a foot or two maybe, the mast six or a dozen feet.

When the guns are firing below the concussion sets the steel tubes vibrating like a suspension bridge with a crowd crossing. Sometimes the vibration is so strong that the range finders can't work. Then the guns are stilled for a minute.—Kansas City Star.

New Moving Picture Effects.

Powerful are lights combined with newly designed moving picture apparatus are used in one of the London theaters to produce some wonderful effects. The characters are seen in life size, moving about without the use of any visible screen, so that they appear to act upon a real theater scene, which is lighted, as is customary in such cases. This remarkable result is brought about by optical combinations, which have as yet not been made public.

Adrianople Postage Stamps.

The Turkish government recently took an unusual way to celebrate its retention of the ancient city of Adrianople, the object of so much desperate fighting and bitter controversy during the Balkan war. It issued a special series of three postage stamps, each of which bore the word "Adrianople" and a picture of the famous mosque of Selim II. The stamps were used only one month and only in the Turkish empire.

Switzerland and Its Army.

Even little Switzerland is crying out against the increasing cost of the military arm of government. The total estimated revenue of Switzerland for 1914 is $20,000,000. The total estimated expenditure of the government is $21,085,000. By far the heaviest item of expenditure is the army, which calls for $9,150,000. Trade, industry and agriculture call for $3,375,000 and the home office for $3,225,000.

Try Commission Plan.

Two hundred cities in thirty-four states are reported to have adopted the commission form of government.

GRANDEUR OF ALASKA.

Bewildering Scenic Beauty of Our Frontier Wonderland.

Alaska should no longer be called "No Man's Land." Alaska is our frontier wonderland, and by united efforts we must make it the empire of the north. It is not Every Man's Land because it will not tolerate weaklings; but to the thoroughbred it will offer indescribable inducements. It is a territory unique in its geographical situation, in its climate, in its physical beauties. Point Barrow, its northernmost cape, is warmer than any point in the world as far north of the equator. Its southern shores are likewise warmer than any point in the world in similar latitudes during the winter months as the result of the influence of the Japan current.

Isothermal lines show that some of the southeastern sections have a climate more temperate and more equable than that of Washington. Its two climatic belts are known as the coast region and the interior. The coast region is rainy has mild winters and cool summers. The interior region is, for the most part, dry, has severe winters and short but warm summers. The immense quadrangle is divided into three zones by lofty mountains, which leave between them broad plains, through which the Yukon, with more than 2,000 miles of navigable waters and the Kuskokwim with 600, open up its vast interior.

Alaska can surpass all the scenic beauty boasted by Norway, Sweden and the Tyrol. Its mountains are higher than Mont Blanc; its glaciers dwarf the Mer de Glace. Unlike the glaciers of Switzerland, which are enclosed by inland valleys, the largest of the Alaska glaciers terminate on the ocean border or interior rivers, with towering fronts hundreds of feet in height and miles in width. Elsewhere, in sharp contrast, are the peace and silence of the rockbound firds, clad in green, with the snowy peaks of faroff mountains gleaming through the tree-tops on the sky line, pictures more beautiful than the Hudson or the Rhine can show.—Franklin K. Lane in New York Tribune.

AGASSIZ AND A HERRING.

And a Student Who Finally Succeeded in Making a Discovery.

A student enrolled in Agassiz's class. For several days Agassiz paid no attention to him whatever. At length, tired of standing around idle, the student asked Agassiz to give him something to do. Agassiz's reply was to hand him a herring and to say, "Study this." The student was bewildered, but set about "studying" it. The next day Agassiz asked him what he had learned about the herring. The student replied that it had two eyes, so many fins and such and such markings.

"No, no!" Agassiz cried. "Study it more. Those things are not important." The next day and the next the experience was repeated. The fourth day Agassiz again demanded information about the now rotting specimen. In a desperate attempt at humor the student replied, "Well, it's the same on both sides."

"That's it!" shouted Agassiz. "That's it! A starfish isn't the same on both sides, an oyster isn't, thousands of specimens of the sea are not. When you find one that is, you've found a starting point in a new stage in the evolution of life."

Obviously, that student learned more from that one lesson about the scientific method of study than he would have learned in a year's reading and lectures. The textbooks would have taught him the facts; Agassiz taught him the method of learning all facts.—World's Work.

The hall in the Rijks museum, in Amsterdam, which contains Rembrandt's "The Night Watch," painted in 1642, was specially built to hold the picture that the lighting might be as perfect as possible. The picture is always lighted, the hall always dark. Originally the picture was arranged badly as to light and space. When, in 1715, it was transferred from the Doelen to the town hall it was made to fit into its new position by having strips cut off the canvas on either side and off the top, which destroyed the balance.

Had to Be.

Little five-year-old Bessie was telling about some medicine she had taken while ill.

"Yes," she said, "I took some compulsion of cod liver oil, and"—

"You mean emulsion, don't you, dear—not compulsion?" said the visitor.

"Well," rejoined Bessie, "there was a good deal of compulsion about it!"—Pittsburgh Press.

Unsympathetic.

"Willie," whispered auntie in the street car, "why don't you get up and give your seat to your father? Doesn't it pain you to see him reaching for the strap?"

"Not in a car," responded the youngster, settling back comfortably in his seat.—People's Home Journal.

Laughs First.

"What makes you begin to laugh every time you see me?" asked Mr. Groucher.

"I'm taking time by the forelock," replied his wife. "I know there won't be a chance in the world for me to laugh after I have talked with you for five minutes."—Washington Star.

On a High Horse.

Howell—He's usually on his high horse. Powell—Yes; he is a sort of equestrian statue of himself.—New York Times.

For the Children

Every year at Asbury Park, that delightful beach on New Jersey's shore, is given a baby parade. This baby parade is the main feature of the season's jubileations and is witnessed by thousands. People from all parts of the country make it a point to be present at Asbury Park's baby parade, and they are always repaid for their journey. Hundreds of prizes are given in a great number of classes, but perhaps the most interesting exhibits are those dressed in burlesque costumes. The first prize winner this year was Ralph B. Moore of New York city. Ralph is four years old and was represented as a war veteran who had seen hard times. The present war in Europe no doubt induced Ralph's parents to present him as a war worn soldier. "After the War" his makeup was called. While his costume was a burlesque, it is said to think that it very nearly approached the appearance of many real soldiers now in Europe. Little folks happily do not know much about the horrors of warfare.

Game of Initials.

This is a jolly game, requires no preparation and makes lots of fun. The guests sit in a circle around the room. One sits in a revolving chair in the center of the circle so that he can easily face any one in the room.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he begins, "I am here for criticism, advice and condemnation. I am not sensitive and it doesn't matter what I get, but the principal words of your answers must begin with my initials, J. C. P." Turning to the first player, he says: "What sort of a chap am I?"

"Jaunty, careless and fresh," might be answered.

To the next one he asks, "What sort of a wife ought I to have?"

"Jolly, crisp and flirty," would be a rather appalling description. Questions and answers might go on somewhat after this fashion:

Q. "What ought I to eat?"

A. "Jam, custard and fish."

Q. "What profession am I best fitted for?"

A. "Janitor, carpenter or fisherman."

Q. "What other business would I succeed in?"

A. "Judge, commercial lawyer or financier."

And so on as long as questions and answers can be thought of. When a person fails to make an answer he must change places with the questioner and give his own initials, then proceed to ask questions about himself.

No question is allowed on any other subject or about any one else. Two minutes may be allowed for thinking of an answer, but it is more fun to answer quickly and keep the game lively.

A Spanish Game.

The "gate of Alcalá," a favorite game among the children of Spain, is much like "London bridge." "Moon and the morning stars" is their game of tag. One child is chosen for the moon and has to stay within the shadow. The other children, who are the stars, have to stay only where it is light. If the moon catches a child in the forbidden shadow the child takes the place of the moon. Then as the stars dance and run around in and out of the shadow they sing:

Oh, the moon and the morning stars!
Oh, the moon and the morning stars!
Who dares to tread, oh,
Within the shadow?

Phonetic Word Building.

Outside I heard a gentle —, and, laying down my —, I called up to my brother — and said, "I'll need some help from —." He laughingly said, "O —" and ran down and stood the post — (the whole word).

Answer.—Purr, pen, Dick, you, perpendicular.

Luck, Pluck.

"I wish you good luck," is no word to say.
"I wish you good pluck" is better. For pluck means more in every way than just an additional letter.

