RVICE WORK AT STANDSTILL

Authorities Prohibit Public Service Gas Company From Opening Streets, Until Certain Demands for Gas From the People are Complied With.

Chief McDonnell arrested Mr. Thomas L. Mellick for opening a street without a permit last Friday. It seems there is some little difficulty between the city fathers and the Public Service Gas Company about supplying certain residents with gas, and the aforesaid city authorities are determined to bring the matter to an issue. To this effect the Public Service Gas Company is not to be allowed to do any more extending of their service until the demands of these certain citizens are met and complied with. Mr. Mellick is an engineer of the Public Service Company and last Friday morning he started to dig a trench on Henry street. The Chief ordered him to stop, but he refused, and seizing a shovel started to dig himself. Then the Chief of Police made the arrest and brought Mr. Mellick before Police Justice Birmingham. Mr. Mellick stated that he desired to have his counsel represent him and that as it would be impossible to have him appear that evening the hearing was set for ten o'clock on Saturday morning. At the appointed time the attorney appeared, and the hearing was started. Colonel Gillmore represented the Public Service people and Francis P. Coan represented the city. Col. Gillmore brought up an ordinance of 1900 which he claimed allowed the company to do the work of laying pipes without obtaining any permits or permission from the city authorities. The city solicitor brought up an ordinance of 1907, which stipulated these pipes could not be laid without obtaining a permit from the commissioner and posting a bond with a good faith to put the street back as they found it, and that they did not do so, and to be forfeited to the proper improvement following the laying of the pipes and the Police Justice Mellick twenty dollars for the streets. Mr. Mellick's attorney stated that they would appeal the case to the Supreme Court as soon as possible. That is the way the matter rests at the present time.

PERTH AMBOY FIRE CHIEF DIES AS RESULT OF WETTING

William P. O'Hara, chief of the fire department and former alderman of the Fifth Ward, died at his home, 1111 1/2 street, Perth Amboy, Tuesday night. Death was caused by pneumonia, which followed a heavy cold contracted when he was drenched while directing the department at a fire, ten days ago. A widow and seven daughters survive him. Mr. O'Hara was born in Cleveland in 1869 and came to Perth Amboy forty years ago. In early life he was employed by the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and before he attained his majority he was a fireman. He learned the printer's trade, and for a time published the Perth Amboy Citizen. He was a charter member of Perth Amboy Typographical Union No. 658, formed about fifteen years ago.

For many years Mr. O'Hara was active in politics and, after holding places on numerous commissions, he became alderman from his ward and served two terms. He was for four years a member of the Water Board of Perth Amboy. Nearly twenty-five years ago he became a member of the company, then a house-keeping as foreman of his ward and second alderman. He became head of the ward last June.

Mr. O'Hara was also a member of the Association, Foresters of the Men, Knights of Columbus, and the Grand Order of the Eastern Star. He was a member of the Mary's church.

Funeral service in Saturday.

Brunswick Rowdies Create Midnight Row

A bunch of rowdies came to this city from New Brunswick last Saturday night looking for something. They had visited South River and had told around there that they were a bunch of woolie wolves from Wolvetoona and that it was their night out to howl. They hadn't been in this town very long when they evidently found all that they were looking for and a little bit more besides. So much so that their big Thomas automobile couldn't get them out of town quick enough. It didn't last long enough for an officer to get in on the melee, and he wasn't a block away at that, or the city would probably be the richer for a few fines.

CHRISTIAN STRAUB LOSES TAX APPEAL

The State Board of Taxation has dismissed the appeal of Christian Straub, of this city, who objected to a valuation of $9,000 placed on his property in Sayreville township. The appeal was heard at Elizabeth recently, with Thomas H. Hagerty as counsel for Sayreville township and Edward W. Hicks as counsel for Mr. Straub. The valuation was confirmed.

POST-GEANT.

A very quiet wedding took place last Tuesday evening at the home of the rector of Christ Church, Miss Emma Geant, of Catherine street, and Mr. William Post, of Perth Amboy, were the principals. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Geant, also of Catherine street, acted as the attendants. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. S. Lewis at eight o'clock. It is probable that the honeymoon trip will be postponed until some time in the future.

MRS. HELEN P. MARSHALL.

Suddenly on Tuesday morning, Mrs. Helen Parsons Marshall, widow of William S. Marshall, and mother of Mrs. James D. VanPelt, entered into rest at her home on Louisa street, at the age of 68 years.

Mrs. Marshall spent the winter at Montclair and about three weeks ago returned to this city and took the house occupied by her daughter during the past winter, but who is now residing at her summer home on the Cheesapeake road. When her daughter called Tuesday morning she found that her mother was dead. Mrs. Marshall was about the day before and commented to her neighbors how well she was feeling.

The funeral was held from her late residence at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning and was well attended. Rev. J. Edward Shaw, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, conducted the service, after which the body was taken to Montclair for interment. John J. Scully was funeral director.

MOSQUITO STORY GAVE SCULLY A HEADACHE

Sir William Willcocks, the British engineer, who built the Assouan Dam, declares that the greatest trouble he found in his work was to prevent disease. He paid his tribute before Congress to Colonel Gorgas for making the Panama Canal Zone immune from mosquito infection.

"Why," said Sir William, "at Khar-toum, where the two Niles meet, the boats bring down the worst and most malignant mosquitoes in the world, and yet the drainage there has been so perfect that now we find a man twelve shillings for every mosquito found on his place."

Representative Thomas J. Scully, of South Amboy, immediately rushed from the room.

Twelve shillings is nearly $3.00.

A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION THAT WAS CELEBRATED

"Mush" (John) Perrine thought he could turn himself into an old man without anybody getting "hep," so last Wednesday he went and had a birthday all to himself—as he intended. This made forty-eight times that he'd had this same thing happen to him, and like many a former time, he didn't give anyone the chance to offer him, the usual "bull" in the form of congratulations, best wishes, etc., usually handed out on cases like this. Nope, not Jack, no, he meditated in silence, comparing the past with the present, living over again the years that had gone in his search for a fit career. But "Ma" didn't see fit to have it that way and a hint was accordingly dropped in the proper direction. This hint struck a certain citizen between the eyes with such force that an idea was born in his fertile brain. This certain citizen happened to be our Water Commissioner, and under the careful ministrations of "Doc" Jacques the aforementioned idea progressed so favorably that the "Hobo Club" was assembled my pronto, and went up to call upon the "Old Man" and give him a reception. After our friend "Mush" got over his surprise and chagrin, he became such an affable host that even the Mayor forgot the temperance agitation that seems to be sweeping over this city like a dark cloud and laughed and otherwise enjoyed himself more than ever he has done since the dawn of his political career. Professor Steins played Jack's piano and Billie Splice thrummed his banjo to accompany the other members that had the good fortune to be amongst those present, while they warbled their individual pet songs. The party, as you doubtless already know, was a complete and bewildering surprise to the host, but the hostess was put wise beforehand and after the party was well started toward a success, refreshments were served. The refreshments included everything that the word implies and no one's desires were left unsatisfied. The merry-making continued until the wee small hours of the morning and when the rejoicing at last was brought to a close the roosters were preparing to herald the approach of another dawn.

Among those who were present in addition to the members of the family of the host were: Mayor Day, H. H. Jacques, Professor Steins, John Samuelson, William Splice, Mr. Thompson, J. B. Jones, Lewis Dill, Walter Peterson, Daniel Donlin and Orlando Perrine, Jr.

CLEAN-UP WEEK SOON.

Plans are being arranged to have a clean-up week in this city soon, and it is to be hoped that the people will heartily co-operate in the movement. Other towns are holding clean-up week, and the citizens have untidily taken much interest in the matter, and thus the towns have been made clean. Let us do likewise, and exhibit some civic pride.

Will Give Reception To Rev. C. S. Lewis

A reception will be tendered to Rev. and Mrs. Chapman S. Lewis at Christ Church Parish House on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock by the members of the parish. The committee in charge are making great preparations for the event, and hope that it will prove one of the best ever held. Kerr's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music, and dainty refreshments will be served. Every member of the parish is cordially invited to be present, and it is hoped that there will be a large gathering to welcome the new rector and his wife.

Notwithstanding invitations have been sent out, should there be any members of the parish who have not received one, they are welcome just the same as if they did. The church list is not as complete as it should be, therefore it is probable that the committee missed some names.

MISS LENA DISBROW TO BECOME A NURSE

Miss Lena Disbrow, of Broadway, left this city to enter St. Barnabas Hospital in Newark last Friday. Miss Disbrow passed the entrance examinations of this institution with high honors some weeks ago and has now entered upon a course of training, preparatory to taking up the profession of a trained nurse. She is a graduate of the local high school, having graduated in 1912.

Miss Disbrow has long been imbued with the idea of becoming a nurse, and she undoubtedly has the best wishes of her many friends for success in the realization of her ambitions.

COYNE CASE APPEALED.

