

SCHULTZ CRITIC OF USES MADE OF REVENUE SHARING

A public hearing without any of the public in attendance was held by the South Amboy Council Tuesday, on monies to go in the 1977 municipal budget for revenue sharing. These are funds derived of the federal government and distributed through the State Department of Community Affairs to ease the burden of local property taxation by splitting the cost with the municipality of budgetary items. The public must be content with budgetary items to which these funds are applied.

Nicholas Smolney, business administrator, told the Council the governing body could apply $184,012 this year on a generally unrestricted basis in the budget. He accounted $544 coming from unassigned funds for the first six months of 1976, $46,218 from the latter half of last year and a $137,250 allotment for all of 1977. In addition $182,312 is effective on purposes identified in the 1976 budget but applicable still in the current year. Smolney noted that by resolution approved in Trenton these funds can be reassigned.

Councilman Robert Noble wanted to know if there were interest accruals on these funds which the city could use even though they were not funds derived of local taxation. Smolney said that was so, that the city gained $8,105.40 of these monies never expended during the course of 1976.

Smolney declined to specify how he felt the $184,012 should be applied publicly, even though he gave the Council a facsimile of his ideas. He explained this was only because the city lacked yet the formal notice of confirmation from the State Department of Community Affairs. Councilman Richard Schultz took a skeptical view of the Council taking these funds into account in drafting the municipal budget when it had no formal letter of assurance this was the amount the city would get. But Mayor J. Thomas Cross felt a telephoned word from Trenton could be depended upon. Cross held it could be freely applied to upkeep and repair of the city hall, but Smolney admitted he felt uneasy about making an early assignment of the funds to sewer department needs.

Cross admitted the Council had to be aware of duplicate allotment in transfers last year, noting specifically $24,400 put in for a data processing machine but used otherwise, also $900 diverted from park and recreation.

Cross felt the Council this year should clear away with revenue sharing funds bills that had been left hanging for four or five years. Some were sizeable, he admitted, such as $1,400 for Campbell Supply Co. for fire equipment. But most were to local vendors in smaller amounts, he noted.

Schultz expressed amazement at this. He questioned why Cross had been on the Council for two years and had let this go on, even though former Councilmen James Inman, Kenneth Rogers and Stanley Jankowski were in partisan control. Schultz felt the then Mayor William O'Leary could very well have refused to sign vouchers for the councilmen's own pay, to make the councilmen use the monies to cover accounts in the budget overexpended that resulted in local businessmen not getting small bills owed them paid.

Cross explained some of the bills were for items never sanctioned by the previous Councils, such as bills run up by individuals in small amounts, like a $14 bill for a midnight lunch by municipal workers on a nighttime snow clearance job. Councilman Noble felt there was no excuse for the former councilmen not to have honored bills to meet the hunger of workers doing a long trek on an emergency job, even if there was no authorization off the expenditure. Cross noted the real mistake was not to have put a legally pronounced limit on such expenditures such as $3 per man for a snack at a diner.

Schultz wanted to know how much of the $182,312 allotted in prior budgets had been expended and how much was reserved for expending in 1977. Smolney said he would have to reckon it up but felt it was not overly significant, nor a factor derived of this year's budget. But Schultz insisted it be clarified.

With none of the public present to raise questions or make objections, it was felt the hearing could be terminated and the Council could go into private session with Smolney on his recommendations for use of revenue sharing in the budget being formulated.

Local Squad Beats Stork

On the morning of January 21, 1977, at 3 a.m. the South Amboy First Aid Squad responded to an emergency call on So. Broadway. Upon arrival at the scene, officer in charge of the crew Chuck Pawlowski, was informed by Ptl. Leo McCabe, Ptl. Pat McCarthy and Sgt. Ed Cieciarzyk that a woman at the address was about to give birth. The crew realized that they would be unable to transport the expectant mother to the hospital in time. At approx. 3:20 a.m. the SAFA crew delivered a BABY BOY. Mother and baby were transported to Perth Amboy General Hospital.

The first aid crew responding to this emergency call were: 1st. Asst. Capt. Chuck Pawlowski, 1st. Asst. Lieut. Gary Cottrell, Ron Keegan and William Chapman.

HOST TO 14th DISTRICT FIRST AID - South Amboy First Aid Squad had the honor of being host for the first meeting of the new year of the 14th District First Aid Squads, covering the Middlesex County area. Mayor J. Thomas Cross was on hand to welcome Michael Mermelstein, (second from right) a member of Edison First Aid who is the new chairman of the 14th District Council of First Aid Squads. Also greeted is Carol App, corresponding secretary for the 14th District, who is a member of the Carteret Squad. Joining the Mayor in the welcome is Leslie Batchelor, longtime member of the South Amboy squad, who was chosen chaplain for the 14th District for the 10th year.