It is good to believe in your luck, I know; it is bad to be thought unlucky; but the best of luck for us folk below is the habit of being plucky.

You can turn your luck if you have the pluck.
You can conquer the ill that shakes it. So I will not stop at a wish for luck. But here's to your pluck that makes it! —St. Nicholas.

Grand Opera House.

Julian Eltinge will appear in his new production "The Crinoline Girl" at the Grand Opera House, New York City, for a week's engagement, commencing Monday, September 21. The new medium for Mr. Eltinge's unique talents is a farce comedy full of cleverly conceived melodramatic situations. The book is by Otto Hauerbach author of a number of successes including "Madame Sherry" and "The Fascinating Widow." The lyrics are Mr. Eltinge's own and the music is by Percy Wenrich.

The plot of "The Crinoline Girl"—which by the way had a long successful run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York, deals with the haps and mishaps of a rich young American in Switzerland, Tom Hale by name, the role taken by Mr. Eltinge. Tom has the misfortune to become entangled with a fascinating Parisian dancer, and when word of this reaches the ear of his future father-in-law the latter gentleman decrees that Tom must either earn $10,000 unaided or else relinquish his engagement to Dorothy. Diamond thieves, have been making great headway at fashionable affairs and a reward of $20,000 has been offered for their capture.

Tom, by disguising himself as a girl, succeeds in running the thieves to earth; after a series of exciting amusing, laughable and melodramatic situations.

Mr. Eltinge is surrounded by the same cast which aided in his Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, success and which includes Jeanne Engels, Edward Garvie, James C. Spotswood, Charles P. Morrison, Joseph Smith-Marba, Herbert McKenzie, Walter Horton, Lottie Lithcum and Corriene Barker. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Prices will remain as usual; Evenings 25c to $1.00; Wednesday matinee 25c and 50c; Saturday matinee 25c, 50c and 75c; no higher.

VARIETY IN DIET.

The varied diet that most Americans indulge in—meats, vegetables, fruits—usually supplies the needs of the system, and it is well to adhere to a variety of foods; but the proper elements are commonly attained by guess and chance rather than knowledge. A good deal is said in these modern days about the chemistry of foods and a balanced ration, but it is talk wasted on the multitude. It is useless to talk about food values in the term of "units" or "calories" or other technical terms. What people need to be taught is the nature of the various foods in language they can understand. If a housewife is taught that she is laying the foundation for indigestion when she serves three or four kinds of starchy foods at a meal—bread, potatoes, rice or spaghetti, perhaps a cornstarch pudding for dessert; such combinations are known—it would be more to the purpose than to teach her how to mix a salad dressing or "garish" a dish of scrambled eggs. If she is told that meats are not necessary three times a day and may cause injury to any but men engaged in physical labor, it will be more to the point than to discourse to her on the heat units of animal food.

The man who crosses a street at any other place than the intersection of another street does so at his peril. This is a fact that should be understood in this age of quick moving vehicles. The drivers of these vehicles have the right to the road in the middle of the block as against pedestrians. But at the regular crossings pedestrians have rights, and it behooves the people in charge of automobiles and other vehicles to observe them. It is suspicious for harm to come to a pedestrian crossing a street at the intersection of another street from an automobile or a motorcycle that was half a block away when he left the sidewalk on one side of the street to make the journey across the roadway. Pedestrians have rights as well as vehicles. The people in charge of the vehicles as well as the pedestrians should make it a business to "take care."

EMBROIDERY WORKS

JUMP TO THE LEAD

Outbit and outplayed in every way the Y. M. C. A. team went down to defeat at the hands of the Middlesex Embroidery Works team in last Saturday's game on Star Field. By their winning this game the South Riverites have established their claim to the leadership and practically the championship, of the South Shore League beyond all question of doubt. By losing this game the local team is relegated from the leadership they have thus far held to second position in the league standing.

Heck pitched for the needle workers and pitched a good game all through, allowing but few hits and those almost too widely scattered to be particularly dangerous. He was also very effective in the tight places and pulled out of a couple of these pinches in the earlier stages of the game. His team played good ball behind him and clearly showed which was the better team. From every standpoint the winners of last Saturday's game certainly deserved it for they were easily the best team of the two.

Cliver started the game for the locals and for the first five innings his servings were all that could be desired. He held the needle workers to three runs and had things looking particularly bright for the association boys. In the sixth inning the slaughter began and things began to happen too fast for the scorers to keep tally on. Out of the three scorekeepers no two of them agreed as to the final score but there is no question as to who won the game. The result was all too evident.

Another pitcher should have been sent to the rescue after the end of the sixth inning but Cliver went back again in the seventh and met with precisely the same reception that was tendered to him in the sixth—namely four runs. Magee went in the eighth and held the South River team down in fair shape for that one frame but in the next inning he was no more effective against the heavy end of the other team's batting list than his predecessor was. Once again the visitors landed hard on the ball and more runs were piled up against the already all too sufficient total.

There is some tendency to blame the loss of the game on the team but they are hardly responsible in the full sense of the word. Of course they failed to hit to any great extent compared with the other team's hitting but under ordinary circumstances their hitting would have been good enough. The team has won before now on less hits than they got last Saturday. Again it is said that the team went to pieces and lost the game on infield errors. Here it will be remembered that the team played pretty good ball up to the time that the pitcher began to get pounded all over the lot and that even then they didn't actually make errors to any great extent. On the whole the loss seems to rest almost wholly on the pitching staff and upon misplays that were made in abundance. That different ones of the players missed chances that they should have handled there can be no doubt. Some of the positions were filled by players who were chiefly ornamental and these could not help but contribute to the demoralization once it started.

It is extremely difficult for the local team to put their regular lineup on the field for every game and the arbitrary decisions of the league's heads handicap them to a great extent in using substitutes. If the local team loses the championship that they have held undisputed all season, and it now seems likely that they will, the blame will probably rest almost entirely upon the board of managers.

The local team are capable of putting stronger lineup on the diamond. Manaker and Hardy would fill up a couple of very weak spots and the team then should be able to defeat the needle workers or any of the other teams. There remains a slim chance of the Association winning the championship. If they can win all their remaining games, and this included defeating the Middlesex team, they will just tie with the Middlesex people provided that they, the needle workers, win all but one of their games with the other teams. The Powder Works team is confident of its ability to defeat the Middlesex team the first time they meet and if they can and do this and the local team win all their games the championship cup will then rest in the office of the secretary of the Association along with the bowling trophy and the tennis nets.

CANCELLED GAME.

The Sayre & Fisher team was scheduled to play the Herman-Aukam team on Saturday.

but the game was postponed. It seems that the former team could not get enough off duty to put a team on the diamond and they were also short a pitcher. So the two managers got together and decided to cancel the game. Some of those who were able to get off were down to see the Y. M. C. A.-Middlesex game on Star Field.

GAMES FOR SATURDAY.

The local South Shore League attraction this week will be the local Terra Cotta team against the South River Herman-Aukam team. The latter team is now occupying the cellar position in the team standing with the former putting up a game scrap to keep them there and thus keep out of that place themselves.

At Sayreville the Sayre & Fisher combine will have a tussle with the local Y. M. C. A. team. The last time that these two teams came to blows the local team met with defeat, the first time in their schedule at that. Whether the brickmakers will be able to repeat the performance remains to be seen but it is likely that after the trouncing that the Association boys got last Saturday they will be out after revenge and incidentally all of the remaining games of their schedule.

It is up at South River that the real crisis will take place. Here the Middlesex Embroidery Works are scheduled to meet the I. S. P. & C. Co. team from Parlin. Both teams are grimly determined to win the game for the winning means a great deal to both teams. In the case of the needle makers it virtually means a tight clinch on the championship while to the other team it means a chance to finish in second place at least and maybe a little more. That an interesting game should result is evident.

This Saturday's games completes the scheduled dates but the required number of games have not been played. It is likely that from this time out the teams will arrange to play off their postponed games if necessary to decide the ultimate result, according to convenience.

TENNIS AT Y. M. C. A.

The tennis courts down at the Y. M. C. A. are becoming a very popular place to spend an afternoon these days. A couple of years ago the courts were seldom used for anything. Last year a little interest was displayed in the game but this year the game has come into its own. Almost every afternoon the courts are filled with players and all varieties of the game are to be enjoyed. Tournaments of various kinds have been arranged and the players divided into classes, etc. The first class men give the second class players a ten point handicap when they play against each other. Others are given only a five point handicap. Holmes Cliver is the only one of the first class men that has been able to win from the second class players with this ten point handicap. Shinn is another player that is taking a great deal of the honors of the game. He is classed as a second class man at present but is making rapid progress toward the first class position. He is given only a five point handicap when meeting any of the first class players and he gives a good account of himself against them. Against the other second class men he gives a five point handicap and remains unbeaten by the second players although his challenge is open to all the second class players. It is said that he has the art of cutting developed to a point where he is practically invulnerable.