Ex-Senator George S. Silzer and John A. Coan, counsel for John E. Coyne, of this city, whose son was killed by an engine of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at the N. Y. & L. B. station, have appealed direct to the Court of Errors from the decision of Judge Lloyd, rendered during the April term of court, whereby a directed verdict was rendered against Mr. Coyne in his suit for damages from the "Pennsy."

The appeal will be argued at the June term of the Court of Errors, Messrs. Silzer and Coan appearing for Mr. Coyne, and Theodore Strong for the defendant company.

Carlborn and Mrs. Nils Johnson, of Perth Amboy; Mrs. Freda Sanders, of Sayreville; Mrs. A. Peterson, Mrs. John Nilson, Mrs. J. Magnuson, Mrs. Adolf Lindon, Mrs. August Larson, Mrs. Caroline Anderson and Miss Betty Johnson.

CITY DELIVERY POSTAL SERVICE

Congressman Scully Endeavoring to Secure It for This City—A Little More Activity on the Part of Our People Would Bring Results—Good Walks Necessary.

Because Congressman Scully has been active in obtaining city delivery service in nearby town, do not think for one moment that he has been neglecting his home city. He has been personally in touch with the Post Office Department in this matter, but finds that the receipts lack about $500 of the amount necessary to secure this service. A little hustling on the part of our business men and others might obtain it. If stamps were secured at the post office for all mail sent out by the different departments of the Pennsylvania Railroad in this city, the free delivery would be obtained at once. However, there is another drawback, we must have good continuous sidewalks, crosswalks and house numbers. This is very important, and it is up to the property owners to provide them. The following letter from the Post Office Department clearly cites that Congressman Scully has been fully alive to the situation:

Hon. Thomas J. Scully,
House of Representatives.

My dear Mr. Scully:

Referring to your call at the Department today with reference to the matter of the establishment of city delivery service at South Amboy, New Jersey, I beg to say that under the law the institution of city delivery service may be considered at post offices where the gross receipts for the preceding fiscal year amounted to $10,000. The receipts of the post office at South Amboy for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, were $9,650.96. There has been some increase in the receipts during the current fiscal year and if they exceed $10,000 when the accounts for the year are closed the establishment of delivery service there will be investigated.

Under the regulations of the Department before city delivery is instituted the investigation must disclose that the receipts are stable and legitimate; that, public improvements have been provided, such as good continuous sidewalks, crosswalks, house numbers, street signs and street lights and that the city is adapted to delivery service.

Yours very truly,
DANIEL C. ROPER,
First Assistant Postmaster General.

FUNERAL OF MRS. IDA K. LAHUE

The funeral of Mrs. Ida K. LaHue was held from her late home at four o'clock last Sunday afternoon and was attended by a large number of people. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. Edward Shaw, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who made an address in which he eulogized the Christian character and sterling qualities of the deceased. The church choir sang several hymns impressively. Interment was made on Monday in the Mechanics cemetery at Philadelphia, under the direction of Stillwell & Mason, undertakers. Many beautiful floral pieces, tributes of love for the departed one, were presented.

Resolutions On Death of Mrs. LaHue

At an executive session of the Board of Education held on Saturday, May 2, the following resolutions on the death of Mrs. Ida Kirby LaHue were unanimously adopted:

Resolutions Passed by the Board of Education.

Inasmuch as an inscrutable Providence has permitted the life of Mrs. Ida Kirby LaHue to come to a close in the midst of her work and her usefulness as a teacher in the South Amboy public schools, the Board of Education desire to record their deep sense of the loss to our schools of a teacher that was so conscientious, so earnest, and so devoted to her work as Mrs. LaHue. She was faithful to every duty, and worked with a set purpose both to build character and to impart knowledge. By example and precept she strove to inculcate right principles, and to hold ever before her pupils high ideals, for them to follow. This she did with unobtrusive ease, yet with the same unquenchable zeal that she displayed in training her pupils to think, and in imparting to them useful knowledge; therefore be it,

Resolved, That in the departure of Mrs. Ida Kirby LaHue from this life, which was so intimately related to her work in our schools, the Board of Education feel that they have lost a teacher that was worthy of their highest confidence and respect; that the schools have lost a studious and competent laborer, and the pupils have lost a faithful friend, and a painstaking teacher; and be it further,

Resolved, That the warmest sympathies of the members of this Board are hereby tendered to Mrs. Mulford, the patient, devoted, invalid aunt, to whom this bereavement comes with untimely keenness, more than to anyone else in this world; and be it further,

Resolved, That this record of our esteem for Mrs. LaHue, and our sorrow at being called upon to part with her, as well as our unanimous testimony to the value of her unobtrusive Christian character and her worth to the pupils placed under her care, be entered upon our minutes, and a copy be published in the South Amboy Citizen.

In accordance with the suggestion of the Federation of Churches, an organization which has for one of its objects peace among the whole world, the Rev. H. C. White will take for his subject at the morning service at the Presbyterian Church, the topic, "World's Peace." It goes without saying that Pastor White will handle his subject in a masterly manner, and every member of the congregation should be present to hear him.

MOSQUITO TIME.

Now the famous engineer who built the Assouan Dam on the Nile, Sir William Willcocks, adds his testimony to that of other experts to show the practicability of obliterating the mosquito. He tells the House Rivers and Harbors Committee that the malarial insect along the Suez Canal and upon the Nile, where the worst mosquitoes in the world used to be found, has been wiped out.

So perfect has the drainage system of that region been made that a fine of twelve shillings is imposed on each land owner for every mosquito seen on his property, yet this penalty, which is a precautionary measure, has rarely, if ever, to be exacted. There are no more mosquitoes.

It would be an easy matter to banish mosquitoes permanently from New Jersey if we set about the job with determination. Our army engineers have cleaned up Panama and Cuba, and a like work could be accomplished in this State if we employed proper means and kept at the task until it was finished. It would not take more than two or three years to rid the State of every breeding place for mosquitoes.

It is to be hoped that those croakers who have opposed the appropriation of State and county funds for the extermination of the mosquito will change their tune, for this work is one of the most important that New Jersey could undertake. It has to do with the health as well as the comfort and financial prosperity of the whole community.

It has been proposed that Congress should undertake a national campaign against the mosquito, appropriating sufficient funds out of the Federal treasury to carry on the work in every State. This plan has its merits, no doubt, as a part of a nation wide reclamation and conservation scheme, but States like New Jersey should not wait for Federal help. They are able to banish mosquitoes without it, and, besides, Federal aid may be a long, long time coming.

PROHIBITION CAUSE OPPOSED IN STATE

78,524 New Jersey Men Protest Against National Amendment—Brewers Making Active Fight.

Washington, May 6.—There are 78,524 men in the State of New Jersey who are opposed to national prohibition. That number of names are signed to petitions which were sent to the United States senators and representatives from that State in the legislative body of the nation. The petitions were brought to the capital by William Dill, secretary of the Brewers Association of New Jersey. The petitions were in fourteen volumes each neatly bound. One volume for each senator and one for each representative. It is said that other petitions from New Jersey, doubling the above number, are on their way.

The volumes containing the petitions were taken to the office of Representative Archibald C. Hart and left with him for distribution among the senators and congressmen. On the first page of each volume was marked in lead pencil the total of the number of names in the book. That total is divided among the congressional districts as follows:

First district represented by William J. Browning, 2,622; second district, represented by J. Thompson Baker, 1,911; third district, represented by Thomas J. Scully, 3,734; fourth district, Allan B. Walsh, 2,046; fifth district, represented by William E. Tuttle, Jr., 2,905; sixth district, represented by Archibald C. Hart, 3,554; seventh district, represented by Dow H. Drukker, 2,997; eighth district, represented by Eugene F. Kinkoad, 1,700; ninth district, Walter J. McCoy, 4,885; tenth district, represented by Edward W. Townsend, 3,300; eleventh district, represented by John J. Magan, 2,920; twelfth district, represented by James A. Himmell, 3,316.

On a petition, which will be handed to the Senate by Senator Martine, there were 24,339 names, and on the one to be submitted by Senator Hughes there were 10,127 names.

These will be handed in by the Congressman and placed on file with the usual memorials and petitions which are presented at the opening of the House and Senate each day. Besides these petitions there are hundreds from organizations protesting against the enactment of a national prohibition amendment.

This is from New Jersey alone. Reports from other States will be announced later, it is stated here.

The bickering led to the reappointment of an entirely new board.

Abandon The Old Canal Feeder

A definite plan has been arranged for the abandonment of the Delaware and Raritan canal as a feeder through Trenton. It is proposed to abandon the feeder from its junction with the Delaware and Raritan Canal in the vicinity of Rose street to a point west of Prospect street. Not only is it the intention to abandon the old feeder within the points mentioned, but to fill it in to the surface of the embankments, and to construct a flume in lieu thereof parallel with the north of the tracks of the Belvidere Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, from a point west of Prospect street to the Feeder channel between Willow and Warren streets, then to follow within the channel to the Delaware and Raritan Canal at the foot of Rose street. The proposed flume would be constructed of concrete and act in the capacity of a feeder for the summit level of the canal proper.