STRESSING THREE R'S T&E OBJECTIVE IN SOUTH AMBOY

Public education in South Amboy should emphasize the three R's, "reading, writing and rithmetic", by results of the Thorough and Efficient (T&E) goals for schools conclave conducted by Robert Bloodgood, curriculum coordinator of city schools, at the behest of the State Department of Education. In apportioning state aid from new income tax revenues, the State Department of Education directed the tests to determine popular goals for the educational process in each individual community should be determined that the allotment of funds can be related to them.

It was desired that the T&E determination should be a composite of views of a panel of the community chosen to get persons to serve who had from high educational attainments to those without any or few at the best. The panel was to be made up without regard to economic status, employment, religious affiliation, race, sex, age, ethnic origins or even law-abiding background of those serving, an entire cross-section of community feeling was the objective.

Bloodgood spared no pains to get a representative group in South Amboy and did have the makings of a steering committee to get him a panel of 80. But, come the day, Jan. 18, for putting the panel to work on determinations, it had shrunk so in number that an original intended 16 working groups of five had to be cut to eight working groups of four. However, it was patent that the 32 who remained dutiful had the competence to analyze and form judgements and arrive at objective decisions.

They were faced with 18 goals that they had to evaluate, some to be combined as essentially correlative in their purposes. The groups toiled to near the midnight hour in their discussions. Then the determination of the groups were turned in to Bloodgood for compilation of their preferences and computerizing to relate those correlative to their degree of consensus.

At the end Jan. 18, the panel consisted of 16 from the public at large, 11 teachers and three students. The weather, the fact that telecasts of the Carter inaugural activities took place that night and, also, because so large a number of parents of the city send their children to parochial schools to get an educational objective of Christian ideology first and foremost were appraised as limiting the South Amboy output.

Foremost choice of the panel of the 18 goals to pick from was: Develop skills in Reading, Writing, Speaking, Listening, which had the subheads of: A. Develop ability to communicate ideas and feelings effectively, and B. Develop skills in oral and written English.

Closest to Reading, Writing, Speaking and Listening in preference were the correlative goals of: Learn How To Examine and Use Information and Gain a General Education. The Information goal had subheads of: A. Develop ability to examine constructively and creatively, B. Develop ability to use scientific methods, C. Develop reasoning abilities, D. Develop skills to think and proceed logically. The General Education subheads were: A. Develop background and skills in the use of numbers, natural sciences, mathematics and social sciences, B. Develop a fund of information and concepts, C. Develop special interests and abilities.

But on computerizing the correlatives, Gain A General Education came out with a consensus rating of 11 groups of 2.43 against 0.5 for Learn How to Examine and

Tarallo, Democrat; Stockel, Independent; Mar. 1 Candidates

Contest was assured in the Mar. 1 municipal election to fill a Council vacancy when Raymond J. Stockel, 237 N. Feltus St. filed as an Independent candidate to oppose the regular Democratic Party choice, Frank Tarallo, former chairman of the Planning Board. Stockel is running on a "Better Education" designation.

As of the hour of Stockel's filing, 10:30 a.m. yesterday, there were still other petitions out, as four had been taken from the office of City Clerk Natalie Brennan. Stockel is a life long resident of South Amboy, a graduate of Hoffman High, and is in the carpentry business.

Asbestos In Locker Ceiling, To Be Removed

The ceiling will have to go in the locker room of Hoffman High. That has been decided before the South Amboy Board of Education meets tonight. John Olexa, superintendent, reported the tests results from strippings taken from the lockerroom ceiling have come in. One test showed asbestos content of the composition of the ceiling to be a positive one such that it should be replaced. Olexa said the Board, not resting on one analysis alone, had another testing agency check the result of the first study. Again the ceiling composition was shown to have asbestos elements.

That was it. John Kuhn, chairman of the building and grounds committee pledged Jan. 13 that if the tests showed asbestos characteristics of a serious order, the ceiling would be replaced. The Board is committed to put money in the 1977-78 school budget to

In news stories appearing earlier in the week, John Norek, who ran on the Republican ticket last year, and Edmund Kaboski, a member of the Board of Education, were both named as likely candidates. But they denied any interest in talking with a Citizen reporter yesterday. Kaboski was especially indignant at a report linking him with partisan politics as a Board member. He was slated to go to Trenton this morning to press for approval at State Department of Education hearing for designation of the John St. tract for the location of a new school in South Amboy. Kaboski wanted no suggestion of partisan politics being attached to the campaign that he and his associate on the Board, Thomas Levandoski, are waging to get the use of John St. approved.