The ladies are also deeply interested in this form of sport. They have organized a series of tournaments and almost every afternoon is devoted to playing out the matches. The players come for the most part from the high school. Miss Francis Perrine is taking all honors in the ladies tournament but she is being closely pressed by Miss Catherine Himmelberger for the first place honors.

Banty Cliver is now practically the champion of the tennis club but is being closely pressed by some of the others. The games are quite interesting and usually a fair quota of on-lookers will be found on hand to witness the performances of the players.

FOOTBALL NEXT SATURDAY.

The High School boys are preparing to get on the gridiron in great style again this year. Already they are getting together a team for their first game which is to be played at Metuchen on next Saturday. The team is a little light but they are showing fair prospects as to their ability.

Last Monday a scrub team was knocked together from the Y. M. C.

A. and a game pulled off on Stevensdale. The Association team was by far the heavier of the two and had little trouble in walking off with the game. Dowdell, Shinn, Neilson, Worthley, Tollis, Snock, Roberts, Capner, C. Shinn and Bloodgood comprised the team that played against the high school lads while Thorpe, Scully, Fox, Nelson, Shaw, White, Dill, Hardy, James, Lewis and Behn made up the high school team.

Under the coaching of the new principal, Prof. Hendrickson, the team expects to make good progress. Capner, Craig, Behn, James and Hardy are promising candidates for the backfield next Saturday and the others already named will probably be used in the game also.

DECISION OF THE SOUTH SHORE LOWERS STANDING OF Y. M. C. A.

The directors of the South Shore Industrial League held a meeting in Sayreville last Monday evening and made a decision against the local Y. M. C. A. team that will make their already slim chances of winning the championship much slimmer. The game between the Sayre & Fisher combination and the local team at Sayreville was awarded to the Sayreville team in spite of protestation of the local club. The directors are said to have based their decision on the fact that the local team admitted that even if the Sayre & Fisher team had shown up they would have been unable to play the game because they lacked a complete lineup. The game was the one about a month ago when the local team went to Sayreville and found no team there to meet them. They claim that they waited around quite awhile and no one showed up so they concluded that there was to be no game and hence came home again. The Sayre & Fisher people claim that the reason they were not on hand at the usual time was because the men had to work a little later than usual and that they had gone to the field immediately after getting off and had found no one there. Then they waited the regular time and then placed their men and declared the game forfeited. Then they went on and had a scrub practice game to fill in the afternoon. The awarding of this game to the S. & F. team makes one more hill for the local team to climb on their way to the top of the heap.

Another protested game came in for investigation and decision. This was the game that was to have been played between the Middlesex Embroidery Works and the local Terra Cotta team on Labor Day. Here the dispute was settled by deciding that the game should be played over. The directors agreed that this game was misunderstood and that their decision was therefore fair. It seems that local team had gone to the field in the morning expecting the needle workers down to play the game. They didn't show up at all during the morning so the clay moulders went home under the impression that the needle workers had forfeited the game. Then in the afternoon the needle workers came down to Star Field in full force and waited around all the afternoon for the Terra Cotta team which did not show up at all. Then they too went home under the impression that they had gotten credit for the game by forfeit. The game will be arranged later on in the season—(if a snow storm does not interfere).

The matter of the money in the treasury was taken up and it was decided to hold it over for next year's league. There was more money in the treasury than was needed to meet the expenses of the league so it was at first thought that a second prize should be provided. The recent fall of the Y. M. C. A. team from their exalted position at the head of the league relieves the league officials from this necessity and the teams will now have to be content with a single prize. It is also evident that the existence of the South Shore League next year is taken for granted although the money may be used in getting a basketball league upon its feet. This latter proposition was taken up and discussed at some length but they finally decided to settle the baseball business before considering any other athletic events.

POWDER WORKS TEAM

DEFEAT TERRA COTTA

In a very loosely played game the International Smokeless Powder and Chemical Company (to give them their full title) team won from the local Terra Cotta team by a score of 20 to 15 up at Sayreville last Saturday. Both pitchers were hit very hard at times during the progress of the game but Hackett was a shade the better in pulling out of pinches. At one time he retired the other side with three strikeouts when the bases were fully populated.

The local team made most of their runs in the first and second innings before Hackett tightened up. In the first inning the Terra Cotta boys netted three runs. In the next inning they pounded the powdermaker's pride for eight more. Then the censorship became firmly established and they were successful in getting only four more runs during the entire game.

Bill Grover was on the firing line of the local team and was pounded hard all during the game. He also received a rather poor brand of support from his team mates.

Wiski and Geant were the stars with the stick, the former batting out a homer and the latter a triple. Kaboskey did some pretty good work too. He played a couple of the fielding positions and in addition scored three runs without getting a single hit.

SPORTING NOTES.

For the first time in some time our standing of the teams includes all the games that should be accredited to the various teams. All the awarded, forfeited, lost or won games are now properly credited and the standing is now strictly up to date in every particular.

The Hermann-Aukam team and the local Terra Cotta team are figuring on staging a double header on Star Field this Saturday.

The Middlesex Embroidery works team have dropped the name of Levondusky from their list of eligible players and have substituted that of John Wappa.

The directors have decreed that the Sayre & Fisher team and the I. S. P. & C. Co. teams shall play a double header on September 26—that's next Saturday.

The Powder Works manager has dropped the name of Ollie Johnson from his eligible list of players and has substituted Ronald Maxein.

A great deal of enthusiasm was shown over the prospect for a South Shore Basketball League at the meeting the other night. This has been under consideration for some time past and there are good prospects for its inauguration as soon as the baseball question is permanently settled.

RESULTS OF SATURDAY'S GAMES.

At Star Field—Middlesex Embroidery Co. 15; Y. M. C. A. 6.
At Sayreville—I. S. P. & C. Co., 20; S. A. Terra Cotta 15.
At South River—Sayre & Fisher-Herman-Aukam game postponed.

Quite a lot of excitement was created in Mechanicsville last Sunday by the appearance of the water wagon doing business wetting the streets. Old residents claim that it was the first time they had ever seen the wagon up in their vicinity and some of them had lived there for thirty years, more or less, at that.
Miss Katherine O'Brien of this city has made rapid strides since she graduated as trained nurse from St. Joseph's Hospital, at Philadelphia. Since her graduation in June she has been very successful, and last week she accepted a position as assistant head nurse in the Sisters' Hospital, at Waterville, Maine, one of the best hospitals in that State.
John Slusarsky, Thomas Schultz and Michael Kalulzy, boys of about 16 years, were arranged before Justice Mason Wednesday evening, charged by officer Keenan with taking coal from cars on the Pennsylvania railroad. From the evidence it was learned that the boys did not attend school nor work. They were held for the juvenile court at New Brunswick.
To-morrow (Sunday) the Central Railroad of New Jersey will run an excursion to West Point and Newburgh, leaving this city at 8.30 a. m. by train to Jersey City and there to connect with the steamer "Sandy Hook." This is the most charming time of the year to take a sail up the beautiful Hudson. Music on steamer by military band. Fare from this city $1.15; children 60c.
Last Tuesday afternoon there was a meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. Church, held at the home of Mrs. Addison Thompson, of Main street. A large attendance was on hand and the society has evidently started the year in a very flourishing condition. Preparations have been made for the fall work and the plans discussed. A vote of thanks was tendered to Messrs. Morganson and Gumminger for the fine work they did in enlarging the kitchen department in the basement of the M. E. church. The church has now one of the best equipped kitchens to be found anywhere.
The Epworth League meetings in the M. E. Church have been changed to Friday afternoon at the same time as heretofore instead of Thursday. Many prominent people in this church will henceforth assist at the meetings and it is expected that the affairs of this branch of church work will move splendidly from this time out.

