Shakespeare Bombs In South Amboy

The 9th grade English classes at H.G. Hoffman High School almost got to see Frederico Fellini's movie version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" in an almost-approved motion by the Board of Education last night that was quickly withdrawn on objections voiced by member Stanley Kovaleski.

On recommendation of Supt. Eugene Dobrzynski to sponsor the students and their teacher, Michael Olszak, to the movie, Frederic Reese moved for approval and was seconded by the Rev. Wilbur Newton.

However, when Mr. Kovaleski asked, "Is this the whole movie where people go traipsing around nude?" the motion was quickly withdrawn. Mr. Kovaleski then moved that permission not be granted for the trip and this was seconded by Mr. Reese and Mr. Newton.

Admitting that he has not seen the movie, but "I've read about it," Mr. Kovaleski said permission should be denied for the trip because of "a great deal of misinterpretation. My interpretation is that children should not see it."

Mr. Olszak said he had seen the movie and that it has not been rated according to the new movie code because of its acceptance as a classical piece of literature.

The library hours are as follows: Monday - 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Tuesday - 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Wednesday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Thursday 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to noon.

'No Meeting - No Modular Units'

Baffled because Mayor P. Joseph Rush has yet to convene a requested Board of School Estimate meeting on financing modular school units, Board of Education President William M. Kurtz now feels there is little hope of installing these units to abolish split sessions in the elementary school, by the end of this year, as originally expected.

Speaking during an interview yesterday afternoon, Mr. Kurtz said that since late July when he and other board members had asked for this meeting, he has had personal and written contact with state education officials, County Supt. Robert Blunt and the mayor, but has been unsuccessful in arranging the meeting. "While I don't think there's a lack of communication between our board and city officials," he said, "I do think the resolution of getting these units is being bogged down by our not meeting."

When the original request for a Board of School Estimate meeting was made, Mayor Rush asked for written approval from state officials and said it was necessary to contact City Attorney John Mullane and City Auditor Jasper Johnson to check whether or not the modular units had to go out on public bid.

At this point, Mr. Kurtz informed the mayor that since the modular units were to be leased as a temporary solution to rid over-crowded classrooms, the state Dept. of Education, through their Dr. Spare, had assured the school board that it was unnecessary to bid on them.

WILLIAM M. KURTZ

The board has conferred with the Farley-Nixon Co. of Clinton, N.J. for eight units that would cost $32,945 per year for a period of three years. There would be an option to purchase the units outright for the same cost at the end of the lease period. The Farley-Nixon people are prepared to begin installation on November 1 and have the units completed by December 1, 1969, provided they receive a contract from the board to do so.

"Since we have little more than a month to arrange the financing of these units," Mr. Kurtz said, "it seems to me we must have this meeting so that the costs may be properly advertised and a public hearing held." Since, he added, the mayor as head of the Board of School Estimate has the power to call this meeting, he is perplexed because he has not

CROWDING CONTINUES IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

In what seems to be a continuation of previous Board of Education meetings, the pressing need for more space to accommodate students, storage and sports fans was again last night the main concern of the board.

Meeting for the first time in their new headquarters in the old Methodist Church parsonage across from the school building, Supt. Eugene Dobrzynski told the board it may be necessary to consider split sessions or staggered classes in the high school to allow scheduling of classes that are now overcrowded. He reported on a memorandum from Mrs. Eleanor Dexheimer, business instructor, who had requested another room to accommodate typing students. Mr. Dobrzynski said it was impossible to do this because of classes that now meet in the requested room.

At this point, Board President William Kurtz said that he has been in the typing room and wonders that the students and teachers don't develop claustrophobia due to the closeness of the desks. Mr. Kurtz said, if necessary, the 7th and 8th grades would have to be put on split sessions and that a staggered schedule of classes for the business department would be considered.

The board gave the superintendent permission to get estimates on furnishing storage space for two sub-standard classrooms in the auditorium. These are two sections used as home-rooms and study halls. According to Adam Martin, high school principal, there have been many complaints on missing books and lunches as students store their belongings on open shelving that is used to divide the auditorium.

Approval was also given to have the superintendent acquire portable gates for the elementary school at an approximate cost of $1260. These gates would be used to close off classroom areas from the gymnasium during athletic events. Mr. Dobrzynski said it was important to have these gates before the start of the basketball season when crowds have, in the past, overflowed into

GOV. HUGHES TO SPEAK AT DEM DINNER

Governor Richard J. Hughes will be one of the prominent speakers at the annual Democratic Dinner-Dance sponsored by the local Democratic organization on Sunday, October 5, 1969, at the Jernee Mill Inn, Sayreville.