The Council vacancy was created when J. Thomas Cross resigned his place to assume the mayoralty, to which he was elected Nov. 2. The Middlesex County Board of Elections ruled that, under Plan F, Faulkner Act, South Amboy's form of government, an "open" election had to be held to fill the seat even though Cross, resigning, is a democrat. Yesterday, 4 p.m. was the deadline for filing petitions of nomination with Frank Schatzman, Middlesex County Clerk.

TRANSITIONAL SERVICE AT SOUTH AMBOY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Dr. Aldonia Swamy (right), director of Transitional Service of the Community Mental Health Center at South Amboy Memorial Hospital, and mental health aide Maria Allendes, discuss living arrangements and job possibilities for a patient recently discharged from a state institution. A careful examination of the person and his past history provides clues for successful future treatment.

The Transitional Service of the Community Mental Health Center at South Amboy Memorial Hospital has provided support and supervision for over 200 newly discharged patients from state hospitals and private institutions since it began operation in June 1976. Dr. Aldonia Swamy, the psychiatrist who heads the department, states that with increased space and staff, the service could handle a greater caseload and furnish even more effective planning of individual patient needs.

Most patients leave state or private institutions with a combination of housing, employment and social problems - in addition to the residual emotional handicaps from the illness that caused them to be hospitalized in the first place. Transitional Service helps these people learn how to lead a normal life style and function at an independent level in the community. It reduces the number of patients who must return to the hospital for treatment; it thus provides a viable alternative to institutional care and complies with the concept of "de-institutionalization."

Dr. Swamy says, "It's important that patients know before they leave the hospital that there is a place they can go for help with their problems. The outside world can seem frightening and they need to know that there are professionals in the community to care for them."

To demonstrate this concern, a caseworker from the Transitional Service visits the hospital and talks with patients ready for discharge about the program. If a person decides to enter the program, he and his family visit the department one week after discharge.

Many of the people helped by Transitional Service have no families, or their families have lost interest or abandoned them. A week later, the patient returns for a complete psychiatric evaluation. Medication is adjusted, a caseworker assigned, and a treatment plan evolved. (Fees are on a sliding scale and no one is ever refused treatment because of inability to pay.)

In case the patient is in need of other services, a liaison contact is then made and the patient referred by a caseworker or a mental health aide to the Day Care activities in the Partial Hospitalization Service, In-Patient Service, Out-Patient Service or to the N.J. Rehabilitation Commission for educational or vocational training.

In addition, the Center has liaison contacts with licensed boarding homes to place these patients when they are without relatives or financial means for independent living. Many of these homes supervise the patient's nutrition, health care and provide recreational activities.

The Transitional Service at South Amboy Memorial Hospital currently functions with a staff consisting of a psychiatrist, social worker, experienced psychiatric nurses and a mental health aide. This service is at present located on the fourth floor of the hospital. The service is in need of more space and staff. A house in the immediate vicinity is being renovated for this purpose.

The marked success the program has had in its first few months indicates the need and value of the Transitional Service. Meanwhile, the Transitional Service staff are committed to effecting the return of patients who have suffered from emotional illness to their communities and maintaining and rehabilitating them so they may function at their maximum potential.

McLaughlin said 91 exhibitors have booked space in the show. Twenty-seven of them are dealers of recreational vehicles who will be showing a wide variety of 1977 motorhomes, travel trailers, mini-motorhomes, tent campers, truck campers and vans.

Twenty campground operators from New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Hampshire will be among the exhibitors, and many retailers of camping accessories and outdoor sports equipment, including ski outfits, custom fishing rods and a Hobie Cat sail boat, will have their merchandise on display.

Show hours vary for the four days. The doors open at 4 p.m. Thursday and at 1 p.m. on Friday. On Saturday and Sunday the show begins at 11 a.m. Closing times are 10 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

"We've priced the show to attract families," McLaughlin said, "especially those with several children. And there are many families who attend this show."

Children under 6 years of age accompanied by parents will be admitted free. Senior citizens will be given at $1.50 discount on Thursday and Friday and will be admitted for only $1 on those days, McLaughlin announced. Prices are $1 for children 6-12, $1.50 for students 12-18 and $2.50 for adults.

The most expensive vehicle in the show will be the GMC motorhome, which sells for about $36,000. The least expensive are the popular tent campers for about $1,800. Many of a wide assortment of accessories, all of the second floor of Convention Hall, are priced in the $5 to $15 range.

For the first time in this area, an Avion travel trailer will be on display. It has an anodized aluminum exterior built with a triple-beam frame and contains a three-tank, 50-gallon water system. Its two up-front swivel barrel chairs flank a refreshment and an upholstered 40-inch dinette folds into a double bed.

Safety measures, gasoline-saving construction and designs for luxury are emphasized in most of the new vehicles.