HORSE KILLED BY AUTO.
Max Pensler, of John street, lost a horse as the result of an accident on the drawbridge between this city and Perth Amboy early Thursday morning. It is reported that the wagon was passing another team going toward Perth Amboy when a big auto truck crashed into the rig and knocked the horse down and broke his front legs. The truck was stopped before it ran over the wagon, but the horse had to be shot on account of its legs being broken. The dense fog was chiefly responsible for the accident as it was impossible to see more than a few feet. The truck belonged to Poots & Knuffmann, of Perth Amboy. Pensler was on his way to Perth Amboy to make his regular morning delivery when the accident happened at 6.40 o'clock. The horse was shot by an officer from Perth Amboy, who was dispatched to the scene for that purpose.

MISS REHUFUS SURPRISED.
A surprise party was held last Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rehufus of Broadway, in honor of their daughter, Charlotta, who left on Monday to resume her studies at the State Normal School at Trenton.

The evening hours were whiled away in an enjoyable manner, musical selections and other features of entertainment having been provided for the amusement of the guests. At a late hour the guests assembled in the dining room which was tastefully decorated, where refreshments were served in a bountiful manner. Before the departure of the guests, Mr. H. Cottrell, representing the guests, presented the hostess with a substantial check, thus showing their appreciation of Miss Charlotta's friendship. There were guests present from Staten Island, Old Bridge, Pleasant Plains, Trenton, Morgan Heights, Totenville and South Amboy. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the hostess every success for the coming school year.

SURPRISE PARTY.
A number of local young people got together last Wednesday evening and called upon John Cosgrove, of John street, and rendered a surprise party in his honor. During the progress of the evening much pleasure was enjoyed by those who attended. Time passed very quickly and almost before they realized it the hour had grown quite late. The affair was very much enlivened by music rendered most auspiciously by Miss Davline, Miss Dwyer and Miss Borlund. Refreshments were served during the course of the evening's entertainment. At a late hour the guests departed to their homes agreeing that a most enjoyable time had been spent. Among the guests were the following: Miss Amelia Borlund, Miss Catherine Hickey, Miss Mary Hickey, Miss Clara Kane, Miss Helen Dooling, Miss Dorothy Dwyer, Miss Mary Lenahan, Miss Marion Sullivan, Miss Marie Coakley, Messrs. Christopher McDonald, John Cosgrove, Francis Minnick, George Sullivan, William O'Toole, Laurence Smith and James Manion.

Reports from the railroad say that a certain engineer lost his false teeth one night last week and didn't miss them for some hours afterwards. When he did miss them he started prowling around the yards with a torch searching for his precious molars. Fortunately, perhaps, they were found and a probable hunger strike thus narrowly averted.

If there are any persons interested in street improvements it should be the property owners on said street improved. But they do not seem to wake up until a bill is sent them. Notice is given by the Commissioners of Assessment for all persons to appear and look over their reports and present their objections, if any. This is the proper time and place to make objections, and when presented later causes all kinds of trouble for the committee on streets.

There are five candidates running for nomination for Assembly on the Democratic ticket, and the three who get the highest votes will be placed on the fall ballot. Among them is Charles T. Grace, of this city, therefore a vote at the primary for him may give South Amboy representation at Trenton this winter.

MRS. MARTHA NELSON.

Mrs. Martha Nelson passed away at her home on Lousia street on Monday evening last at the age of 65 years. She is survived by three children.

Funeral service was held from Doane Memorial Chapel on Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. H. M. P. Pearce, of Elizabeth, officiating. Interment was made in Christ Church cemetery. Stillwell & Mason were funeral directors.

W. C. T. U. ELECT OFFICERS.

The W. C. T. U. held a meeting in the M. E. Church last Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was devoted chiefly to reorganization purposes and little business was otherwise transacted. Plans for the fall work were discussed and prospects for the year looked very favorable.

Mrs. Harry Ware was re-elected as president and Mrs. Charles Pearce secretary. Miss Mary Gumminger was selected as assistant secretary and Mrs. J. E. Shaw as corresponding secretary. Mrs. Harry Stratton was elected treasurer and Mrs. John Perkins to handle the floral decorations.

GROVER-SUSENBACH.

Miss Margaret Susenbach and Charles Grover, both of this city, were united in marriage last Monday evening at the parsonage of the M. E. Church, by Rev. J. E. Shaw. Miss Mary Grover, a sister of the groom, attended the young couple.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. N. W. Dayton, on Bordentown avenue. At the reception the following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. Granville Magee, of Old Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. C. Cornell and son Raymond, of Jersey City; Miss M. Hansen, of Perth Amboy; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hardy; Mr. and Mrs. George Glick; Mrs. M. Leary; Miss Helen Glick; Miss Virginia Hardy; Master George Glick; Raymond Pierson; and Miss Pearl Grover, all of this city.

TROLLEY CAR HITS AUTO.

Charles Safran had a close call from fatal injury on Wednesday. He was running his automobile out of his garage on Washington avenue, when a P. S. C. trolley car coming from New Brunswick struck it and turned it completely around, and badly damaged it. The trolley car was running at high speed, and came so quickly that it was impossible for Mr. Safran to prevent his car from being struck. He was fortunate in escaping serious injury.

JOSEPH PIPPETT BADLY INJURED

That Joseph Pippett of this city is alive to-day seems almost miraculous considering the accident he met with. He is a fireman on the Lehigh Valley Railroad and as his train was going toward Easton about 11 o'clock Saturday night the coupling pin that connects the engine to the tender broke as he was standing on the pan, and he was precipitated to the track below. He was rushed with all possible speed to the Allentown Hospital, where his injuries were attended to. He was severely cut about the head and one arm and a finger was broken and besides he was badly bruised all over his body. From latest reports he is improving rapidly and will recover.

MAYOR ISSUES SPECIAL MESSAGE

should be at once made known; but if you do not know of anything that is an improvement upon present plans, then I am persuaded that the present plan should be adopted without any further delay. In that case I think the council should promptly re-consider the action of last week, and unanimously approve the course suggested, as being the best that is in our power to do.

Very respectfully,
WM. S. DEY,
Mayor.

Immediately after the conclusion of the reading of the above message by the clerk at Council meeting last Tuesday evening, Councilman Chevallier offered a motion to the effect that it be received and spread upon the minutes in full.

Councilman Stanton stated that his position in voting against the former resolution was not a matter of politics with him, that he had nothing to gain or lose, that he had a right to his own opinion the same as any other member of the council. He said that he tried at all times to something that was blindly gone into. In casting his vote and particularly in the disposition of money. "My action is not any political game. I am not playing any game at all either in the primary or the election. I have been chosen by the people of this particular ward to represent them and I am going to do what is just to them. If my opinion does not agree with yours, it is my own and I should have my opinion the same as you should have yours."

Mr. O'Connor then told the body that they had played with the matter since the first of January last until the present time, notwithstanding that the necessity of a new bridge was of vital importance not only to the railroad but also the people living in the immediate vicinity. He said that if the street was twenty feet wide he wanted to know it, and if it was wider then he also wanted to know that, but that he was not going to vote to spend the public money for serve the best interests of the city. He felt that the railroad company was anxious to build this bridge and had been for the last six or eight months, but that the council had carried the matter along longer than they should have. The railroad built a bridge on Main street in a month and now there was a bridge there that was suitable for the travel. Now you want to purchase property to widen the street. The engineer does not know the width of the street at that point. If the engineer does not know what it is you have spent money enough to get some engineer that would be able to tell about it and thus settle the matter forever.

Mr. Stratton replied by saying that there had been no juggling on this street, that a fair piece of work had been done by every man who had been in touch with the affair. "Your former engineer of this city," said he, "is on record here that he cannot find but thirty-three feet of the street at that point. There has been every means possible placed forth to receive from these engineers the width of that street and it is impossible, and this city is compelled to give to those people a line whereby they may build this bridge. And I believe it is the duty of this body to give them the lines. Up on Main street the line was clear. The width of that street was fifty feet and there was absolutely no question. The railroad company said 'we will give you fifty feet and that will be the width of the street. But under no consideration can you get fifty feet on Washington avenue. The council does not care to spend the people's money and they have not spent any except in an upright and honest manner.  But this bridge must be built as it is a necessity and it is necessary that this body give to the railroad company a line whereby to build the bridge. If it is necessary to buy the land we will buy it and if not we will not. I hope no gentleman in the audience will misunderstand me. I am not here to spend the people's money, I am here to serve in the best interests for the city."

Mr. O'Connor then asked if the engineer was employed by the city at the time he gave this opinion, and if he would be foolish enough to give his time to the council after the way in which they had treated him. He also stated that if their engineer was unable to give the lines he was not prepared to vote so that they would get on the lines of the property owners of the opposite side of the street.