Ted Levandowski, chairman of the affair announced that Gov. Hughes, gubernatorial candidate Robert Meyner, and Middlesex County Democratic Chairman Herman Hoffman, will be the featured speakers. Freeholder John Phillips will act as toastmaster.

The dinner is slated to get underway at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the affair may be obtained from local Democratic Committee-men and committeewomen.

classroom areas. He asked the board to consider limiting the number of spectators allowed at the games, saying that the gym's capacity is 350 people. He also said that while current board policy is to admit only students above 7th grade to night games, it would be necessary to limit the spectators to allowed capacity, for both fire and accident precautions.

Modular Units At Standstill

Mr. Kurtz then reported on a meeting he and School Architect Thomas Vail had in Trenton with Dr. Spare of the State Education Dept. He said that assurance on two problems the board has encountered in arranging a meeting with the Board of School Estimate were discussed and, he felt, resolved. The first, he said, was that the leasing of modular units do not have to go on public bid; the second was that the State is reluctant to approve modular units as it fears what should be a temporary solution to over-crowding may become a permanent solution for South Amboy if the modular classrooms are installed. Mr. Kurtz said that he felt he had convinced the State Dept. that the request for modular units was a temporary measure. He said further that he had assured Dr. Spare that the board is continuing their regionalization study with Spotswood.

Told to get written approval from County Supt. Robert Blunt for the units as a temporary measure, Mr. Kurtz said this was also done. The problem now, Mr. Kurtz said, "is to have a meeting of the Board of School Estimate if we are to have the funds approved in October and have the units installed before the end of the year." Earlier, Mr. Kurtz had been told by Auditor Jasper Johnson that if the Board of School Estimate approves a sum for modular units and the plans are not approved by the state, this sum is then cancelled and the Board of School Estimate does not have any commitment. Mr. Johnson was present at the meeting with an audit report of school funds expended last year.

If the Board of School Estimate does not meet soon, Mr. Kurtz said, it would be impossible to have additional classrooms this year.

Teachers Hired

The board hired Mrs. Lulu Mae Modzelewski as a part time kindergarten teacher at a salary of $4275. She has over 17 years of teaching experience. Also hired as a science teacher for the 7th and 8th grades was Miss Noreen Cole at a salary of $10,100. Miss Cole has a master's degree and previous teaching experience.

done so. The board also includes board members Stanley Kovaleski and Joseph Keenan and Councilmen Frederick Henry and William O'Leary.

Mr. Kurtz revealed that in answer to his most recent letter to Mayor Rush in which he had "urgently" requested a Board of School Estimate meeting, the mayor had again requested confirmation from Dr. Spare that the school board was interested in a five-year lease of the units, and further, that plans be submitted to the State Board of Education for formal approval.

Concurring that written approval is necessary, Mr. Kurtz said that specifications are being prepared by the Farley-Nixon people, according to state instructions. "However," he said, "I am baffled by the mayor's refusal to call a meeting, when he has been assured that approval will be given to use these units as a temporary measure." He added that he is further frustrated in dealing with city officials who have often refused to respect the school board's autonomy in making decisions concerning South Amboy's public education. "We are completely aware of the necessary procedures in getting state approval," Mr. Kurtz said, "what we are stressing is the immediate need for these units, therefore we must have assurance that the Board of School Estimate will assume their cost." He added that if Mayor Rush insists on having formal notice from the State Dept. of Education before convening the Board of School Estimate, it will be impossible to have the units this year.

On Monday, September 29, the school board will meet with the Mayor and City Council at which time school needs will again be presented, and, Mr. Kurtz hopes, a meeting of the Board of School Estimate will be announced.

WATER TANK TO BE REPAINTED

South Amboy's water tank on Raritan Street will be repainted in two weeks.

At Tuesday night's Board of Public Works meeting, board member Richard Servis, said that the interior of the tank will be examined for signs of wear due to erosion. The results of the examination will be in on Friday. He added that he does not believe that the tank has eroded because it is made of steel. An altitude valve will also be installed. The valve is necessary to control water pressure between the tanks. Servis also said that this tank will be connected with the new South Amboy Sayreville water tank on Route 9, thus increasing the city's water reserve.