This amount includes all the city departments, but in addition there is to be raised the school and county taxes, the amount of which cannot be determined until later in the month. Asks About Metuchen Funds.

William A. Colos, who was elected to the Borough Council of Metuchen on the Progressive ticket, created a mild sensation in council chambers Monday night when he asked what became of unexpended balances at the close of last year's borough business. Mr. Colos is chairman of the water committee. He pointed out that last year the total expenditure for hydrant rental was one-half of the amount appropriated, but that this year a water bill for about $400, which should have been paid out of last year's appropriation, was paid out of the appropriation for this year, which left a balance in the account for this year of about $700, with bills to pay amounting to about $1,200.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Freeholders, of Middlesex County held in New Brunswick on Monday afternoon, the building committee of the board was authorized to dispose at public sale of all of the furniture, fixtures and one safe now in the court house. The board is arranging to rebuild the court house, and when the work is completed the building will be fitted up with new furniture. No date for the sale has been set as yet. Freeholder Theodore Cohn, of New Brunswick, is chairman of this committee.

The board passed a resolution approving of the plans for the Union avenue bridge, Bound Brook, as submitted by County Engineer Fox. Bids for the erection of this bridge will be asked for later.

The board also approved of the plans for the repairing of the Applegarth-Clarksburg road, which begins at Perrinesville and ends at the Hightstown-Manalapan road.

A communication was received from the borough clerk of South River stating that the drain pipe on Maple avenue was below the surface of the road, and that the pipe was always choked up with sand. They asked that the freeholders raise the pipe to the surface of the road. Referred to the road committee.

H. G. Gibson, of Asbury Park, sent a communication to the board in which he stated that he could save the county money in the erection of the bridge over Convery Place, Perth Amboy. The writer said that he has on hand a large quantity of wood block, which he would sell to the county at a reasonable figure. The communication was referred to County Engineer Fox.

Of 150 applicants for renewal of liquor licenses presented to Judge B. Foster at the opening of the May term of court at Freehold on Tuesday twenty-six were laid over because of complaints. Campbell, Railroad Hotel; William H. Heilles, Newark Hotel; John W. Keough, wholesale; Joseph Maurer, Raritan Hotel and wholesale license; Charles H. Miller, Atlantic Hotel; John Schoaffer, Raritan Inn; William H. Steben, wholesale; Michael Uhl, wholesale.

West, Green Gables Hotel, Pleasure Bay; Edward J. Solomon, Elberon Hotel, Elberon, and Bridgewater Inn, Pleasure Bay, for which two applied for licenses, Joseph Murphy, the present holder, and William Roach.

Three license applications were laid over to May 21. These were: William H. Hulitt and Harry J. Brown, wholesale, Highlands; Eugene F. Pannae, Sea Bright Inn, Sea Bright; David B. Plummer, Essex and Sussex Hotel, Spring Lake.

LEY AT

LONG BRANCH MAY 16
been definitely announced the Barium & Bailey Greatest Show is to exhibit at Long Branch, Saturday, May 16; to the delight of the small boy and girl as well as the grown-ups, and it only remains for the circus enthusiast to purchase his or her ticket in advance in order to be assured of a place or seat from which to view the extraordinary array of this veritable wonderland, if it may be so called.

"The Wizard Prince of Arabia," a fairy romance of a royal youth and an East Indian King's favorite daughter, will be interpreted by 1,250 persons. "The Wizard Prince of Arabia" is without precedent or parallel in magnificence or magnitude. This is only one of the colossal congregation of spectacles.

The monster menagerie, forum of freaks in vast array, cavalcades of beautiful horses, camels and elephants and 500 internationally celebrated equestrian, acrobatic, gymnastic, aerialistic and hippodromatic champions are but parts of the huge enterprise to which the programme adheres.

WEEKLY LETTER TO FARMERS.

(By F. R. Stevens, Agriculturist, Lehigh Valley Railroad.)

I suppose 90 per cent. of the unfilled farms are suffering from the lack of tilling this year. There is a large amount of water in the soil and the seeding of spring grains is necessarily late. Seasons like this only serve to make the necessity of the drainage more apparent. There are some very interesting statistics on the effects of drainage. Fletcher, in his text on soils, states that on fully 20 to 30 per cent. of the farm land east of the Mississippi drainage is needed and would be a good investment on the necessary cost of such drainage. In the territory thus described there is a very large area of light sandy and gravelly soil so that I venture to make the assertion that in the territory, served by our road between Geneva and Wilkes-Barre, drainage would pay on fully 80 per cent. of the soils. In fact, in the lake regions where the type of soil is naturally rather heavy, there is hardly an acre that would not be improved in this way.

Underdrains not only give us the advantage of being able to till the ground several days earlier than if the ground is not drained, but the taking off of the free water serves to raise the temperature of the soil, and that, of course, hastens the germination of the seed. King in his text on drainage says he noted on April 24th, when the temperature of the air was 60.5 degrees Fahrenheit, the temperature of drained soil was 66.5 degrees while that of similar undrained soil was 54 degrees. Another point is that in drained soil a deeper root system invariably prevails, and, therefore, those crops stand prolonged drought much better than on soil with poor underdrainage. These facts are pretty generally understood. The great question has been the ways and means to bring about drainage.

The cost of tile is not great, but the cost of digging the ditch has increased so rapidly in the past few years it makes drainage expensive. This has been pretty well solved by some of our farmers in Seneca County, New York, who have united and purchased ditching machines in order to do way with this labor item. One member of such an association told me recently that he used this machine for two days and felt at the end of that time that he had value received for all the money which he had paid into the association.

There are several machines on the market which are very effective in ditch digging. I do not know that there is any one that I can recommend over another. Where associations of farmers are joined in this way it is not necessary by any means to pay the entire amount before receiving benefits. The main thing is to get the association. In New York State we have a drainage association through which information and assistance is given the members and has done perhaps more than any other one thing in increasing the percentage of underdrained lands. This thought is worth consideration in every drainage along the line of our road.

Y. M. C. A. WIN MATCH.

Pop Whalen and Mert Ingraham put it all over Richards and Eyerkuss in the bowling match at the Y. M. C. A. last Saturday night. They not only defeated their opponents from across the Raritan, but trimmed them in every game, not ever allowing their individual opponents to win a single game. Pop and Mert were hardly up to their usual form, but they won the match by a total of 357 pins, an average of over fifty pins a game. This duo has lost but one match this year and by defeating the Perth Amboy team in this match, they greatly added to their already abundant laurels. Ingraham was the high score fan of the match.

SHERIDANS LOOSE

TO THE EMPIRES

The Sheridans Jr.s. lost their third consecutive game to the Empires on the Sheridan Field last Sunday morning by a 4 to 3 score. It looked as if the Sheridans had the game sewed up until the eighth inning when a batting rally was started that won the game. McDonnell of the Empires was a little wild in his pitching and allowed six men free passes to the initial sack, but this was offset by his ability to make the other batters take the strike out route. He was successful in striking out five while the opposing pitcher, Clarke, didn't get any to his credit. Mac had one bad inning, the sixth, in which he passed a man with the bases full. Whalen scored three of the Empires runs and his fielding was also notable.

O'Toole, of the Sheridan Jr.s, was right there with the stick work and made two hits one of which was a double. Buskey also got two hits and one of them was a double.

The Sheridans Jr.s. were the makers of more than twice the errors of their opponents but some of them were made on hard chances. Altogether the game was well worth while.

SPORTING NOTES.

Who said they don't come back? Look at "Not Casey's Work" last Sunday. In the South River-Sheridan game he struck out five men and allowed seven hits. The opposing pitcher got eight strike outs and allowed four hits and he's a league man at that.

"Nut" was a trifle free with passes though, and the five trips equaled his strike-out record, but as of old he was right there with the base pilfering stuff.

What a reputation will do was demonstrated last Sunday when the Sheridans went up to cross bats with the South River team on Miller's Field. It seems that they thought they were against the old Athletics and had loaded up with an Atlantic League pitcher. Judging from reports of the game it was a good thing they did for the Sheridans had their war paint on.

Mayor Fee, of South River, walked out to the home plate on Miller's Field last Sunday and with what was left of a once mighty wing hurled the sphere straight to Pitcher Kelleher.

Ever notice how straight those first opening balls travel and how the receiver usually has to break his back in the scramble to get it?

Bob Manaker demonstrated that his legs were as swift and nimble this year as ever before in the game at South River last Sunday. The way that Bob covered ground in the outer gardens was something to wonder at, according to some of the spectators. Bob's fielding was better than last year, too, they say.

"MIRACLE" ENGINEERING.

How many of the thousands of young men who are graduated every year from the engineering departments of our colleges know the real meaning of the word "engineer"? muses the editor of the current issue of Power.

The percentage seems to be rather low. They seem to have a blind faith in the college's ability to make engineers of them. They spend the four years studying books and wait until after graduation to discover that what has been done in school is a very small part of what they must do before they can call themselves engineers.