Mr. Slover stated that as chairman of the streets he had been told by Mr. Mason personally that he could not find more than thirty feet. To his Mr. O'Connor replied that Mr. Mason had advised him that the street was forty-nine feet and six inches in width.

Here the president interposed with the remark that the body at present had an engineer fully qualified to take care of the situation and that Mr. Mason would not be asked for his opinion on the subject.

After some further discussion on the matter it was put to a vote and the motion carried, Messrs. Stanton and O'Connor voting against.

THOS. DEATS GET FIRE HOUSE CONTRACT.

hundred and fifty dollars. Councilman Stanton stated that he was going to object to this on the ground that the city should not purchase this piece of ground for this sum.

The matter was put to a vote and the roll call taken. Messrs. Stanton and O'Connor voted against the adoption of the resolution and the other members of the body voted in the affirmative. The president accordingly declared the resolution adopted.

Another resolution introduced by Councilman Slover provided for the reduction of a John street improvement note by five hundred dollars and for a renewal of another for the balance of two thousand five hundred dollars. It was also adopted.

The report of the collector covering receipts from August 29 to Sept. 12 was read as follows: Receipts of taxes for 1913, $67.43; John street curbing, $143.98; flagging for same, $49.32; Stevens avenue improvement, $793.81; petty licenses, $51.00; dog licenses, $7.00; petty fines, $10.00; water account, $277.72 or a total of $1,400.26. He also stated in an attached communication that the sum of $4,844.40 had been received on Tuesday for the Stevens avenue improvement account and turned over the same day. The reports were received and filed.

Councilman O'Connor brought up the question of providing a new fire house for the companies that are at present located on Broadway by the introduction of a resolution to the effect that the fire committee be authorized to have plans drawn for a fire house. The resolution called attention to the fact that an amount of money had been raised for this purpose in 1912, but that the people had never received any benefit from this money.

Councilman Chevallier asked if that question wasn't brought up some time ago, and if so, what had become of the matter?

Mr. Stratton stated that the property they had under consideration had no clear title and that the others were too high priced, but that they had the matter still under advisement and hoped to induce the owners to come down on the price they were asking.

Mr. Stratton stated that the committee had been considering the matter all along and that they had several sites in view. Some were very high as to price, while others which were not were hardly suitable for a fire house. He cited one instance where they could get couple of lots for the payment of a single dollar as the owner was perfectly willing to donate them to the city for fire house purpose.

The resolution came to vote and was lost, Messrs. Chevallier, Slover and Stratton voting against the adoption.

Councilman Stanton offered a motion to the effect that the street committee be authorized to ascertain the proper grade on Fourth street between Feltus street and Stevens avenue. He stated in qualification that there were some people desirous of building homes on that street, but would first like to know the proper grade of the street. The matter was referred to the street committee with power to instruct the city engineer to provide for the proper grading if grade lines did not already exist.

The treasurer's report being read showed the following balances on hand: General account, $371.28; water department account, $2,355.08; sanitary sewer account, $4,818.32; Broadway improvement account, $527.89. The report was received and filed and adjournment was then in order.

ing a train of four cars. At the station many friends in this city gathered, and accompanied the body to St. Mary's Church, where a service of eulogy was held, and the body viewed by friends. The large church was filled to its capacity. Father P. J. Petri, of Atlantic City, made a few remarks, speaking in highest terms of Father Miller as a priest, citizen and friend. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery. J. J. Higgins, of Plainfield, was the funeral director, being assisted in this city by J. Lee Thompson.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETING.

The annual church meeting of the Methodist Protestant Church was held on Thursday evening after prayer service. There was a good attendance. J. F. Fulton was selected as class leader and Ezra Clayton, assistant, for the coming year. The old board of stewards was re-elected. P. Jorgensen was elected delegate and J. J. Fulton, alternate, to the Annual conference at Atlantic City next month. The delegates were properly instructed as to the pastor for next year.

CHRIST CHURCH CHRONICLES.

The Girls' Friendly Society will hold its first meeting for the autumn season in the Parish House on next Monday night at 7.30. It would give a fine impetus to the work of this splendid organization to have every one of the hundred members present at this first meeting.

The Associates of the Girls' Friendly Society are summoned to meet in the Parish House on next Tuesday afternoon, at 3.45, for the purpose of electing a Branch Secretary.

The date set apart for the Parish Social and Supper is not Tuesday (as erroneously announced in our last issue), but Thursday night, October 8, a little less than three weeks hence. Every loyal member of the Parish will see to it that nothing else engages his or her attention for that evening. With regard to the bill of fare, we are informed that oysters prepared in divers and sundry fashions, are to be the "piece de resistance," but for those whose palates the succulent bivalve cannot tickle, some other satisfying menu will be prepared. It is probable also that some music and other special features of entertainment will be provided to lend attractiveness to the social side of the evening's enjoyment.

The Executive Committee of the newly-organized St. Martha's Guild held an enthusiastic meeting in the Parish House on last Monday afternoon, and it was decided to call a special meeting of the entire Guild for next Tuesday afternoon, in the Parish House, at 2.30. It is earnestly hoped that by the time of that meeting the committees recently appointed to make a house-to-house canvas to secure new members will have covered the territory assigned and be ready with a report. At the time of the writing of these items (Wednesday), there are already over fifty members enrolled, and we have good reason to believe that the number should be at least one hundred by the time "The Citizen" goes to press. By actual count there are 325 women in Christ Church Parish, but we question whether one-seventh of this number have been engaged in any of the activities of the Parish. Let us awake and remedy this condition. Two hundred women working with a will in St. Martha's would be a tower of strength to the Parish.

There was a very large attendance at the first meeting of the Boy Scouts on last Wednesday night. There were three new applicants entered for the "tenderfoot test." The Scouts will meet at 7.30 on next Wednesday evening. Parents who desire their boys to enter the Scouts should see that they attend the next meeting. We recommend the Boy Scouts unreservedly as an efficient school for manliness. Any boy of the community, no matter what may be his church preferences or affiliations, who is twelve years of age, is eligible to membership. Every boy who becomes a Scout must take the following oath: "On my honor I will do my best; 1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law; 2. To help other people at all times; 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." The Scout Law enjoins the practice of the following virtues: Trustworthiness, loyalty, helpfulness, friendliness, courtesy, kindness, obedience, cheerfulness, thrift, bravery, cleanliness in body and mind, and reverence.

We are gratified at the steady increase upon the attendance of the services of the Church. Particularly is this increase manifest at the evening services, but, alas, the great majority of our people are but seldom seen in God's House, and not a few (we should blush to tell it) have not even been present so much as a single time during the incumbency of the present rector, and we judge that such habits have been of long standing. Here is a little personal question which, if duly considered by everyone in the parish, would certainly work a revolution in our parochial life: "If Every Member of Christ Church were like Me, What Sort of a Church would it Be?" We leave the reader to answer.

The first meeting of the Junior Auxiliary after the summer season was held in the Parish House on last Tuesday afternoon. The attendance was large and the meeting full of interest. Work will begin at once on the packing of the Christmas boxes. Under the wide-awake and efficient leadership of the Directress, Miss Margaret Zepp, the Parish has the best Junior Auxiliary we have ever known.

The subject for consideration in the historical studies for next Sunday evening will be "The Age of the Cat acombs and the Conversion of Constantine."

Please remember that next Sunday is Rally Day in the Sunday Schools of the Parish. The Chapel schools will hold their own special exercises, but at the Sunday School of the Parish Church a very interesting program, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and a short address by the Rector, will take the place of the usual instruction in classes. Let every pupil be present and on time—2.30 p. m.

Sixteen of the officers and teachers of the Sunday School were present at the business meeting at the Rectory on last Friday evening and arrangements completed for the proper observance of Rally Day. It is worth while to note that this "Monthly Council of the Church Schools" meets on the evening of the first Friday.

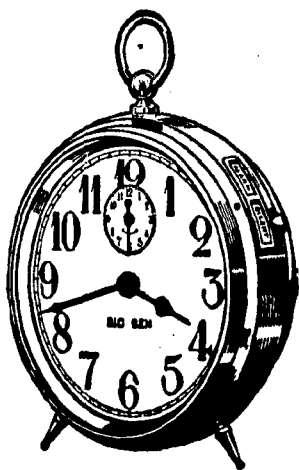

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors, who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and at the burial of our mother. We also greatly appreciate the beautiful floral pieces sent us; also the services of the Rev. Mr. Pearce, and Undertaker Mason. MISS ANNA NELSON and BROTHERS

SWEET SIXTEEN

Were They "Different?"