For the convenience of sportsmen, Winnebago's 25 foot mini-motorhome features a locking gun cabinet and ammunition storage drawer, fishing rod rack, dinette table with reversible felt-covered table top, built in beverage holders, bottle cabinet, cocktail table and roof storage.

The New Jersey Trailer-Camping & Sport Show, which began in 1969 as a one-dealer show by McLaughlin, now is one of the largest exhibitions of its kind on the East Coast.

BICENTENNIAL LICENSE PLATES

Those red, white and blue Bicentennial license plates which are displayed over the front tag on thousands of New Jersey cars will have to come off by February 1, according to Motor Vehicle Director John A. Waddington.

Waddington reminded motorists today that state law says that the special commemorative plates were to be displayed from July 1, 1975 until February 1, 1977. Violators failing to remove the tag from their front license plate by the expiration date face possible arrest and fine.

The special plates, which featured the slogan, "New Jersey, Crossroads of the Revolution" and the numerals "76" enclosed in a circle of stars were produced by State Use Industries, a bureau of the Department of Corrections. More than 500,000 tags were manufactured and sold to the New Jersey Bicentennial Commission which, in turn, sold them to Municipal and County Bicentennial Commissions and various civic organizations for resale to the public.

An estimated $750,000 in profits were made from the sale of the plates at $3.00 each which was used to finance Bicentennial events during the year-long celebration of New Jersey's role in the American Revolution.

Although the plates may not be legally displayed on cars after February 1, the colorful tags will undoubtedly be saved as souvenirs by most of the motorists who brought them, Waddington said.

About Your SOCIAL SECURITY

People who tend to think of social security as a retirement program sometimes forget that it does more than pay retirement and health insurance benefits in old age. An equally important purpose of the social security program is to protect the family against the loss of a breadwinner's earnings if certain events happen to him at any age.

The fact is, social security has never operated as "just a retirement program." From the time the first benefits were paid in 1940 the emphasis has been on family protection. Benefits are paid to a worker's dependents if he becomes disabled at any age, to his dependents when he retires, and to surviving dependents when he dies.

The first benefits paid in 1940 went to retired workers, their wives at age 65, children under 18, widows with minor children in their care, or at age 65, and dependent parents 65 or older. This was a result of a Congressional change in the original 1935 social security act. It had become clear that in order to fulfill its objective of preventing the kind of widespread economic dependency and poverty that came out of the depression, the emphasis had to be on the family unit. Those who depended on the worker's earnings for their support needed insurance against the loss of those earnings as much as did the individual worker.

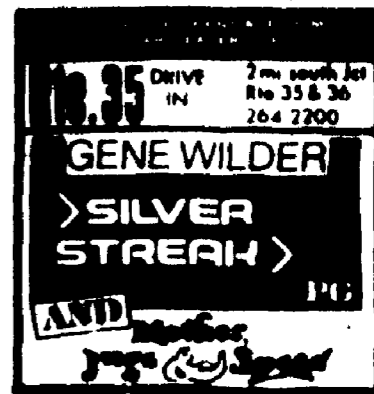

The disability insurance program, started in 1956, and the Medicare program initiated in 1966, expanded this concept of family protection.

Disability benefits are paid at any age to the worker and his dependents if the worker has worked long enough under social security and suffers a severe disability which is expected to prevent him or her from working a year or more or to result in death. A prolonged illness of the breadwinner can rapidly deplete family savings and other resources. Many families can't afford the cost of private insurance for what they may view as only a remote possibility.

Of each dollar paid into social security, 20 cents goes for survivors benefits and 10 cents for disability benefits. The rest goes for retirement benefits, Medicare Hospital insurance, and administrative expenses of the program.

Another way of looking at social security's family protection is to consider the impact it has on society. About one out of seven Americans currently get a social security check. About 95 out of 100 children under 18 and their mothers and fathers can count on monthly cash benefits if the family breadwinner dies. Four out of five men and women under 65 can count on monthly cash benefits for their families if they suffer a severe and prolonged disability.

Clearly, this is more than could be expected of "just a retirement program."

MOTHER M.O.D. JANUARY MARCH

The 1977 Mothers March against birth defects, sponsored by Middlesex County March of Dimes, will start a January 30. The neighbor-to-neighbor campaign, held every January for the past 25 years, benefits the March of Dimes' numerous research, medical service and public and professional health education programs.

The money raised will remain in Middlesex County to fund a $50,000 grant for genetic counseling and education and a $25,000 medical research grant to Rutgers Medical School in Piscataway. Additionally, the Mothers March raises funds for direct patient assistance to many County residents born with birth defects.