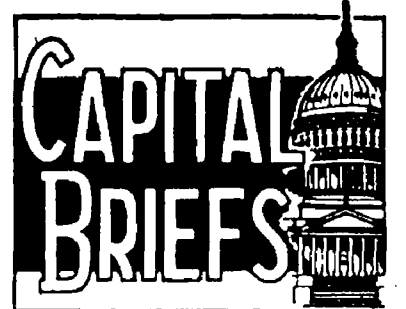

"You're walking on my latest work!"

NEW WATER METERS TO COST $60.

Board of Public Works Superintendent, Charles Thompson, announced that a homeowner can expect to pay $60 for a new water meter if his old one breaks down. Thompson said the price of a new meter will go up an additional 7 per cent beginning January 1.

At its Tuesday night meeting, the Board of Public Works announced that meters 20 to 25 years old are too expensive to repair and that it would be cheaper to install a new meter to save public money.

Richard Servis, a member of the Works Board, said at the meeting that it takes from eight to ten hours to repair an old meter whereas the new meters could be repaired in a half hour, thereby saving money in man hours.

CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE— There are serious problems facing our nation, said Cong. W. N. Aspinall, (D.-Colo.), the solutions to which cannot be put off much longer. We have not lacked for theories on cause and effect and each proponent of a solution seems to have his dissenter. Too often that dissent, instead of adding to constructive dialogue, has magnified the problem by generating civil disobedience. Why should the right of dissent—a heritage of our democratic system—become a part of the problem? There is strong evidence that some basic values of our democratic way of life have been obscured, if not subverted.

Mrs. Yaede, is mother of five children, four girls and one boy; and lives at 22 Woerner Court in Edison with her family. She is legislative Chairman of St. Matthew's PTA; Recording Secretary and Executive Board member of Guardian Angels Rosary Society; member of Edison Twp. Women's Democratic Club and Edison Twp. Young Dems. She is also 2nd Vice Chairman of the Middlesex County Chapter of the National Foundation-March of Dimes and member of the Executive Board. Being wife and mother, makes it easier for these ladies to appreciate the awesome and frightening tragedy that Birth Defects can cause in a family. Through their association with The National Foundation over the years, they know that its crusade against crippling birth defects had meant a happier future for countless children. Much of this has been made possible through the volunteer service of thousands of mothers around the country, who march together once a year ringing doorbells and collecting contributions for the treatment, research and public health education programs supported by the March of Dimes. It has also meant coordinated treatment through its nationwide network of more than 100 Birth Defects Evaluation and Treatment Centers for countless children born "less than perfect".

"When a Mothers' March volunteer rings your doorbell this January, do more than answer it -- give generously to the cause she is serving", requests Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Yaede.

Machine Loading Saves Time and Reduces Damage

Hand loading of railroad freight cars has been eliminated by a new system developed by General Foods Corporation which cuts loading time by 50 per cent.

The new system is designed to transfer loads directly from pallets onto plates of a fork-lift truck. The truck, equipped with a pushing device, then places the load into a box car without use of a pallet or slip sheet.

In addition to reducing loading times significantly, the new system also helps to cut in-transit product damage. "In-transit product damage is reduced by more than half for cases loaded the new way," according to Robert A. Stringer, a corporate vice president and general manager of the firm's distribution division. "The new loading method makes it possible to stack product cases tightly against each other and tightly against the car walls," Mr. Stringer said.

Johnny Powers, as mentioned in last week's column, became a big man in the music circles of Hollywood and I doubt that this came about through just lucky breaks or chance. From all reports, Johnny was a great drummer and he had to make it to the top.

His brother, Ed, told me that Johnny had worked with several name bands, among them Paul Tremaine. (Or is it, Tremain??) Thinking that I would now be able to clear up one of those nagging questions that crop up sort of intermittently I asked Ed the name of Tremaine's theme song. He hasn't, as yet, come up with it.

Don Redman and Tremaine were contemporaries and one had "Lonely Acres" as a theme and the other had "Chant Of The Reeds" (or was it, Weeds?). Which was whom???

The world isn't going to stop until this mystery is cleared up, but, it would be sort of nice to be able to get it off our minds so that we'll be able to go on to items of less import. Can any of you help us??

One of the many great things about Ed is, he always has a good story. At Al Clark's picnic, a few Sundays ago, he told a group of us about a monastery, in England, that opened up a "Fish and Chips" shop. The Monks did this in order to supplement their income and when a London newspaper heard of it, they sent one of their reporters out to do a feature story on the enterprise.