By AURANIA ELLERBECK
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

In the alcove leading from their bedroom sat the judge and Mrs. Parker. "There comes Dean Cutler," indifferently remarked Mrs. Parker after a desultory glance at the walk below where she espied a boy of twenty striding up the steps. "You don't think there's anything serious in his attentions?" asked the judge. "Thomas!" exclaimed his wife in eloquent denial. "The ideal! Virgie and Dean are still boy and girl together. He's barely twenty and she's just sixteen. Mere children! If she's been moping lately it's because he hasn't asked her to the dance tomorrow night. But as for anything serious between them—what put such nonsense into your head?" "Oh, nothing!" he hesitated, dissuaded; then thoughtfully, "Only weren't we just about their age when?" "Oh, but you and I were different!" with placid assurance. "Don't you suppose I know my girl?" Downstairs in the flickering fire broken twilight of the parlor Dean and Virgie sat in lover-like attitude. Dean was in a low chair before the fireplace; Virgie was on his knees, one fresh, round arm thrown around his ruddy, sunburned neck, the other clasped in both his hands. He dropped a kiss in the hollow of her elbow near his shoulder, then questioningly looked up at her. "Are you going to the dance with me tomorrow night?" "Ye-es. Why didn't you ask me before?" she wistfully demanded, drawing back with a helpless sigh. It was bewildering how the anger she had felt at his remissness fled at a look—at a kiss! Would she never cease to be as puffy in his hands? "I knew you wouldn't go with any one else," he said with egotistical assurance, reluctantly letting her go as, at a sound from the stairs, she jumped up and made for the electric switch. When she came back and posted herself on the arm of his chair the full streaming light discovered to her two cuts on Dean's face, one at his temple, unsuccessfully concealed by a lock of hair; the other on his cheek, red and angry. "Why, how did you do this—and this?" she cried in alarm, her brown eyes wide with question as she held back the curls from his forehead. Rising, Dean stepped to the mantel and examined his curls. "Oh, that's nothing!" he vaguely replied, turning his back to the fire and pocketing his hands. "How did you do it?" she repeated with insistent curiosity. He perceptibly hesitated. Then, "I took a tumble last night—bowling—at the new alley," he mendaciously supplied, jingling coins in his pocket. "Bowling—last night!—what time?" she took him up, narrowing her eyes as she became cognizant of his uneasy manner. "Why—I don't know!" he parried, kicking a stray cinder back on the hearth. "Some time between 9 and 11—" "And then what did you do?" she probed, rising slowly and approaching him. A vague presentiment was tugging at her heart. Having been to the new alley herself last night, she knew that he had lied. But why? Was there some ugly truth to conceal? "Oh, just ran around town with Tom Baker and the bunch," he reluctantly admitted, pressed to the point of irritation. "What do boys do when they just run around town?" she went on earnestly, putting her hands on his shoulders and turning him toward her. In her love was something of a mother's yearning. Then like a flash came two and two together. Her face blanched, and her hands fell like dead weights at her sides. She remembered now! After she and Cousin Wes had left the bowling alley they had stopped in to see the last act at the Empire. When they came out it was nearing midnight. As they passed a certain alleyway that sneaked off Center street a noisy group of boys turned in. She had distinctly seen the loose belted figure of Tom Baker and another—curly headed, hatless! But she had immediately argued herself out of believing her eyes. Now she felt convinced. "I saw you downtown last night," came from Virgie's lips in a frozen tone, unlike herself. "Where?" demanded Dean, flushing darkly. "Center street, between First and Second West, in an alley." "Virgie, you didn't! I wasn't there. Some one's been talking. Just let me catch—" "I saw you myself. Don't lie to me again!" It was an undreamed of Virgie who confronted him! "I—I only went in with the boys—to look on," he defensively offered instead. Her sternness put him at a disadvantage, but anything to hold her! "You said you were at the bowling alley last night and you weren't." Stunned, confused, Dean hurried with the truth. "Well, then—I'll tell you. Only you mustn't be too hard on me. A fellow hit me here with a billiard cue in a place on Columbine alley. And then there was a fight." "Oh, Dean!" Shuddering under the destruction of hope and faith—a shattered ideal—Virgie hid her face in her hands and sank into a chair. "Look at me," he pleaded, falling on his knees beside her and attempting to raise her chin. But her head only sank lower, and she pushed away his hand. "I can't look at you any more—you lied to me. It wouldn't be—the same." Dean stood up. He looked around the big, familiar room, suddenly grown strange and hostile, and then at the dark head bent because of him. She was like a flower still, but lifeless, bitten by the frost. A sob clutched his throat, and he tried the hardest thing of all. "Virgie, I'm not fit to touch your hand—but—can't you forgive me, Virgie—please?" he implored, bending over her with trembling lips and heart smitten with remorse. But her one vulnerable spot had been pierced. Pain had quenched the flame of her love, and the ashes lay like stones in her breast. "I don't know. It isn't that. Whether I forgive you or not, it could never be the same," she repeated dully. Sixteen and twenty, but the lightning had struck. Dean straightened his shoulders. "Do you want me to go?" "Yes," with a suggestion of eagerness. "And you had better take this with you." Rising, Virgie handed him his signet ring. The tragedy was complete. This last concrete instance of their parting was as the closing of the casket in a funeral service. The front door closed, and a man of twenty stumbled down the steps. "Virgie, didn't you hear the dinner bell?" peremptorily called her father from the dining room. "No—I—I don't want any dinner," replied Virgie from the hall where she stood, outwardly calm as a statue, inwardly maddened with the pressure of unshed tears. "Nonsense! Hurry in here! We've got noodle soup. Where on earth is Dean?" demanded her father, looking up from a steaming tureen, ladle poised in the air, as Virgie crept alone into the dining room. "He—didn't stay," she quietly remarked, slipping into her place at the table. "What's the matter? Didn't he ask you to the dance?" interrogated her mother, righteously indignant. "Yes—but—I'm going with father if I go," was the astounding reply. "Certainly you may go with your father," largely consoled the judge, with a comprehending wink at his wife. "Of course! That's the very nicest way to go! And what are you thinking of wearing?" pursued Mrs. Parker with tactful enthusiasm. "I think—I'll wear—I'd like to wear my old white"—began Virgie, but at the thought of that dress and its intimate history she could no longer keep back the tears. Choking with sobs, she buried her face in her napkin and groped her way from the room. "No, mother," advised the judge as Mrs. Parker made a movement to follow. "Let her have her cry out alone. That young scoundrel—he didn't ask her to that dance at all! Confound him!" "I suppose not. And those things mean so much when one is just sixteen. You don't imagine it was anything else?" she suggested. "Of course not—just a spat! He'll call up again tomorrow," and the judge began on his soup with a relish. "And yet—we were about their age when we had our quarrel," renewed Mrs. Parker and heard herself with alarm. Thirty years ago, and this was the first mention of it since that day! Mrs. Parker had been able to forget when she decided to forgive— "I know, mother," said the judge, reaching over to pat her hand across the table. "But, as you say, they're children! We were—different!"

TALE OF A TOWER

There It Stood, Yet It Had Never Been "Erected."

CLEVER EVASION OF THE LAW

The Curious Place Where John K. Graves Turned Out His Shot and Bullets and the Contract the Courts Declared Had Not Been Broken.