"Birth defects don't always happen to the other person," says Dr. Thomas H. Paterniti, 1977 Campaign Chairman. "Each year, more than 200,000 infants are born with physical or mental birth defects and some 53,000 infants die before they reach their first birthday." Despite special efforts by the March of Dimes to reduce these figures, the day when all children are born free from the threat of birth defects is a long way off. That is why caring people of all ages will march through the towns of the County beginning January 30. These people will ask for your support in dollars and cents. Keep in mind that the March of Dimes Mothers March conquered polio during the 1950's. Remember, too the March of Dimes is not part of the United Way campaign. So, please give generously to the Mothers March Volunteer who calls on you. If you are not home when the volunteer calls, please send your contribution in the envelope they will leave for you. Your donation will be appreciated by all the children who will be born healthy because you cared.

'BORN YESTERDAY' At City Lights Theater

The two leading roles have been assigned for the City Lights Theater production of the Broadway comedy hit, "Born Yesterday", which is being presented at the theater's home 250 High Street, Perth Amboy (across from City Hall) beginning Friday, February 11 and continuing through February 27, playing on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., Sundays at 7:30 p.m. There will be no performance on Sunday, February 20, but a special matinee has been scheduled for Sunday, February 27 at 3 p.m. Jean Peterson will be seen as Billie Dawn, the ex-chorus girl with more glamour than grammar, and Mike Siano will be playing the roughneck war-profiteer who thinks the donation of a mink coat has given him a lifetime claim on her.

These are the coveted roles that first catapulted Judy Holliday and Paul Douglas to stardom and film fame when "Born Yesterday" began its celebrated four-year run in New York. A film of "Born Yesterday" was later made with Judy Holliday repeating her starring role, and co-starring Broderick Crawford and William Holden.

This Garson Kanin comedy tells how a junk-dealer, grown fabulously rich and overbearing through war-time deals, comes to the most expensive suite in the most expensive hotel in Washington to make sure that the Senator on his payroll puts through the legislation he wants for his greedy plans. He brings, along with his permanently drunk lawyer and a few other assorted stooges, a brassy trollop he extracted from a chorus line, and the crafty sniping of these two at each other provides some of the most joyfully amusing lines of the modern stage.

The main plot shows the results of the bullying junkman's decision to make his feminine companion more presentable for his social contacts by having a high-brow magazine writer tutor her. From the junkman's point of view, the results are terrible. While the magazine writer teaches Billie Dawn some big words and small graces, she educates him along other lines. Worse still, she learns not only the big words but also some big ideas that bring on many hilarious complications.

Barry Gomolka will appear as the reporter who teaches the dizzy blonde to think, and Reuben Guberman will be the junkman's disillusioned and high-priced lawyer. "Born Yesterday" is being directed by Sol Steinber, with its super-deluxe hotel setting designed by CLT Artistic Designer Barry Gomolka.

PATTEN IN THE HOUSE

By U.S. Rep. Edward J. Patten

As a corollary, the Federal government is faced with a similar problem in attracting and retaining capable and dedicated public servants due to the comparably low salaries being offered.

I feel that the tuition remission policies of our colleges and universities enables them to attract, to a certain degree, well-qualified professionals, and without it, I feel certain that salary levels would have to be increased. This, of course, would probably lead to further increases in tuition.

At some point, our institutions of higher education would probably have to turn to the Federal government for expanded support. In writing to Donald C. Alexander, Commissioner of the IRS during the Ford Administration, I expressed the hope that he would give my letter serious consideration. Many of my constituents have conveyed their reservations about the IRS proposal, so I hope that it will be reconsidered because of its questionable merit.

In a letter written to the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), I expressed strong opposition to the proposal under consideration by the IRS to tax the value of tuition remission for parents who are associated with colleges and universities as employees.

It is obvious that colleges and universities in this country are suffering a heavy financial strain, already. That, coupled with the fact that salaries for professors and educational administrators, as well as other persons employed by higher education, is often low, makes the proposal one which could increase the cost of education.

Rutgers News Service

MURDER MAVIN — Records of sensational murder trials of the 19th century have provided Dr. Mary Hartman, Douglass College social historian and director of the Women's Studies Institute at the State University, with a wealth of information about the private lives of Victorian middle-class families and material for her new book, "Victorian Murderesses."

Mary Hartman has murder on her mind. Dr. Mary Hartman of Douglass College, that is, not the hapless television character of the same name.

An associate professor of history at the women's division of Rutgers, the State University, Dr. Hartman is the author of "Victorian Murderesses," a study of 13 French and English women accused variously of suffocating, beating, stabbing, shooting and poisoning husbands, lovers, rivals and even children.

To be published next month by Schocken Books, "Victorian Murderesses" has been chosen as an alternate selection for February by the Literary Guild.

Academe's Mary Hartman is a social historian who received her bachelor's degree from Swarthmore College and her master's and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University. Since 1972 she has been studying 19th century women of so-called "respectable" middle-class status who were charged with murder.