Our colleges are doing a great work and deserve the highest commendation, but too much is demanded of them by many people. Too much faith is placed in their ability to perform miracles. Many a man thinks that an engineering college should be able to take his boy, who is naturally cut out to be a ribbon-counter clerk, and by some mysterious process turn him out at end of four years a second "Steinmetz." Probably more often the boy enters college laboring under this same delusion.

There is no engineering college in existence, no matter how efficient its staff of instructors, or how well planned its course of studies, that can transform a young man who has had little or no practical experience into a finished engineer.

The primary object of any engineering college is not to produce engineers, but to produce men who can think.

A SLIDE ON A ROOF

Terrifying Experience on an Ice Coated Mansard.

FIGHTING DEATH IN MIDAIR

Perilous Plight of Two Workers, and an Exhibition of Coolness, Presence of Mind and Heroic Patience—How the Difficult Rescue Was Effected.

During the fall and winter of 1870 A. T. Stewart, who had bought the Grand Union hotel at Saratoga, largely rebuilt that great hostelry of 2,000 rooms. The building has a mansard roof, and at the peak it is ninety-eight feet from the sidewalk.

One cold winter morning, when the work was virtually completed, two men, Harvey, the head roofer, and a helper named Dennison went up on the roof to finish the flashing round the base of the tower. There had been a slight mist that morning, and it had frozen upon the roof, but the two men had on india rubber overshoes to prevent them from slipping on the slates.

Suddenly, however, Harvey's feet began to slip. He went very slowly at first, for the upper roof of a mansard is not steep. He tried to stop himself, but there was nothing to which he could cling. He turned his head in Dennison's direction to see if he could not give some assistance, but Dennison, too, was sliding slowly down the roof.

Harvey's presence of mind did not leave him. "Lie down flat!" he called. So both men carefully laid themselves at full length on the icy roof in order that the increased friction might retard, and perhaps stop, their descent. For an instant it checked the movement. Then the men began again slowly to slip nearer the angle of the roof and the steep pitch below.

It seemed like hours, although it was only a few moments, when Harvey felt his heels catch on a slight projection. A blind gutter had been built into the lower edge of the upper part of the roof to carry off the large amount of water that would fall upon such an expanse of roof. The upper gutter projected above the slate roof only about half an inch, but it was against this that Harvey's heels had caught.

There he hung on the very brink of the abyss—safe for an instant. He dared not move a muscle, however, or even turn his head to see if Dennison were still on the roof. He did not cry out for help, for he feared that the mere effort of filling his lungs and shouting might dislodge him. No one could see the men on the flat of the roof from the street below. The only hope lay in the carpenters who were at work inside the building. But how should they know what was happening up there on the roof?

Suddenly Harvey heard a voice, low, but distinct, come from the tower above him. "Hold on," it said, "and I'll help you!" Then after a long time Harvey heard the sound of several voices. Whoever had found him had got help.

The first voice spoke again: "Hold on! We will lower this rope to you!"

Presently something rubbed on the slate above Harvey's head. It was the rope, which they were slowly working down toward him.

"Can you get hold of it?" asked the voice.

"I don't dare move much," Harvey replied. "Can't you get it down near my hand?"

They had to give it a flip to get it by his shoulder. Then it traversed the length of his arm and finally touched his hand.

Harvey raised his arm very carefully and took hold of the rope. It was an inch cable that had been used in raising the slate from the ground to the roof.

"Can you turn over very carefully and climb up?" asked the voice.

Cautiously Harvey worked his hand along on the rope—it was his right hand—until he finally drew it taut. Then he carefully raised his left hand and, reaching across, grasped the rope with that hand too.

Then when the worst of the matter was over, he began to shake like a leaf. He lay there, flat on his back, clinging desperately to the rope and dreading unexpressedly the next step. How was he to turn over on that slippery roof when he needed both hands to cling to the rope?

At last he spoke hoarsely:

"Can you pull me up?"

They consulted together.

"I don't dare to turn over," he added.

There was a sharp tug on the rope. Harvey let them draw his arms up to their extreme length, still afraid to trust his weight to his rescuers. Then he felt his heels lose their grip on the gutter, and he began slowly to move upward.

It was not till he had nearly reached the tower that he dared turn his head in Dennison's direction to see if he were still safe. There he was, spread out on the roof, just as Harvey had been. He did not move a muscle patiently, heroically, he waited his turn. Then the men seized Harvey's shoulders and drew him into the tower.

In a few minutes Dennison was also rescued, looking a little blue round the mouth, but unharmed. Neither man suffered any ill effects from his terrible accident.—Youth's Companion.

The roads to ruin are always kept in good repair.

THE COAL MARKET.

Heavy movement of anthracite but spring opening lacks the customary snap. Bituminous completely flat in all sections. Curtailment in industrial activity, large stocks and indications of an early resumption of mining has brought business to a standstill. Outlook poor.

Although the anthracite trade is experiencing a certain spring activity, it is becoming more apparent all the time that there is an absence of the customary snap and urgency. As usual, all companies will carry some of the April orders over to May, particularly for stove coal, and this paucity of supplies is being accentuated by a recurrence of the incipient "button" strikes, which has threatened to materially restrict production. The trade is most active in the line business; the situation at tidewater is showing a tendency to drag and lake shipping is slow in getting under way. The large output of domestic coal is also threatening to develop a surplus of the steam grades.

The demand for prompt bituminous has disappeared almost entirely. Prices are weakening, and coal of all kinds continues to pile up. The movement is confined entirely to contracts, requisitions on which are heavily entailed as a result of the large stocks accumulated in anticipation of labor difficulties, and also in part to the general industrial curtailment. Much demurrage coal is being forced on the market, indicating considerable speculation on the labor agreement, and the situation will be further aggravated by the general resumption of operations in the central Pennsylvania district.—Coal Age.

P. CHURCH NOTES

The special church service held last Thursday evening in place of the class and prayer meeting proved a very helpful departure. The entire service was in keeping with the crucifixion of Christ. The choir sang impressively, "Nailed to the Cross and Crucified." The church hymns and lesson, with the sermon on the theme "Watching at the Cross" made all feel anew what Jesus endured for the whole world.

The last practise of the Easter music was held at the parsonage Friday evening.

The bright, beautiful dawn of Easter Sunday seemed to have its effect in an increased attendance at all the services held last Sunday in the church. The church was decorated with Easter lilies, hyacinths, daffodils, ferns, palms, etc., which made it look more like Easter. The singing, speaking, etc., was all in keeping with the day. The pastor preached in the morning on 1 Cor. 15, 35; "How are the dead raised and with what body do they come?" God's redeemed children found great comfort in the assurance that immortality of eternal bliss awaited them at the general resurrection of the dead. Several new faces were present with us. Truly in the language of Revelations 1, 10; was very evident by the morning congregation.

Because of the indisposition of the regular leader for Junior C. E. the pastor took charge and spoke to the little folks on the Easter story, topic, "Why I am glad that I am alive." They seemed to drink in and enjoy the rehearsal of the resurrection.

A goodly number was present at the Sunday School and all engaged in the study of the Easter subject from a biblical point of view and a number of lessons were taught and learned.

The Sunday School turned in a fine offering for the Board of General Home Missions. This, after the large offering of the past Sunday of $76.32 to parsonage fund, proved that in helping others God will help us.

Mr. Howard Bloodgood led the Senior C. E. service at 7 p. m. Another Easter service—subject "A look ahead." It was handled in a fine manner and a number of helpful lessons enjoyed.

Several more birthday offerings were put in the glass banks by scholars of the school.

At the close of the Senior C. E. the evening Easter exercises by the children took place. There was a large attendance. The little ones did their best and told the story, not this time of the Babe of Bethlehem but the resurrected Christ and with their dialogues, recitations, songs, etc., was helpful indeed.

The choir after a goodly number of evenings at practice rendered the Easter carols in an acceptable and impressive way. The solos, duets, and chorus all seeming to produce a grand effect as the resurrection was again told in song.

The offerings of the entire day was for Home Missions whose slogan is "America for Jesus Christ." The full assessment levied by the conference was met and a little over. We want to publicly thank the parents and friends as well as the children for their help and generous giving for this good cause. Some who could not be with us to enjoy the Easter services sent their envelopes with their offering therein so while detained on account of sickness they did not forget the Lord's cause. See St. Luke 6, 38.

Mrs. Stuart very kindly sent a beautiful Easter lily to the church to be given afterward to the pastor's wife, which was thankfully received.

The Sunshine Committee of the Jr. M. society was very busy and carrying Easter baskets of gum, candies, etc., to quite a great many, especially one who was quarantined.

to in this way correct was made in last the writer and not amount stated to be or the parsonage was only $650, and at the 1 members are giving other year or so occasion for the day, the second ready some are for it and then of around breaking for new parsonage at Memorial Day season.