The late Senator Allison, whose home was at Dubuque, Ia., thoroughly enjoyed humor and a good story. One day when in a reminiscent mood Mr. Allison narrated the following story, based upon facts, which is worth a place among tales extraordinary: "Along about 1800, when the west was yet quite new, a number of business men in Dubuque conceived the idea of establishing a plant for the manufacture of shot and bullets. At the time there was no factory of that sort nearer than St. Louis, and with a lively demand for ammunition, it was figured that a shot tower would pay like a California gold mine. The tower was built, the necessary machinery was put in at large expense and production began. "For a time business was quite satisfactory; then demand slackened, and it soon became apparent that the enterprise would never develop any Standard Oil dividends. After a time some of the stockholders became disgusted with the whole business and practically offered to give away their holdings. "Among them was John K. Graves, who afterward became a power in eastern Iowa politics. Graves quietly bought up the stock as it was offered, getting practically all of it eventually on the basis of 5 or 10 cents on the dollar. Just what Graves wanted this stock for his associates in the venture could not figure out, but they did not lose any sleep over that. They were tickled to death to get anything out of the dead enterprise. It had been long money for some time. "Soon after this the war broke out Graves instantly saw his opportunity. War makes great quantities of bullets necessary, and he made preparations to supply them. He indulged in certain statements concerning his plans and purposes in the presence of persons he knew would furnish the information to a St. Louis concern, and his scheme worked admirably. Inside of two weeks a man whom Graves knew to be a representative of the St. Louis shot tower company called upon him and in the course of the conversation brought up the subject of stock in the Dubuque company. After several days of dickering and bantering Graves unloaded his entire holdings of stock at over fifty cents on the dollar, realizing a small fortune. "By the terms of the agreement, however, Graves legally bound himself not to erect a shot tower within a hundred miles of Dubuque within ten years. The representative of the St. Louis concern had scarcely got beyond sight of Dubuque, down the river, until Graves sent in an order for a complete equipment of machinery for a new shot making plant. While awaiting its arrival he indulged in a little surveying. "Dubuque is situated partly upon a lofty hill or series of hills, and the inland country is extremely rough. When wandering among the bluffs Graves came upon the excavation of a deep well. Shortly afterward there was considerable activity in that vicinity. A force of men was employed to remove the debris, and the hole was enlarged and bricked up. A lateral incision was made into the side of the bluff, striking the main vertical shaft a hundred feet from the surface opening. Here a room was dug out and bricked up and prepared for the reception of machinery. By the time this work had been completed the outfit arrived and was quickly installed. Within two or three months of the time of disposing of the stock of the Dubuque concern Graves had the new suburban underground establishment in full blast, producing bullets and shot. "Of course news of the new factory speedily reached the St. Louis concern, and they sent an attorney to Dubuque loaded with contracts and receipts and paraphernalia for making trouble. The lawyer called on Graves and plainly told him that if he did not shut up shop he would get the law on him quick. Graves replied that he did not understand he had violated any law or any pledge and that he would go right along making bullets, suggesting to the attorney that he start proceeding. The attorney invited Graves' attention to the bond given by the latter that he would not engage in the manufacture of shot or bullets within 100 miles of Dubuque for ten years. Graves contended that he had entered into no such covenant; he had pledged himself not to 'erect a shot tower,' and asked the attorney if he had erected a shot tower. The attorney said that was boy's talk; that such byplay would not go in a court of justice. "The case was tried, and notwithstanding that every inch of ground was contested by the St. Louis concern, the St. Louis lawyers could not make the jury believe that Graves had 'erected' a shot tower. And so he went right on pouring melted lead into the hole in the top of the hill and gathering up shot and bullets in his brick room 100 feet below and became a wealthy man."—Frank I. Stillman in St. Louis Republic.

The Reason.
"Say, Pat, an' why do they call loife a train of events?" "Sure, Molke, I'm ashamed of ye. An' did ye niver hear 'tis made up of births and exits?"

(By F. R. Stevens, Agriculturist, Lehigh Valley Railroad.)

For a great many years we have read in the newspapers and magazines, articles about the lack of a Merchant Marine by which our surplus stock and manufactured articles are shipped to foreign markets. But not until now have we realized how serious a condition this is to the United States. The cutting off of the steamers belonging to foreign nations has shown clearly that this is one of the weak points in our national structure.

Reasons pro and con for this condition have been published broadcast many times since the Civil War. But it is only in conditions like the present that bring forth absolute plain speaking and the whole truth is brought to light. In a recent letter to the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, Mr. B. Olney Hough, Editor of the American Exporter, gives in detail the reasons as to why the United States has not built a Merchant Marine. In general, the reasons given by him for this is that Congress has placed so many handicaps on the owning and construction of American boats that they cannot compete with those of other nations.

In detail he says:—"Out diet regulations are more elaborate than those of other countries and cost steamship owners a trifle more. More space under our law must be devoted to the housing of the crew and in fact to their general welfare than is necessary under the laws of other nations. Furthermore, a larger crew is required on vessels admitted to American register than on vessels flying the flags of other nations. Our laws, for example, require an extra engineer and three other men in the engine room of an American vessel that are not required on foreign vessels. American vessels have to carry four quartermasters; foreign cargo vessels carry none, detaching ordinary members of the crew for quartermaster service."

"Captain Robert Dollar who owns half a dozen vessels plying on the Pacific, in articles widely copied in the press of the country early in the spring declared that the expenses for the extra men on those of his boats which fly the American flag amounted to $8,200 a year per vessel more than the operating expenses of vessels which he owns under the British flag." These restrictions have all been placed upon our shipbuilders and owners by those not interested in the production and transportation of our farm crops. We have been lax in allowing this condition to exist and we will be still more lax if we do not look after our interests to the extent of investigating this thing and see that the laws are properly made to protect us and upbuild our markets and through them our agriculture.

What is said to be the most wonderful clock in the world is in St. Petersburg. It has 95 faces, and indicates simultaneously the time of day at 30 points on the earth's surface, besides the movement of the earth around the sun, the phases of the moon, the signs of the zodiac, the passage over the meridian of more than fifty stars of the northern hemisphere, and the date according to the Gregorian, Greek, Mussulman and Hebrew calendars. Two years were required to put the works together.

A Seattle woman has secured judgment for $6,000 against a railroad for the loss of her little finger, which was crushed by a spring door on one of the company's cars. It is to be hoped that the decision does not establish a regular market price, or there will be a lot of people looking for customers for little fingers at that figure.

If, as an educator declares, the study of algebra causes girls to lose their souls, it is horrible to contemplate what must be the effect of calculus upon them.

It is satisfactory to know that the America can fly with one motor. But the important point for such a trip is what she would do if neither motor should work.

If a seventy-two-year-old affinity can alienate $250,000 worth of male affection, anybody's grandmother will bear watching.

Your child will not be sick if you rid the stomach and bowels of Worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer will do it quickly and surely. Makes the worms let go their hold while the gentle laxative medicine removes them through the bowels. It tones up the system and promotes healthy children.

NEW JERSEY NEWS CONDENSED.

Items of Interest From all Parts of the State as Gleaned From Our Exchanges Briefly Paragraphed.

Federation of Hebrews to Convene.

The third annual convention of the Associated Young Men's Hebrew Associations and the Young Women's Hebrew Associations of New Jersey, will be held in Trenton, Sunday afternoon, September 27, in the Arcade Academy. Mayor Donnelly will welcome the delegates at the opening of the session. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. Goldwasser, of New York city, chairman of the board of experts of the National Y. M. H. A., Y. Klubrak, president of the New England Association, and M. Finkelstein, president of the Pennsylvania association. In the evening a reception will be tendered the visiting delegates and friends at which the members of the local Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. will be the hosts. It is anticipated that a large gathering will be present from the various sections of the state. The New Jersey Federation was organized two years ago and included six associations, but the movement has spread about the state with such rapidity that there are at present twenty-five associations represented. The following Young Men's association are affiliated with the federation: Trenton, Ashbury Park, Atlantic City, Bayonne, Camden, Morris county, Newark, New Brunswick, Jersey City, North Hudson, Plainfield, Somerville and Hudson county. The Young Women's associations follow: Trenton, New Brunswick, Paterson, Passaic, Perth Amboy, North Hudson, Hudson county and Bayonne. The object of the federation is to place a Y. M. H. A. and a Y. W. H. A. in every city and town of the state and to help the members mentally, morally, physically and socially.

Fish and Game Laws are Published.

The State Fish and Game Commission has published a handy pocket compendium of important fish and game laws. The shooting season for quail, rabbit, squirrel, male English ringneck pheasant, ruffed grouse, prairie chicken and Hungarian partridge, will open November 10 and close December 15. The open season for shore birds opened on September 1. Woodcock may be shot from October 10 to December 1. Water fowl, except wood duck and swan, may be shot from November 1 to February 1. There is no open season this year for female English ringneck pheasant, wild turkey or small shore birds, such as curlews, upland plover and wood ducks. Deer may be shot only during the first five days of November, and then only those having horns visible above the hair. Only one deer a year may be taken by each hunter, and it is illegal to hunt deer with dogs.

Catch Negro Accused of Murder.

Going through Main street, Freehold, in an automobile in charge of County Detective John M. Smith, en route to the county jail Sunday afternoon, George Green, colored, twenty-four years old, passed the funeral procession of Charles A. Ely, on the charge of whose murder he was arrested Saturday night near Amityville, Long Island. Ely, a fish dealer of Freehold, while at work in his barn, was struck on the head three times with an iron pestle and his skull was crushed. Green's brother-in-law, who is said to have been with him when the murder was committed, was arrested last week.