Why this seeming preoccupation with the morbid?

"Trial records are marvelous documents of social history," she explains. "One of the problems that social historians face is how to find out about domestic lives of people, and especially the middle classes who tended to live pretty private existences."

A murder trial exposes the workings of a whole household, she notes, not just the life of the accused.

"One by one, the inmates of the household will come forth and tell their story, their perception of the way things happened," she says. "And, in some ways more importantly, how the household functioned, what the relations were among the individuals."

"Here is an occasion where willy-nilly they've got to talk out about various private subjects -- of course sexuality is a big one, but there are others as well."

The accused murderesses can not be explained merely as freaks or victims or rebels, she asserts.

"They were women who were especially vulnerable to the same pressures experienced by the majority of their peers," she claims.

"In talking about these women I was not simple describing murderesses, I was describing many

WINTER PRESENTS HEARING HEALTH HAZARDS

"Although winter can be one of the most enjoyable sports seasons for people both young and old, it can present particularly serious hearing health hazards," warns the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation.

The crusade, sponsored by Chicago-based Beltone Electronics Corporation, world leader in hearing aids and electronic hearing test instruments, is designed to build public awareness to the vital need for hearing conservation.

Winter, with its characteristics cold wet weather, can increase the likelihood of headcolds and earaches. If left untreated, severe headcolds and earaches can result in serious and sometimes even permanent hearing impairments, the crusade officials said.

If an earache or severe head cold is contacted, the victim should seek proper medical attention. Most of all, the serious long range after effects which can result from untreated headcolds and earaches should never be taken lightly, crusade officials said.

The officials also pointed out that common sense precautions, such as wearing proper ear protection and taking periodic breaks to warm-up are of particular importance to skiing, ice skating, tobogganing and snow mobile enthusiasts when exposed to excessive cold and wet weather conditions.

Parents and school teachers should be particularly alert to insure that small children do not let their enthusiasm for winter fun subject them to undue exposure to cold, wet conditions, they added.

"SMILE AMERICA"

The Middlesex County Dental Society will offer a varied and educational program this year for National Children's Dental Health Week, February 6-12. The slogan this year is "Smile America."

A school nurses dental workshop was held in December. There will also be the popular Poster Contest for our school age children.

Dr. William D. Fromkin, County Chairman, says that the highlight of the program will be an exhibit at Brunswick Square Mall (East Brunswick) on February 10, 11, and 12. On Saturday the twelfth, starting at 12:30 p.m., there will be entertainment and the awards presentation for the Poster Contest winner.

CATTANO HEADING PLANNING BOARD

George Cattano was chosen new chairman of the South Amboy Planning Board at that body's reorganization meeting Jan. 18. He succeeds Frank Tarallo who resigned in expectation of being named to a vacancy on the Council.

Alice Christina is vice-chairman and Madeline Purcell, secretary since 1964 was continued in that office. H. Thomas Carr, Perth Amboy, is retained as planning consultant. The Board took no action on an attorney until its next meeting. Clark Convery, attorney to the Board in 1966, resigned when he was named law director Jan. 4 by the Council.

The Board voted to do away with the practice of having two alternates. This puts the Board in conformance with the newly adopted interim zoning ordinance which limits the Planning Board to nine members. Five will constitute a quorum.

Application was made by William Garaffa, for a minor subdivision of a lot he owns on Lower Augusta St. The Board gave conditional approval, requiring that he get variances from the Zoning Board of Adjustment for each of the two lots thereby created, as being undersized.

Police Arrests For Pellet Gun, Scanner Theft

South Amboy Police are pressing cases in Municipal Judge Joseph C. Hoffman's court of counts of assaults on persons with .22 caliber pellets from a 10-inch hand gun and a breaking and entry in which a Bearcat Police Scanner was one of the articles stolen.

Det. Raymond Durski has signed complaint against William Mazious, Keyport, charging this defendant was in possession of a 10-inch Crosman Model .22 caliber pellet gun while at a bar in the city Dec. 30. And that, in an altercation, Mazious discharged pellets against bar patrons and a barmaid.

Judge Hoffman has put Mazious under $5,000 for the offense. But Mazious' attorney, Joseph J. Disanza, East Orange, is convinced there is no rightful basis for such a charge against his client and has demanded a preliminary hearing to clear Mazious before the matter goes to the Middlesex County Grand Jury.

Det. Durski is also complainant against two 20 year olds, Timothy Arboreen, South Amboy, and John Buckley, Morgan. The charge is that the youths, while next door to the Colonial Lunch, 122 North Broadway, 9:20 p.m. Jan. 21 broke into the diner and stole 35 cartons of cigarettes and the Blackcat Police scanner.