Several of our members with the pastor attended the Good Friday service at the Christ Episcopal Church, in the afternoon and were very much benefitted as they listen to the Rector speak on the "Seven Sayings from Christ on the Cross."

PRONOUNCING ENGLISH.

Going Astray on the Correct Use of "u" and "ew" Sounds.

A curious feature of the English language as it is spoken in this part of the United States is the prevalence of a dual system of pronunciation. The dictionaries tell us unequivocally that we should pronounce "dew," "knew" and "stew" as we do "few," and that "student," "stupid" and similar words should be enunciated as if they were spelled "stident" and "stupid."

Nobody, apparently, disputes the correctness of this manner of pronouncing "u" and "ew"—yet here is a rule very much more honored in the breach than in the observance. Except for stage folks, the faculties and some of the students of schools and colleges and a few persons who make a point of precise speaking, the academic sound of "u" is disregarded almost universally.

It is by no means through ignorance that people say "stoo" and "stupid." There are worthy persons who seem to feel that a good American really ought to say "stoo" and "stupid." They think, apparently, that the orthodox "u" and "ew" are Anglicisms and are used in this country only by persons pedantic or "affected."

Of course, for all practical purposes one way of pronouncing is as good as another and usage has made both forms correct. Nevertheless, the right use of "u" and "ew" adds music and variety to the English language, and the younger generation might do well to pronounce according to the dictionary and gradually overcome an "Americanism" that has no real good excuse for being.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Spoiled Musicians.

Rubinstein disapproved of marriage for musicians. Just before his death he spoke sadly of his Russian lady pupils. "What have I wasted all my time on them for?" he asked irritably. "Every one married! It's too provoking! Here they are, spoiled forever for art life. What did they study for?"

The London Musical World remarks that "those who ask why we have no great lady composers may be left to think of these things."

A Narrow Range of Choice.

Sylvia, supple and slender, and Aunt Belle, bulky and benign, had returned from a shopping tour. Each had been trying to buy a ready made suit.

When they returned home Sylvia was asked what success each had in her efforts to be fitted. "Well," said Sylvia, "I got along pretty well, but Aunt Belle is getting so fat that about all she can get ready made is an umbrella."—Youth's Companion.

A Bit Different.

SEED CORN.

Demonstrations conducted by John H. Voorhees, of the Extension Department of the New Jersey Experiment Station during the past season proved very conclusively the value of seed corn selection. Yields of corn from different lots of seed corn taken from the farmers' supplies and planted under similar conditions showed that the difference in seed corn was responsible for a difference in yield of thirty, forty, and in one case, sixty bushels per acre.

If you do not know that your own seed corn is the best in your neighborhood you should find out. If it is not the best, then buy seed corn from the farmer who has the best. Good seed corn with vitality pays for itself in a single season.

When you have obtained a good strain of corn, care should be exercised in maintaining its vitality. The most improved method of selection embodied the separation of the good ears at the time of husking for storage under proper conditions of moisture, temperature and ventilation. It should be kept at a temperature of 45 to 60 degrees in a place where air is free to circulate.

During winter when work on the farm is less, each ear should be tested for germination, and those not showing strong vitality as shown by the germination test, discarded. In the spring, previous to planting, corn should be shelled and the grains from the center of each ear kept for planting. It is not wise to save the grains from the tips and butts on account of their irregularity of shape.

The Extension Department of the Experiment Station at New Brunswick offers its assistance in any who are interested, and it will gladly furnish information regarding the selection and testing of seed corn.

ECCENTRIC DE QUINCEY.

He Often Greeted Visitors While Half Dressed and Bare Footed.

De Quincey's habits were so simple as to be almost ascetic, and he subsisted upon the lightest possible diet. His digestive trouble and neuralgic suffering, which first led to his taking opium, caused him early to lose his teeth, and from the extreme delicacy of his system he could eat nothing less capable of mastication than bread, so that article with a little soup or coffee was apt to comprise his whole dinner.

In reference to his manner of dress his daughter has said:

"His dress, unfortunately, he neither cared for himself, nor would he let others care for it. I say unfortunately, because his carelessness gave rise among punctilious people, unaccustomed to eccentric habits, to an impression of poverty for which there was no foundation. It might be that a thought occurred to him in the midst of some of his irregular processes of dressing or undressing (I should say some thought did generally strike him at that time), and he would stop with his coat just taken off, or not put on, without stockings at all, or with one off and one on, and becoming lost in what grew out of this thought, he would work for hours, hardly even noticing the coffee which was his chief support at such times.

"In the midst of this absorbing work would arrive visitors, of whom there were many, probably from such a distance that they could not be turned back without slight of the object of their long pilgrimage, upon which my father, with the unaffected courtesy which was one of the great charms of his character, would appear at once rather than keep them waiting while he put on his stockings, or whatever may be wanting or which was just likely in the wrong place, giving rise to awkward impressions of poverty with some, while those who could withdraw their unaccustomed eyes from the nakedness of the land, as expounded by his feet, might have seen in his surroundings signs of scrupulous neatness, sufficient comfort and refinement enough to reassure them on this point.

"His presence at home was the signal for a crowd of beggars, among whom, borrowed babies and drunken old women were sure of the largest share of the sympathy he refused to none."—From Caroline Tieknor's "Lawthorne and His Publisher."

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS.

Grand Opera House.

"Young Wisdom," said to be one of the most delightful comedy successes of the season, will hold the boards for one week at the Grand Opera House, New York, beginning Monday night, April 20th, with Mabel and Edith Taliaferro in the chief roles as co-stars. Both local favorites, the sisters make their debut in a play humorously written by Rachel Crothers and which teaches that mother's old fashioned ideas are built upon the most solid foundation and that the things you think are new and which you strive to keep from her, are as old as the hills and have been rejected by mother as worthless long ago. Direct from a long run at the Gaiety Theatre, New York, and more recently at Powers' Theatre, Chicago, it comes heralded with the unanimous praise of critics, and what is more important the cachet of a big office success. The story concerns two sisters, Gail and Victoria Claffenden, who have become incultured with the doctrine of feminine freedom in all things including love. Gail Claffenden on the eve of her marriage to a highly circumpect young man of impeccable character and connections has induced him to run off without going through the usual orthodox ceremony. The circumpect one is called Peter Van Horn. After Peter and Gail have left to find the untrammeled fields of freedom the sweetheart of Victoria persuades her to practice her own preachments. This has all been prearranged by Peter and Christopher, the fellow victim of the advanced doctrine on love.

The couples meet at a farmhouse on a lonely road in the middle of the night. An artist is their host, and the key to the riddle. Under the pretext of taking them to the next town to find a minister he drives them back to the Claffenden home. Victoria agrees she is not quite so sure about wanting to scale the heights of freedom illegally, but admits she does harbor the old-fashioned love for Christopher. Gail balks at becoming Mrs. Peter and declares she knew the artist host was her real destiny the minute he took her in his strong arms and carried her away in an automobile. Then Peter, being a congenial young chap, carries the four of them away on another elopement, with mother along to chaperon the party. Joseph Brooks has surrounded the sisters with a most capable company.

Forty-Eighth Street Theatre.

The great interest that New York's 400 has evinced in "To-Day," now in its seventh month at the 48th Street theatre, New York, has been one of many reasons contributing to the prolonged run of "the vital and vivid drama of life." Its story, having to do with the experiences of a young married couple, suddenly denied the luxuries of life by the business reverses of the husband, is of particular appeal to society. How society regards the play is revealed by a letter recently received by Manager Harry VonTilzer from Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, after she and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish had witnessed a matinee performance. Mrs. Belmont's letter is as follows:

Dear Mr. VonTilzer:

Permit me to thank you for your courtesy of yesterday afternoon in giving me the great privilege and pleasure of attending the performance of "To-Day" at the 48th Street Theatre.

I was intensely interested in this splendid production from the beginning to its close. The lesson which it conveys is one of vital importance, and grows increasingly so every day. That the love of luxury and personal adornment forms the basis of one of the greatest problems American life is confronted with; that life among our women has reached the perilous stage; that the craze for vulgar display and outdoing one's neighbors has developed into a national disease; that the cultivation of the intellect is more and more being sacrificed to the mania for acquiring things; all are forcefully and effectively brought out in this really great play, "To-Day."

One of my guests in the box at the matinee, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, was witnessing the play for the second time, and was just as enthusiastic over its merits as on the first occasion. She declared that it made a deep impression upon her and that its possibilities for the best kind of influence were enormous. Another guest, Miss Lela Robinson, an inveterate theatre-goer, pronounced it the most intensely interesting play of the season.

I congratulate the playwrights upon their brilliant conception, the management of their wisdom in choosing the play; and, above all, the splendid company for their intelligent interpretation, their artistic and realistic portrayal, and their unusual talent which was always in evidence.

Again thanking you for your courtesy, believe me,

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) Mrs. Belmont

A DARING PATRIOT

Feats of a Little Known Hero of Revolutionary Times.

JACK JOWETT'S BRAVE RACE.