The reporter went out to the monastery and when he knocked on the front door it was opened by a monk and the reporter asked, "Are you the Friar?"

"No", came the answer, "I'm the chip-monk".

Here's another one of Ed's: A traveling engineer came upon a very rare bird, somewhere in Europe, and after purchasing it he sent it back home to the States.

When the engineer arrived home, a few weeks later, he asked his wife, "How's the bird?" She replied, "It was delicious". "Don't tell me you ate it", roared the husband, "That bird could speak seven languages". "If he was that smart, why didn't he say something"???

Do you remember when the utility companies white-washed their poles? That was back in the time of Moxie, Whistle and Necco Wafers (are they still around?)

And how about Sterno? Is that still around? The bottle-gang used to have quite a time with a can of Sterno.

With Bell-Bottoms and Levys back in style one can expect the yellow slicker any day. The only difference today will be the writings and drawings on the slickers. Instead of "Oh you kid" and "twenty-three skidoo", in black paint, today's youngsters will go in for the psychedelic colors and pop-art.

Do you think they'll wear the galoshes with the turned-down-cuff-bit??

If the trend continues, we may even see the High-Top shoe, complete with knife. (Zip???)

They might even top it all off with a beanie made from an old fedora. Or is that asking for too much??

One more thing, they'll have to trade their guitars for ukes.

We'll still have them on one thing. They can copy all of the above, but they won't be able to toast bread over a coal fire!!

If you want to see something akin to a three-ring circus, go to the horse auction Wednesday nights, on Oak Tree Road in Iselin. New Jersey is the third largest "horse state" in the country, and the Roosevelt Stables have one of the largest auctions in the state.

Hundreds of horses are sold, each Wednesday, along with saddles, blankets, harness and tools.

To get there, take the Parkway to Route 27, turn left to Green St., or Oak Tree Road, in Iselin, and continue on out past the indoor-outdoor theatre. The stables are on the left side and you have to look sharp for the sign. We park in the small shopping center, on Oak Tree, and walk down the road to Roosevelt Stables. This avoids getting caught in the parking jam. As you walk down the aisles, separating the stalls, you may be reminded of several people you know.

Things-I-Never-Knew-'Til-Now-Department: - Your watch may gain or lose time if you wear it to bed. According to Larry Holden, if you wear your watch on your left arm, while sleeping on your left side, it's upside down and this will affect the timing.

Of course you can correct this by turning your watch so that it's on the inside of your wrist and then reversing it when you roll over on your right side.

This is alright if you have insomnia, and if you don't have it, you will.

ATOMIC SCIENCE STUDIED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Sister Mary Dominic, Sister Mary Celeste and Mr. B. Robbins of the Science Department of St. Mary's

High School standing around Gammator being used by students.

St. Mary's High School is now using a Gammator, gamma irradiator in their high school science program. This device will enable the students to study the effects of gamma irradiation on cells, seeds, bacteria, insects, glass, and numerous other items.

The Gammator is the first irradiation device licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission as safe for use in schools. It is made by the Radiation Machinery Corporation in Hanover, New Jersey. The machine weighs approximately one ton and has the capacity to deliver 50,000 rads per hour to a substance being irradiated. The radiation source is cesium - 137 which is doubly encapsulated in stainless steel and permanently embedded in the lead-filled, tamper-proof unit.

Sister Mary Dominic, Biology and Advanced Biology teacher, and Mr. B. Robbins, Biology and Chemistry teacher, said their students have begun studies on portulaca, eggs, corn, and fruit flies.

Sister Dominic said the students were excited about the results received from their experiment with corn. The corn cob was dwarfed to about 5 inches in length.

Sister Mary Celeste, Head of the Science Department, has offered the use of the Gammator to students of other high schools in the area. Perth Amboy High School and Lynncroft High School students have already taken advantage of this offer.

Father George Brembos, now at Pius X High School in Piscataway, was instrumental in bringing this new area of study to St. Mary's.

WHERE I STAND

by Robert B. Meyner

There is one issue on which all citizens can agree. New Jersey must develop a prudent, forward-looking program for the orderly development of our water resources if we are to have an adequate supply of pure water in the years ahead.

As Governor of New Jersey in 1958, I foresaw the need for long-range water planning and recommended the development of the now-completed Spruce Run and Round Valley reservoirs. I urged then and since that the Legislature approve a proposal for the construction of transmission lines so that the water from these great reservoirs can be transported to meet the needs of our citizens throughout this State. If I am given the opportunity to serve once again as Governor, I intend to make these transmission lines a quick reality.