An anonymous phone call to police headquarters gave word of the breaking at the unoccupied diner and directed police to a house next door. Patrolman James Holovach, Michael DeLucia and Kenneth Szatkowski raided the house and reported finding the pair. A search uncovered the stolen articles. Szatkowski also found a knife on Buckley.

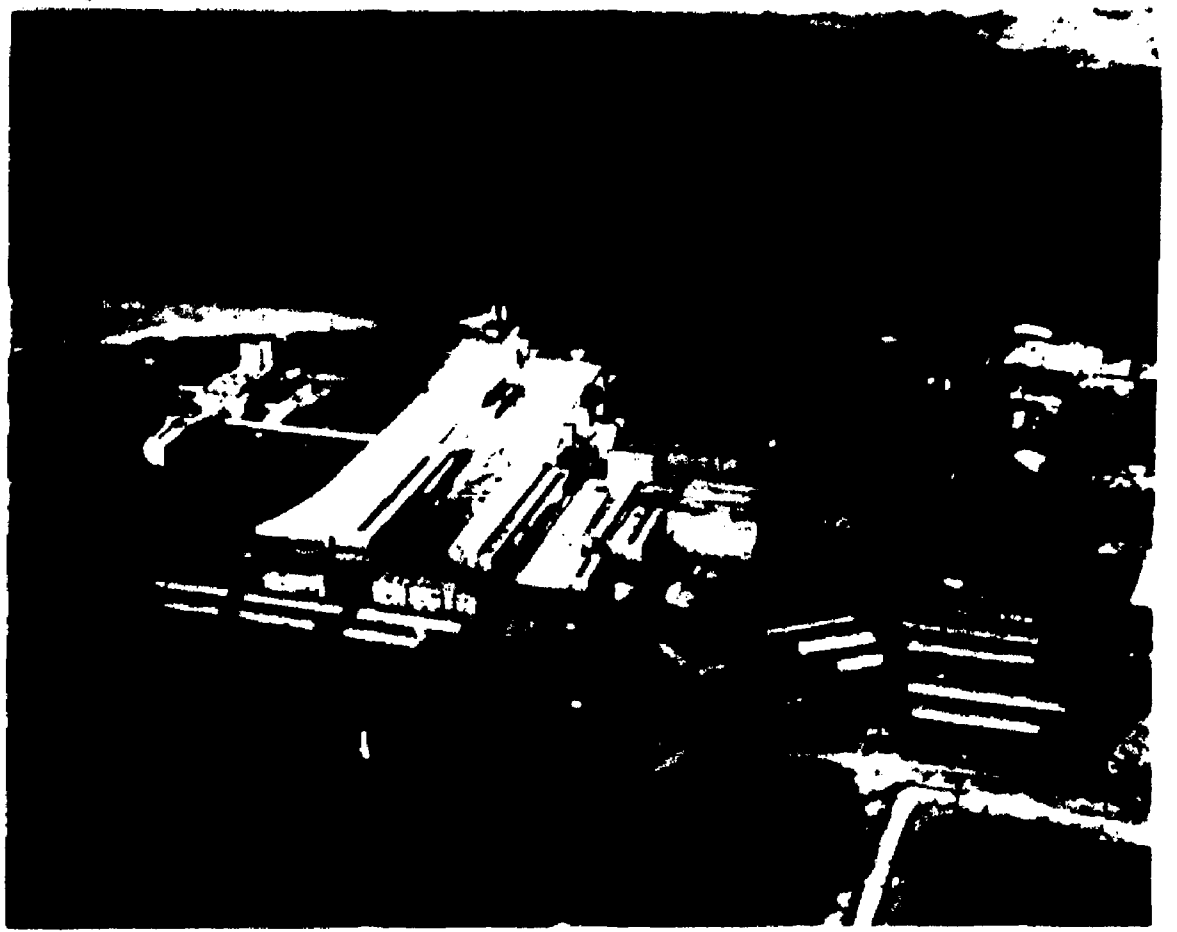

The theft of the scanner was regarded as especially reprehensible as it is used by city firemen in receiving alarms and belonged to the owner, Gerald McCracken, who valued it at $140. Arboreen was released in $500 bail and Buckley in $750 because of having the knife. Det. Durski guided the search and arraignment of the suspects.

The defendants are pleading "not guilty" and are declining against action against them based on an anonymous phone call. They will be heard Feb. 7.

BACK IN BUSINESS - The National Lead Co. plant in Sayreville is calling back 800 workers, a large percentage of them South Amboy residents, with the settlement of a strike that tied up the N.L. unit since February 1976. The agreement with Local 8-3660, Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, runs to 1980, so seems to assure continued use of the plant for a lengthy period despite much depressing talk during the strike about it being an outdated unit. The return of the weekly payroll from the plant is expected to brighten the outlook greatly for businessmen in South Amboy.

replace the ceiling with a compound free of asbestos derivatives.