It Saved Jefferson and the Virginia Assembly From Capture by Tarleton's Dragoons and Gave General Washington Valuable Information.

Most of the Revolutionary heroes have been immortalized in song or story, but there is one whose fame has never spread, as it should, beyond the region of his birth. His name was Jack Jowett. In the little city of Charlottesville, Va., there is a tablet on the building that stands on the site of his old tavern. But that simple bronze is the only memorial of his name and deeds.

In Revolutionary days young Jack Jowett kept the Swan tavern in Charlottesville. He was a patriot at a time when patriotism was dangerous, for Cornwallis was in possession of tide-water Virginia, and Tarleton and his cavalry were sweeping back and forth over the inland counties.

In June, 1781, the Virginia assembly abandoned Richmond, which Cornwallis threatened, and came to sit in Charlottesville. Among its members were such men as Patrick Henry, Richard Henry Lee and Benjamin Harrison, and the governor was no other than Thomas Jefferson. One bright morning when the state assembly was in session Jack mounted his thoroughbred mare and rode out to look over his farm outside the town. As he rode along he caught through the trees a glimpse of a British uniform flashing down a crossroad. He put his horse over the low stone wall and confronted the rider. It was one of Tarleton's troopers.

With a big pistol pointed at his head, the Englishman thought it wise to obey Jack's command to turn in at the gate of a nearby house and change clothing with him. Under threat of death the soldier divulged the fact that Tarleton was in the vicinity. Jowett at once galloped away in search of the enemy. The day passed without result, and Jack stopped at an inn to take a few hours' rest.

In the night he heard the tramp of horses and, looking out of his window, saw that the yard was full of British soldiers, led by Tarleton himself. The troopers entered the tavern and set down to drink and talk, quite unconscious that an enemy was on the stair above listening to every word. From their conversation Jowett learned that Tarleton commanded an advance guard that was halting to wait for the rest of the troop. Then they planned to dash on to Charlottesville and capture the Virginia assembly.

Jack Jowett set out at once in the cool of the dawn. Once he was chased by some troopers who trotted in from the pike that crossed his path, but his bay mare soon outpaced theirs. Like the wind he raced through lanes, over low stone fences, up the side of the hill to beautiful Monticello, the home of Governor Jefferson. He warned Jefferson of the approach of the British, and then, with a fresh horse, he dashed down the steep mountain road into Charlottesville. Rushing into the hall where the assembly was in session, he called to the members to flee, for Tarleton's dragoons would soon be at their heels. In a few moments the hall was empty, and the members were on their way across the mountains to Staunton, where they would be safe from pursuit.

Jack rode on to his tavern, but found there a wounded officer of the Continental army—General Stevens. He dressed the sick man in a suit of his own clothes, carried him downstairs and put him on the fresh horse, with bags of corn in front and behind—the very picture of an old farmer going to the mill. Side by side Jowett and Stevens rode out of town, which by 10 o'clock was in the possession of Tarleton's men. Pausing as he reached the top of a hill, Jack saw his own tavern in flames.

The British, who had reason to suspect the young man in a uniform, set out in chase of him, but Jack's horse was again too speedy for them, and he got safely away to Washington with the news that Tarleton was no longer acting in support of Cornwallis—a bit of information that was of the greatest value to the commander of the Continental army.

To Jack Jowett's quick wit and daring the author of the Declaration of Independence and many another hardly less famous patriot owed their liberty and perhaps their escape from a traitor's death upon the scaffold. Youth's Companion.

A Marshal's Retort.

It is on record that the Prince of Orange, filled with rage because he had been beaten at Fleurus, Leuze, Steinkerk and Nerwinde, alluding to the Marshal of Luxembourg:

"Can it be that I shall never beat that hunchback?"

"How does he know that I am a hunchback?" said the French marshal. "He never saw my back; I always saw his."

THREE NOTCH ROADS.

Their Curious Title Comes From the Name of George III.

In Missouri and some other central western states there are roads that are called "three notch roads." They are public highways as distinguished from the roads that lead to a sawmill, a schoolhouse, a church or an isolated farmhouse. A three notch road "goes somewhere." Proceeding along such a road, the traveler is bound, in time, to reach a town.

There lies behind the curious title an interesting story. It appears that King George III. decreed that all English public roads, as king's highways, should be marked with his name. In the colonies it was often impossible to mark the roads with the care and thoroughness that were used in England, and in the wilderness it was enough to cut three notches on the largest trees along the roads.

After the Revolution, of course, the name of King George was omitted, but the three notches proved useful as a means of marking public roads. Virginia colonists, it is said, carried the practice into Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana, and their children, in turn, carried it into Missouri.

Originally Missouri had no counties. Later, when they were formed, the state decided that if the task were left to the counties there would be little road building. Accordingly, the state constructed the roads and marked them with three notches. Later, when the counties undertook to build roads, they were designated in the timber country by two notches. Prior to and during the war between the states the distinction was preserved, and three notch roads were always "through roads" that led from one town of importance to another. Two notch roads were less important highways, and roads notched at all were either rail roads or plank roads. A rail road was a road leading to a camp where men split rails, and a plank road led to a sawmill—Youth's Companion.

Brief Illness Beneficial.

There are some who confess that they never really read or appreciated their daily paper until they had to stay in bed to read it and suddenly discovered it was rather good reading. Cooking Points

About Ham.

Baked ham keeps better than boiled ham, and what is left from the first meal may be served cold or form the ingredient in some other savory dish for a later day.

Baked corned ham is a novelty. Soak the ham in water overnight. In the morning take a brush and scrub it and pare the bare side until meat and fat look red and white. Then use vinegar to wash it with. When it drains lay with the skin side down in a roasting pan. Make a thick paste of flour and water and cover the pared side with this. Mix together a half cupful of vinegar, a cupful of cold water, a tablespoonful each of molasses and onion juice. Pour this around the ham. Cover the pan closely and bake, allowing half an hour to each pound after the water becomes hot. Baste several times with the liquid in the pan. When done take out of the oven and scrape off the paste. Then instantly dust with cracker crumbs to stop the flow of the juice. Then set back in the oven to brown.

Orange Custard Pudding.

To make this pudding take a quart of milk, allow it to heat over the fire, but not to boil. Put the lightly beaten yolks of five eggs and the whites of two and four ounces of sugar into it. Take from the fire and stir well, adding the well grated rind of an orange. Pour into a buttered pudding dish. Put this in a pan of boiling water in the oven and bake. Beat the whites of three eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar to a stiff froth and when the pudding is done and has been removed from the oven spread this froth over and return to the oven for two or three minutes to harden.

Orange Sauce.—Take five tablespoonfuls of butter and rub them into a cupful of granulated sugar. Take a saucepan and put the sugar into it, adding a cupful of boiling water, the juice of two oranges, the juice of half a lemon and the whites of three eggs. Beat until it is foamy and then serve.

Apple and Nut Meringue.

To prepare this dish wash, halve and core some baking apples. Place in a rather deep baking dish, and into each half put a dot of butter, teaspoonful or more of sugar, depending upon the acidity of the apple, one-half cupful of water. Bake slowly. If apples are not good bakers stew covered on top of stove until tender, then place in the oven to brown slightly. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, beat in one-half cupful of sugar, cover the apples and sprinkle over top broken nut meats and shredded coconut. Lightly brown in the oven.

Celery With Hollandaise.

Boiled celery with hollandaise sauce can be made into a delicious entree and served as a separate course. The bunches should be washed as carefully as possible without separating the stalks. They are then tied to preserve their shape while boiling. Small, tender bunches require almost an hour's cooking. To serve split each bunch in half, which is a single portion, and serve with hollandaise sauce made from the water in which the celery has boiled, as this strengthens the vegetable flavor.

A Pudding Economy.

Sometimes the housewife has two or three scraps of different puddings left over.

Take a fork and break and mix them well together, put them into a clean pie dish, make about a pint of custard, mix half of this with the cold pudding and pour the rest over the top. Bake in a slow oven.

Cakemaking Hint.

To bake a cake well and with very little trouble have two cake tins the same shape and size. Put the cake mixture into one tin and place the other over it so that the rims meet. The cake rises better, as the cooler air caused by opening the oven door is not allowed to penetrate.

Baked Apples.

When baking apples cut through the end all round just a little way from the stem before putting the apples in the oven. The apples will keep their proper shape without bursting, and the cut part will not show when they are placed on the dish.

Kipperd Herring.

After the herring are cleaned rinse in warm water, dry and put on tin or grate plate in hot oven fifteen minutes, then pour on a little melted butter, cover and leave in five minutes more. They should be served on pieces of toast.

Worth Knowing.

Beef suet is used not nearly as much as it might be. Doughnuts fried in it are not greasy like those fried in lard and are much nicer. Beefsteak fried in suet is also better than that fried in butter, the suet making a flatter crust.

To Prevent Burning.

When you are making a thick soup or cooking any starch food in a saucepan the best way to prevent its burning or boiling over is to bring it to the boil on the top of the stove then cover and baste cooking in the oven.