Even more remains to be done. For example, the planning of overall water development policy must be coordinated at the State level through a comprehensive master plan for water. This plan should include the design of projected facilities, an inventory of service and ground water supplies, plans for the use of water facilities for recreation and conservation purposes, and an evaluation of the possible use of desalinization techniques.

Equally important is the need for a clear delineation of the roles of State, local, federal and private agencies in the overall water development programs. For too long now, everyone has been going his own way in dealing with this problem. There must be strong leadership in Trenton to assure that we all act toward one goal—pure water to meet the needs of tomorrow.

SUFFERING FOR SCIENCE -- Joe Lomax, a Rutgers research assistant, literally gives blood in pursuit of his Ph.D thesis on "basic considerations of repellency." Along with his wife and other students, he has tested insect repellents all along the East Coast and in Costa Rica and the Canal Zone, usually coating one side of his body and leaving the other unprotected.

Many graduate students will tell you that they're "giving blood" for a degree, but in the case of Joseph L. Lomax it happens literally to be true.

Lomax, a research assistant in the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, tests insect repellents while writing his Ph.D thesis on "basic considerations of repellency."

During the past two summers, he and his wife Ellen, dressed in shorts and shirt sleeves and sometimes assisted by other students, have hiked through insect infested areas all along the East Coast and in Costa Rica and the Canal Zone.

Their usual procedure is to coat one side of their bodies with repellent, leave the other unprotected, and then take notes.

Lomax's research, in which he is guided by his faculty adviser, Philip Granett, is supported by a grant from the Union Carbide Corporation.

During World War II, Dr. Granett helped develop, in cooperation with the U.S.

Department of Agriculture, the repellent popularly known as "6-12," or ethyl hexanediol in technical language.

As a second generation repellent researcher at Rutgers, Joe Lomax feels that a better understanding of insect physiology is needed to develop improved repellents.

"We know that the insect 'smells' odors through sensing hairs on its feet and body. But the complex question of why some odors attract insects and others repel them has barely been scratched," he says.

"Some people seem to be more bite-prone than others, but the reasons are very unclear. One theory holds that large doses of B-complex vitamins, consumed orally, will help ward them off.

"Another is that biting insects are attracted to lysine, an amino acid constituent of some proteins. The first theory has been largely discredited, but the second is still under investigation."

Although present repellents, when properly applied, protect against mosquitoes, they are somewhat less effective with biting flies. One question that puzzles Lomax and his wife on their walks through the woods is why green-headed flies tend to attack the legs and strawberry flies the head.

And what about smudge pots, blue lights, and the other paraphernalia sold to keep mosquitoes away from backyards and patios? Lomax hasn't tested them all, so he won't say.

"I just don't think they're very effective," he says. "My personal choice for the backyard is a yellow light bulb. Because insects can't see this particular frequency, they're less likely to be attracted to the area."

For the present, he says, until some new variety of super-repellent is discovered, the best way to ward off biting insects is simply to thoroughly cover all exposed skin except eyes and lips with repellent, renewing in three to five hours.

We must congratulate city officials for their quick and impressive job in renovating the former Methodist Church parsonage on John St. for use by the Board of Education. A lot of credit goes to Manual Arts teacher Robert Bloodgood who did the contracting work for the city. The place looks great and by moving from their previous quarters, the board relinquished their former space for use by the elementary school.

Part of the parking problem around the school may be solved since the city has designated the site of the former Methodist Church as a parking lot for public school personnel. A system of identification is being worked out for the people who will be allowed to park their cars in the area.

Board President Bill Kurtz has figuratively been beating his head against the wall trying to get a meeting of the Board of School Estimate. With assurance from City Auditor Jasper Johnson that the funds will not have to be spent if the state doesn't approve modular units for South Amboy, maybe this meeting is forthcoming! Soon!

One of the great freedoms of the press is the diversity of opinion, with no one ever agreeing on what's right or what's wrong. We think the Board of Education would have appeared better to the press, if they had given students the option of parental permission to see "Romeo and Juliet" before they arbitrarily imposed their own censorship! Heaven help us if they ever ban the reading of that lovely play in high school literature classes. You didn't know it was read in high school?!!

Pala Sharon Kuchna and Linda Scully spent their recent vacation in Florida and the Bahamas. The girls loved Miami but have some funny stories to tell about their "short, short" stay in Freeport!