Olexa said the two testing agencies cautioned there is no cause for panic that the replacement of the ceiling can be effected in due time, likely the summer vacation period this year. The testers upheld the view of Kuhn that the 15ft. high ceiling and the ample air space dilutes the danger of serious contamination of the air students breathe in the locker from any particles of asbestos until the work of replacement can take place.

The use of asbestos in construction compounds came about originally by the materials characteristic as being fire-resistant. But researchers in recent years have made it an organism suspect among those tabbed with the causation of cancer. Within the past month, an illness to a pupil in Howell Township Schools, where asbestos ceilings were installed, provoked alarm drastic enough for schools in that community to be closed three weeks. And the State Department of Environmental Protection responded by moving against asbestos use in schools and public buildings in any high percentage or derivation. But the tests made for South Amboy do not show anything in that category.

Develop an awareness of civic rights and responsibilities, B. Develop attitudes for productive citizenship in a democracy, C. Develop an attitude of respect for personal and public property and D. Develop an understanding of the obligations and responsibilities of citizenship. The goals bracketed administering developing flexibility to changing world conditions and new ideas and subscribing without reservation to the need of being a patriotic American.

The result of the goals were strung out thereafter with light preferences. Learn to Respect and Get along with People With Whom We Work and Live with gained a fair 13th Final Ranking. Bracketed for 14th and 15th were Learn to Be A Good Manager of Money, Property and Resources, preferred, 785 to .895 to its more etherial correlative. Appreciate Culture and Beauty in the World. Set down at 16th in the Final was Learn How to Respect and Get Along with People who Think, Dress and Act differently.

Tagging along, down near the end at 17th, was Understand and Practice the Skills of Family Living. And leaving the panel members coldest of all was Learn How to Use Leisure Time.

Bloodgood will turn over the results of his labors and of the panels deliberations to the State Department of Education and to the South Amboy Board of Education and Administrators.

One factor that detracts from the worth of the study and a guide to educational objectives in South Amboy is the likely chance that the public high school students will be moved elsewhere at State orders.

On the more practical side also was the seventh choice in the Original Rankings: Practice and Understand the Ideas of Health and Safety. It had the subheads: A. Establish an effective individual physical fitness program, B. Develop an understanding of good physical health and well-being, C. Establish sound personal health habits and information, D. Develop a concern for public health and safety.

Then the Original Ranking choices returned to the more abstract, correlatives bracketed as Learn How To Be A Good Citizen, Learn About and Try to Understand the Changes That Take Place in the World and Understand and Practice Democratic Ideals. On being computerized, Good Citizen earned 1.41 to get a Final 10th ranking in the 18 goals offered, World Changes came in 11th and Democratic Ideals 12th.

The subheads to becoming a Good Citizen were: A. Use Information, so that gaining a general education with mathematics and science infused moved to second place behind Reading, Writing, Speaking and Listening.

This moved the Develop A Desire For Learning Now and in the Future, finishing third in the Original Ranking Order back to fourth in the Final Ranking. Its subheads are: A. Develop intellectual curiosity and eagerness for lifelong learning, B. Develop a positive attitude toward learning, C. Develop a positive attitude toward continuing independent education.

Two correlative goals, Develop Pride In Work and A Feeling of Self-Worth and Develop Good Character and Self-Respect were linked at fourth in the Original Rank Order, but, when computerized, Develop Pride In Work came up with a 2.85 determinant, making it the fifth of choices in Final Ranking and Good Character, with a 1.80 determinant, sixth in Final Ranking.

The subheads of the Pride in Work were: A. Develop a feeling of student pride in his achievements and progress, B. Develop self-understanding and self-awareness, C. Develop the student's feeling of positive self-worth, security and self-assurance, Good Character subheads were: A. Develop moral responsibility and a sound ethical and moral behavior, B. Develop the student's capacity to discipline himself to work, C. Develop a moral and ethical sense of values, goals and processes of free society, and D. Develop standards of personal character and ideas.

The fifth and sixth preferences in the Original Rank Order pulled away from the more abstract moves that had gone before and moved into the more practical side of life. Develop Skills to Enter A Specific Field of Work was fifth and Gain Information Needed to Make Job Selections was sixth. Specific Field of Work had the subheads: A. Develop abilities and skills needed for immediate employment, B. Develop an awareness of opportunities and requirements related to a specific field of work Job Selections had subheads: A. Promote Self understanding and self-direction in relation to student's occupational interests, B. Develop the ability to use information and counseling services related to the selection of a job, and C. Develop knowledge of specific information about a particular vocation.