FIRE DESTROYS SHED.

About 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning a shed in the rear of the home of Mrs. Thomas Lyons on Augusta street was discovered on fire, and an alarm was sent in from Box
36. The shed was burning fiercely and volunteers with buckets and pans kept the blaze from getting fire to the house until the fire department arrived. Independence Engine Company ran out a line of hose and in quick time extinguished the blaze.
The shed was destroyed. How the fire started is a mystery, as the shed was used principally as a store room and there was no fire in it. It is supposed that it may have been ensued by children playing with matches, or some boys may have thrown down
a lighted cigarette.

Claimants For Ryan Estate From Chicago

The following is taken from a Chicago paper:

"An estate of $10,000 in Deon County, Limerick, Ireland, awaits Mrs.
Mary Fitzgerald and her husband,
William, who are believed to be residents of Chicago, according to a letter received yesterday by Captain John J. Halpin from E. J. O'Connor, a merchant of South Amboy, N. J. The latter stated that John Ryan, a relative of the Fitzgeralds, recently died in Deon County naming them in his will."

The estate referred to above is not located in Ireland, but probably refers to the estate in this city of John Ryan, who recently died, and for which Surrogate Clayton appointed John Quinlan as administrator. It is stated that Mrs. Fitzgerald is a niece of the deceased. The Fitzgeralds visited this city about two weeks ago and put in a claim for the estate.

BRICK WORKS PROPERTY.

Much interest is manifested in this city in the suit of Henry M. Brackett to recover the brick works property on Cheesapeake Creek, which he claims was taken from him through fraud and conspiracy. It would prove very beneficial to this city, if the plant could be placed on an operating basis and furnish employment to the people of this city and vicinity. There would seem to be no reason why the plant could not be made a flourishing concern. If Brackett should again become in control, he promises that he can get many orders to keep the works booming.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS.

List of letters remaining unclaimed for at the Post Office, for the week ending April 18, 1914:

Charles M. Miller, Scher. William
Jones (2), Capt. Edward Moore, Barge
Stratford; Mr. and Mrs. Max Bulley.

In calling for above letters, please say "advertised." If not called for in thirty days, these letters will be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

A Promise

It Was Well Kept and
Did Great Good

By EVERITT P. CLARKE

I. About the middle of the nineteenth century, when the wild and woolly west deserved the appellation, a girl in a frontiersman's cabin was getting supper in anticipation of her father's coming home from attending to his daily duties. She was about fifteen years old and seemed to be made up principally of arms and legs. Nevertheless her face was pretty, and she gave promise after passing the filly age of making a comely woman. While she was standing over the cook stove she heard a clattering of horse's hoofs without, which grew rapidly nearer, and in a few moments a horseman galloped up to the door and threw himself from his animal, which he struck on the haunch and sent on its way.

"Hide me! For heaven's sake, hide me!" he said to the girl.

His haste made it plain that there was no time for explanation, and the girl, moved by his piteous condition,

"FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, HIDE ME!" HE SAID TO THE GIRL.

led him to an upper story of the house and put him in a closet. Then, going below, she waited breathlessly for what might happen. But a few minutes elapsed before half a dozen men broke into the clearing and came toward the house. All passed on but one, who pulled up at the open door and called out to the girl:

"Seen a man go by here just now?"

"Yes."

"Which way did he go?"

"I heard his horse gallopin' into the timber over there," pointing.

The man started off and joined the others. After awhile the fugitive came downstairs. He was not over twenty-five years old and good looking, though his face was ashy pale. He went up to the girl, took her hand in his and said feelingly:

"You've saved my life."

"What did they want with you?" she asked.

"They wanted to hang me."

"What for?"

"Well, I'm the slickest gambler in the territory. I went into the settlement down the creek and cleaned 'em all out. Besides, I've done more shooting than all the rest of 'em put together. They decided that I am too desperate a character to have around, so they concluded to git rid of me."

The girl listened to this with a sober countenance.

"What makes you look so sorry?" asked the man.

"I don't like to think of you as a gambler."

He seemed touched by her interest in him. "What difference does it make to you whether I'm good or bad?" he asked.

"Reckon I'd rather save a good man from the vigilantes than a bad one. I suppose I should have given you up."

The man looked at her intently for a few moments, then, "But you didn't," he said. "Would you have given me up if you had known I was a gambler?"

"I don't know that I would."

"Would you rather I wouldn't be a gambler?"

"Yes."

"Or a shooter?"

"Yes."

"Little girl, give me some of that supper you're cookin'. I'm hungry and need sustenance."

The girl, who had been frying some bacon and potatoes, put a part of them on a plate and set it on the table. The young man sat down, and she poured him a cupful of coffee. He had some food recovered his nerves and ate heartily. When he had finished he rose and pointing out on the table a heap of money that he had won by gambling, looked at her as much as to say, "Will you take it?"

She shook her head.

A look of disappointment crossed his face.

"What can I do," he asked, "to repay you for saving me from the vigilantes?"

"Stop gamblin' and shootin' at all the other things."

He made no reply to this, but seemed to have been deeply moved. He stood looking out through the open door in the direction the vigilantes had taken and listening. Presently he said:

"I reckon I'd better git out of here while I have a chance. They'll overtake my horse and, seein' no rider on him, will know that they've passed me. They'll come back for me."

He took the girl's hand and looked earnestly into her eyes.

"Say, little gal, if it hadn't been for you I'd be swingin' now. You own the rest of my life. For you I'll stop gamblin' and shootin' and the other things. Goodbye."

He bent down, kissed her, then struck out for the timber on that side of the clearing from which he had come.

II.

In a gambling house a man was dealing faro to a motley crowd, few of whom possessed some claims to respectability, while the most of them were rascals. A young clergyman, whose calling was denoted solely by a white necktie, entered and announced that services would be held that evening in the building commonly used for a dance hall and he hoped that all in the room would make it a point to attend. No one paid any attention to him. Presently his attention was arrested by a girl of twenty who entered the room, walked up to an elderly man who sat at one of the tables where a game of poker was being played and, placing her hand on his shoulder, said persuasively:

"Come away, father."

The clergyman watched her, looking into her face inquiringly. When she spoke he started. Memory seemed to be working within him. Then suddenly something was recalled, and his face lighted up.

"You go home with your daughter," he said to the man the girl was trying to get away, "and I'll play your hand for you."

Every one at the table looked at the speaker wonderingly, for a clergyman to gamble, even for another, was remarkable. The man he addressed looked up at him curiously and saw something in the resolute face that led him to obey. He rose from the table and gave the clergyman his seat. The girl, too, looked at the latter curiously, then took her father by the arm and was leading him away when the clergyman asked:

"How much have you lost?"

"All I had—$1,200."

The father and daughter passed out, and the game went on. There were three men at the table besides the one in the white necktie, and every one of the three was a card sharp. There were old tricks and new tricks practiced by the sharps. The clergyman seemed a bit unfamiliar with the new, but thoroughly versed in the old. However, he had not played long before all schemes were alike familiar to him. The game was simply one of wits against wits. When a player was detected in cheating he returned his winnings. He was not abashed, and no one objected. As the game went on a number of persons stood about the table watching it, especially interested in the clergyman's sleight of hand. Slowly, but surely, the pile of bank bills and gold pieces before him increased. It was not only his skill in card manipulating that attracted attention, but that one of his calling should be so versed in the ways of card sharps. At last he called a halt and counted his winnings. They figured $1,200. Showing the $60 over to the others, he scooped the rest into his handkerchief and, rising from the table, said:

"Gentlemen, I trust you will all be at the services this evening."

What five years before had been a clearing had now grown into a town. True, there was but one street in it, but the clergyman, leaving the gambling den, pursued that street, stopped before a house and knocked at the door. It was opened by the girl who had led her father from the game.

"I have brought you," said the latter, "the sum you told me you had lost to those card sharps."

And he emptied his handkerchief of its contents on the table.

Both father and daughter looked at him with the same continued astonishment.

"Do you remember some years ago," said the clergyman to the girl, "saying a man's life from a vigilance committee?"

"I do."

"He was to repay you by abjuring his evil ways and trying to be of some use in the world."

"You are that man?"

"I am."

"You are no older looking than then, but you are different looking, else I would have known you."

"I have kept my promise. I did I can do most good among the people with whom I was familiar in those days, now horrible to me, when I was a card sharp and a desperado. It is to you I owe my reformation as well as my life."

Then, turning to the father of the girl, he added: "The men with whom you were playing are cheats. You are no match for them. What they took from you dishonestly I got back honestly, for we all knew that it was not cards we were playing but sleight of hand with cards."

The fame of the clergyman who had beaten card sharps at their own game spread abroad and curiously to see him brought him a large assemblage at the meeting he had announced for the evening. Many were moved by his eloquence. Before he left the place he had reformed it and with him as his wife and co-worker went the girl who, by reforming him, reformed many others.