Currently a patient at Perth Amboy Hospital after an encounter with a "virus" is reader Gloria Kreisler of Morgan. A school nurse in Madison Township, she hopes to be out and about soon. We wish her a speedy recovery!

Get well wishes go out to Margaret Robertson of Lincoln St., Morgan, who is a patient at the South Amboy Memorial Hospital.

FOR THE RECORD BOOKS: Born in Little Rock, Arkansas, 32 years ago, Brooks Robinson has been playing for one of baseball's winningest teams, the Baltimore Orioles, since 1955. In the most recent complete season, 1968, he set an American League record by leading third basemen in assists for the sixth year. In twelve straight All-Star games, Brooks fielded flawlessly. In five 162-game seasons, he missed just one game. He is the Orioles' player representative. Married in 1960, he and his wife Connie have three sons and a daughter.

NEWSPAPERBOYS DELIVER!

All of us respond to challenge. Meeting the challenge can mean handling a hot grounder or a tough pitch — or delivering newspapers in all kinds of weather. Brooks Robinson, former newspaperboy, might have become a top star without that early experience, but he learned from it that organized effort makes the difference between winners and losers.

As America's newspaperboys enjoy their annual day in the spotlight — on International Newspaperboy Day — the Treasury's U. S. Savings Bonds Division once again salutes them. Newspaperboys have helped sell many a Bond in community campaigns through the years. Many of them are Bond-buyers themselves. And they'll grow to man's estate with a thrift habit that brightens their futures and strengthens their country.

RUTGERS — PRINCETON IN CENTENNIAL GAME SATURDAY

QUEEN'S GUARD -- Barbara Specht, Football's Centennial Queen, is about to try a pass of her own behind the protection of Rutgers linemen Bob Stonebraker, Lee Schneider and Jim Benedict.

Rutgers and Princeton will go at it again this Saturday just as they did 100 years ago when they played the country's first intercollegiate football game.

Rutgers won that first contest 6-4 on Nov. 6, 1869 in New Brunswick in front of about 50 fans. When the game begins in Rutgers Stadium at 1:50 p.m., millions of people will be watching this Centennial Game both live and via ABC-TV's regional telecast, but, by all indications, this year's game will be just as hard fought a contest as the first match a century ago.

The Scarlet Knights, who won last year's meeting by a 20-14 margin, have been drilling diligently under Coach John Bateman in the midst of many activities and celebrations associated with football's Centennial Year.

A few of this week end's events include the issuance of a commemorative stamp in New Brunswick on Friday afternoon, a parade through New Brunswick on Friday evening, a reenactment of the first game on Saturday morning and the visit of many dignitaries to the Rutgers campus for the game.

Rutgers opened its season last week at Lafayette, but Princeton will be making its season debut here under a new coach, Jake McCandless. McCandless has 26 lettermen returning, but by all pre-season indications, he has done a great deal of reconstruction to the Tiger's offense.

Primarily a single wing offense under former coach Richard Colman, Princeton may be incorporating such formations as the "I" which was popularized at Syracuse in recent years. There is no doubt that McCandless has the personnel to perform well in these new positions.

Captain Ellis Moore is a hard driving fullback who could fit easily into any offense. Scott MacBean is another versatile back who is returning. Overall, Princeton's major question mark is its offensive line, which is Rutgers weak spot also.

The "I" formation will enable the lineman to block much the way they would for a single wing attack, which would give McCandless one less headache to worry about in getting his forward wall ready for the big game.

Bateman will be relying on an experienced defensive unit, led by captain and linebacker Lee Schneider to read and react to any new wrinkles which Princeton may reveal.

Offensively, Bateman may have some surprises to offer also, although the Scarlet multiple offense will not change nearly as drastically as Princeton's. Quarterback Rick Pollicastro will be able to utilize the running of tailback Bruce Van Ness and fullback Steve Ferrughelli and the pass receiving of ends Jim Benedict and Co-captain Bob Stonebraker as well as flankerback Al Fenstermacher.

Players and coaches on both sides are keyed-up for the big game with President Nixon a "possible" visitor. Rutgers would like to duplicate its victory of a century ago and Princeton would like to start off well for their new coach. Princeton has won 50 of the 59 that the two teams have played in the first 100 years of their rivalry.

A good listener is not only popular everywhere, but after a while he knows a few things. — Lucille Thies, The Manteno (Ill.) News.