James Leahy Pronounced Cured.

Some time ago Judge Daly of Middlesex county ordered James Leahy, of Perth Amboy, who had applied to the court for compensation under the employers' liability act to undergo an operation, the doctors having testified that he could be cured by an operation. He submitted. On Monday he was in court cured and the court ordered that the $10 a week which the Federal Terra Cotta company has been paying him should end on Thursday. Dr. Henry performed the operation. The court ordered the defendant company to pay the cost of the operations, which were $107 for the first and $350 for the second. The accident happened on May 23 of last year. A counsel fee of $50 was allowed Thomas Brown, counsel for the petitioner. Russell E. Watson represented the company.

Forman Presented With Silver Set.

The Middlesex County Jury concluded its labors on Monday and handed in its indictment to Judge Daly, after which it on a dinner at the Hotel Kleir, Brunswick.

of silver to Rush Burton, its foreman. The presentation was made at the banquet. The gift is a particularly rich one. The solid silver pieces are suitably inscribed. Foreman Burton was taken with surprise upon this substantial expression of the love and esteem of his fellow members and could scarcely reply. The banquet was a most pleasant one and was thoroughly enjoyed. The jury had a few county officials as their guests.

Rahway Man Beaten In his Yard.

Phillip Gehring, of Rahway, was assaulted and beaten in his yard Saturday night by an unidentified person. Mr. Gehring, hearing a noise, started out for his barn, thinking there was some trouble with his horses. When but a few feet from his door he was struck in the face with a club and knocked to the ground. Mr. Gehring's cries for help were heard by his wife and son, who hastened to his assistance and took him into the house, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. G. E. Orton. Mr. Gehring can give no description of his assailant.

Engagement Announced.

Patrick Sugour, of Sayreville, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Margaret Sugour, to Alfred Switzer. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Many in Perth Amboy and Houses Burn.

The lives of several persons were imperiled early Tuesday morning in a fire that destroyed the Miramar Inn at Galilee and a bungalow and cottage adjoining it. Fishermen, getting their boats ready to go out to the lobster pots, effected the rescue of half dozen persons, some women, who were trapped in the burning hotel. The fire was discovered about 3 o'clock. It started in the kitchen of the hotel, and soon consumed the frame structure. The loss is said to be nearly $50,000, which includes jewelry belonging to Mrs. S. S. Leo of Elizabeth. Mrs. Leo, her husband, daughter and two sons were among those who were rescued by the fishermen from a porch roof to which they had fled.

May Return Middlesex Patients.

The New Jersey State Hospital for Insane at Trenton has advised Sheriff Arthur B. Appleby that it will return to Middlesex the thirty-three patients it has from this county, unless judges' orders are received. The county has sent fifty-seven patients without orders, the custom being to send the orders later. The board of managers now proposes to return them at the rate of five a week, commencing with Monday, September 21. The attorney-general has advised the board of managers that it cannot hold these patients legally and collect for their maintenance under present conditions.

Train Kills Matawan Man.

The mutilated body of a man, identified subsequently as John Sullivan, journeyman mason, was found Monday night in Brighton avenue, near the Hollywood Station, Long Branch. He had been struck by a train. Sullivan was last seen alive several hours before his body was found. It is not known what train hit him. Sullivan was unmarried and lived in Matawan.

P. S. C. Declares Dividend.

The board of directors of the Public Service Corporation at a meeting in the board's rooms Tuesday afternoon, declared the quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent, payable September 30, to stockholders of record on September 25. President Thomas N. McCarter made a formal statement to the directors in which he declared that notwithstanding the general unsettled conditions during the year the affairs of the company have remained satisfactory. He said that while similar companies, including the railroads, have been showing a decrease in earnings, the Public Service Corporation, while not holding to its normal gains, has shown an actual increase over last year. Mr. McCarter pointed out that in his judgment the manner in which the company has stood up during the unsettled time of 1907 and the present year argued well for the future of the company, so far as investors were concerned.

Harvey—Rice.

The wedding of Miss Sally Neilson Rice, daughter of former Judge and Mrs. J. Kearney Rice, to Harold C. Harvey, took place Wednesday afternoon at the bride's home in Corral place, New Brunswick. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. B. Joyce of Christ Episcopal Church. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. James K. Rice, Jr., and Miss Helen Perlee. Miss Margaret Rice was the flower girl and J. K. Rice 3d, the page. Marc Solon of Trenton was best man. The engagement of Miss Perlee and Mr. Solon was recently announced. On returning from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey will reside in Trenton.

Purchased Glassy Motor Boat.

J. K. Dwyer, superintendent of the Gang Brothers Cigar Co., of New Brunswick, has purchased a handsome 45 foot motor boat, which he will use for pleasure trips on the Raritan. The boat has nine berths, a galley, dining room and in fact every modern convenience known for a craft of its size. It was formerly owned by a doctor at Rochester, N. Y., who used it on the great lakes. Mr. Dwyer expects to go to Rochester in a few days to bring the boat to New Brunswick.

Indigestion Attack Fatal.

A. H. Calef, treasurer of the Missouri-Pacific Railway Company, died Wednesday at his home at Seabright from acute indigestion. Mr. Calef was stricken Tuesday while on his way here from his office in New York. For thirty years Mr. Calef has been a resident of Seabright during the summer. He is survived by his widow and a grown family.

Coming Wedding Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. George Albro, of Parlin, have announced the coming marriage of Miss Fannie Carlisle, a sister of Mrs. Albro, to Joseph Norman, of New Brunswick, formerly of Sayreville. The marriage will take place on September 28. The couple will reside in New Brunswick.

ECCENTRIC CHESTERTON.

He Doesn't Mind How He Dresses, and His Wife is His Guardian.

There is one English author at least who admits quite frankly that he is practically dependent on his wife, and that is big G. K. Chesterton. Like most geniuses—and G. K. C. is generally admitted to be one—Chesterton is too much absorbed in the details of his creative work to bother much with mere business and social ones, and how many of his commissions would be executed and how many of his appointments kept if it were not for Mrs. C. goodness only knows. She acts as his "business conscience" and goes with him on almost every journey.

It is on record, however, that once when Chesterton had a journey to make visitors arrived, and Mrs. Chesterton, being called upon to play the part of hostess, was unable to accompany her husband. However, she started him off with the words, "Now, Gilbert, you know where you are to lecture and what your subject is," and Chesterton went to the railway station. Arriving there, he banged down a sovereign at the booking office and said, "A ticket."

"Where for?" asked the astonished clerk.

"Free Trade hall," replied Chesterton.

"Oh, Glasgow, then?" said the clerk, and Gilbert, assenting, received a ticket for that station.

Stepping into the street at Glasgow, he was hailed by a friend: "Hallo, Chesterton! What are you doing here?"

"Oh, I'm lecturing at the Free Trade hall."

"Oh, no; you're not," said the friend. "Oh, yes; I am," protested Chesterton. "I booked the engagement some months ago."

"But you cannot be," maintained the friend. "For the place is being renovated and the painters are in."

It slowly dawned upon Chesterton that he was at the wrong place, and he, further to justify his claim to gentleness, sent a telegram to his wife: "Am here. Where ought I to be?"

Even Mrs. Chesterton, however, apparently cannot always compass the feat of having her rotund husband costumed according to Hoyle. I remember quite vividly a soiree which I once attended at the Chestertons' flat in Overstrand Mansions, Battersea, and even more vividly how G. K. C. was dressed. Part of his costume consisted of trousers and waistcoat of a brown mixture and a dark red tie, and with these he wore—it is almost incredible, yet true—a dinner coat! He was in great form that evening and kept us all well edited and entertained. I don't suppose he had the faintest idea what he had on—Edinburgh Church in Philadelphia Le'

Are Working Twenty-Four Hours a Day!

An advertisement placed in the CITIZEN has no time limit to its usefulness to the advertiser. It works 24 hours a day. If your ad is well written and interesting, it will be laid aside by the reader for future reference. Or, if your ad reaches the right prospect, it will make an impression on his memory which will last for days, weeks and even months.

Consider for a moment, can't you recall an advertisement which you read months ago which was so strongly impressed on your memory that you still remember the offer made?

The results of advertising may not be instantaneous. Don't expect that when you spend a dollar for advertising today that it will return to you ten-fold tomorrow.

Newspaper advertising is the very best medium for bringing to the attention of the buying public your business and your wares and gaining their confidence by impressing on them your personality and reputation for fair dealing.