LIGHT OF THE SUN

In Its Pure State We on the Earth
Have Never Seen It.

SOME RAYS DO NOT REACH US.

If They Did They Would Probably Destroy Life as It Exists on Our Planet. Daylight and Sunlight Differ Almost as Much as Do Wine and Water.

"As clear as daylight" expresses in ordinary language a maximum of plainness and obviousness. Nevertheless daylight is one of the most complicated and capriciously variable of all natural phenomena.

Almost everybody you meet will tell you that daylight and sunlight are different names for the same thing. They think they know that much of astronomy anyway. But astronomy does not teach anything of the kind. Astronomy simply tells us that the sun is the primary cause or source of daylight, but it does not say that daylight and sunlight are identical. In fact, they differ almost as much as do water and wine.

But the degree of difference varies. Daylight is a mixture of two kinds of light, and its quality is continually changing, as everybody who has ever had anything to do with photography knows. The proportions of the two kinds of light that make daylight are not the same from hour to hour and hardly from minute to minute.

In clear weather, under an open sky, with the sun high in the heavens, daylight, says Professor Nichols of Cornell, is almost entirely sunlight. A white surface exposed to an unobscured sky receives directly from the sun 85 per cent of the light that illuminates it and only 15 per cent from other parts of the sky dome.

This other part of the illumination is called skylight, and it consists of light, nearly all of which came originally from the sun, but which has been changed in quality by reflection from the earth, from the clouds and from dust and vapor in the air. Many of the rays that characterized the original sunlight have been absorbed by the reflecting substances, so that what remains is no longer the same thing as before.

On a completely overcast day there is no sunlight, properly so called, but only skylight. Whether the sky is overcast or not the intensity of daylight varies with the hour of the day and with the season. This is due to differences in the elevation of the sun. These variations in the intensity of daylight are surprisingly great. The intensity is on the average ten times as great in midsummer as in midwinter, but this average comes far from expressing the utmost difference that can exist, for investigation has shown that between the clearest summer day and the darkest day of winter the ratio of the intensity of daylight may be as great as 300 to 1.

Besides, the quality of daylight is continually changing on account of the variations in the relative amounts of the different rays of the spectrum that are mingled in it. The spectrum of light is a gamut of vibrations, and the result of the selective action exercised by the substances and vapors, from which the light has been reflected and through which it has passed is to produce variations of color and of intensity of color, as well as of the quantity of invisible radiations present, and these variations are not the less real and important because the eye is not always fully aware of them.

As to pure sunlight, we never see it on the earth. The light that arrives to us from the sun has neither the color nor the intensity that it possesses before it enters the atmosphere. The ultraviolet rays especially are almost completely screened off by the atmosphere, and if they reached us in their full force it is probable that life as now organized on this planet would be destroyed by them.

Every different world has its own daylight, although all may be illuminated by the same sun. Not only does relative distance affect the intensity of daylight on different planets, but the constitution of their various atmospheres has an equally great effect. Venus has a daylight twice as intense as ours; Mars one-half as intense. On Jupiter the intensity is 1-25 of that on the earth; on Saturn, 1-400; on Neptune, 1-4,000.

But each of these planets has an atmosphere peculiar to itself, and thus the differences of daylight upon them are made still more remarkable. This is one of the first things to be taken into account in all speculations about the habitability of those other worlds—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

News Is Stranger Than Fiction

By MOSS.

—It would make this old world positively STUPID.

Why?

Because ADVERTISING IS NEWS, and we must keep pace with the news or grow stale.

Newspaper advertising—THE BEST ON EARTH—is displayed news, paid for with a purpose.

The latest news in newspaper advertising, a special sale of furs, a big reduction in suits, a saving in groceries, furniture at annual sale prices or live bars of soap for the price of three—all this latest news is as important to every housewife and the husband who pays the bills as the last word from Mexico or an account of the newest municipal or society scandal.

Advertising is POSITIVELY and ABSOLUTELY NEWS.

Successful advertisers make their ads as NEWSY as possible. Read the ads. In this paper as NEWS. Keep up with them. Truth is stranger than fiction. So is news.

In Spite of the Proof.

An American lady, living in China, had been teaching a class of young Chinamen. One day a native prince called on her in his fine robes and talked to her with some embarrassment.

"Madam," he said, "I came to you to see you about a matter that is very near to me. You have been teaching that the world is round."

"Yes," replied the instructor, "and I have been offering the proof."

"I know," said he, "but that is not what I came to see you about. It is all very good what you say, but, madam, I have always been taught that it is flat. I want to know if you would feel bad if I continued to think it flat?"

"Oh," replied the teacher, "it is not a matter of how I feel, but a matter of evidence. I demonstrate that it is round; I offer the proof; if you accept the evidence you think it round; if you reject it you think it flat."

Our intelligent friend was still unmoved, still more concerned about the object of his visit. "I understand," he said, "that all you say, madam, is good and reasonable. But would you mind if I still thought it flat?"—The Masses.

Ready With a Reason.

Some time ago a man from the city spent a few days in a country town, and while there a real estate dealer tried to interest him in suburban scenery. Returning to his hotel that night the city man saw the agent in the lobby.

"Look here, old fellow," remarked the city man, "I thought you told me that you didn't have any malaria down in this section?"

"That's just what I told you," was the prompt declaration of the agent, "and I told you right."

"Maybe you did," doubtfully returned the city man, "but just the same I saw a man down the road a few minutes ago with chills and fever."

"Oh, I see now," smiled the real estate man, with a look of enlightenment. "That was Smith. He was shuddering and shaking to think what his wife would say to him when he got home."—Exchange.

A School For Spies.

In St. Petersburg there exists to all intents and purposes a real university of the science and art of espionage. It consists of some six independent but harmonized faculties or departments, training and controlling the immense army of spies and "agents provocateurs" all over the empire and its innumerable centers all over the world. The art of opening letters, deciphering various codes and forging various handwritings; the histrionic art of personal disguises and of shadowing suspected persons and the science of manufacturing explosives and bombs for the supply of "agents provocateurs" in order to better entice would be revolutionists or simply for the sake of "discovering" imaginary dangerous conspiracies—these are the main subjects taught in this unique university.—Anglo-Russian.

Power of Water.

The power of water is enormous. A tiny jet of water descending 1,000 feet traveling at the rate of 100 yards a second cannot be cut into with an ax or a sword. It will fracture the best blades of Toledo steel. It will hurl an ax through an oak plank. It is quite impossible for a man to cut this stream through. To compute the power of falling water it is necessary to multiply the volume of flowing water in cubic feet per minute by its weight, 62.5 pounds, and this product by the vertical height of the fall in feet and divide by 33,000, the number of foot pounds representing one horsepower for one minute. A stream of water when flowing over a weir five feet in length by one foot in depth at the rate of one foot a second and having a fall of twenty feet develops eleven horsepower.

"THE MAN ON THE BOX."

Next week at the Auditorium Theatre, Perth Amboy, the stock company will offer "The Man on the Box," the play made famous by Henry E. Dixey who starred in the piece for two hundred nights in New York and for two seasons on the road. The play is a comedy of finest quality and is based on the novel of the same name by Harold Macgrath, which was one of the most popular novels of the year.

ANGLERS' LICENSE TO APPLY TO STATE STOCKED WATERS

The question of enforcing the new hunters' and anglers' license law, which becomes effective January 1, 1915, was discussed by the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners at its meeting Tuesday at Trenton. It was agreed that because of the concurrent jurisdiction exercised by New Jersey and Pennsylvania over the Delaware River, the law should not be enforced as to that stream.

It was also the judgment of the members of the board that inasmuch as the State has not stocked the tide waters of the State with fish, the new law should only be enforced with respect to those streams, lakes and ponds which have been or may hereafter be stocked at the expense of the State.

CHRIST CHURCH CHRONICLES

More than two hundred people attended the "Three Hours' Service" on Good Friday, and at the night service also there was a splendid congregation. It was gratifying to note that quite a number of non-Churchmen worshipped with us on that day. At the Passion Service, from 12 to 3 o'clock, practically all of the people present remained for the entire service.

At Evensong on Easter Even (Holy Saturday) there were five infants christened and one adult baptized. About fifty people were present in the congregation.

The Rector desires to express the thanks of himself and family for the many beautiful flowers sent them on Easter Day, many of the flowers doubtless being intended to bring a touch of Easter joy to the Rector's little daughter, Constance, very ill at the time, but now convalescent and out of danger. As some of the flowers coming from the florist did not have the name of the donor attached, the Rector regrets he cannot thank personally all of them, but trusts that this public acknowledgment may reach the eyes of the unknown givers.

Fishing by Moonlight.

On the Ningpo river, in China, moonlight fishing is carried on to a large extent. For this purpose a long, narrow, flat boat, provided on one side with a board sloping down into the water, and painted a bright white, is used. On the other side of this craft is a net stretched vertically on stanchions. The fish, attracted by the white board, jump upon it, and thence into the boat, the net preventing them from falling into the water on the other side.
