CRITICS RAP COUNCIL FOR NOT USING MORE SURPLUS

Main criticism at the public hearing Monday on South Amboy's 1978 municipal budget was directed at the Council's not making more use of a $1,296,777 surplus that accrued as of last Jan. 1 to keep down the tax rate. John Norek felt the Council should have taken $340,000 out that could have been turned over to the South Amboy Board of Education to well cut down a $2.40 per $100 tax for schools. Norek insisted the conservative approach of the Council to using the gross receipts tax revenues resulted in $200,000 devolving into surplus for no good to the taxpayer. And he was sure there were enough overestimates of need throughout the run of the budget that the Council could anticipate an even higher surplus next Jan. 1.

Council President Thomas O'Brien told Norek the school board was a separate body with a budget of its own based on realistic estimates of needs for public education in the city to be approved by the voters, not on drafts against the city treasury. As for the use of surplus, Mayor J. Thomas Cross observed long waiting to get federal or state funds for the rebuilding of Broadway had come to no avail and that now the condition of the street compelled the Council to take a non-interest bearing loan of $600,000 against its surplus account to do the job this year. O'Brien added that it was obvious no sinking fund had been carried in past years against the deterioration and replacement needs of the city's sewers and water system and now the council had to have plenty of reserve on hand against the inevitable breakdowns from longtime wear.

Stanley Jankowski, a former councilman, did not feel the present Council was following the right course in this. He pointed to the buying of water from Perth Amboy, against wholly moving this year to rebuild the city's water works. He saw little point in the Council trying to accumulate a profit on water each year from new high water rates when inflation would wipe out any gain. He estimated that a job that would cost $300,000 this year would be costing $400,000 next year. He argued that with the use of shallow wells, filter and other requirement would be cut down so that a job estimated at $500,000 for deep wells could be accomplished for $300,000.

Jankowski estimated the city would be paying Perth Amboy $90,000 for water this year and he wanted to know the savings from the sharp reduction of work at the city's own water plant. Nicholas Smolney, business administrator, told him electricity costs would go down from $30,000 to $9,188 and chemical additives cost from $13,000 to $6,123. Smolney said the labor costs in the department itself, dropped with having three men at work instead of five with water supplied by Perth Amboy but admitted there was no actual overall labor costs saving as the two men who had previously been employed at the water works were moved elsewhere.

The former councilman pointed out that even with these savings, adding $90,000 cost of water from Perth Amboy to Other Expenses, Water, made the overall cost of operations $259,853, no more than a standoff if the State Division of Local Government Service allows the Council to anticipate $237,648 in rents and $11,800 from fire hydrant service this year. But he allowed it was better than a net loss in operations alone last year of $26,000.

Smolney acknowledged the state had ordered the Council to expunge from the water utility budget the $237,648 and the $11,800 figures using only the $186,768 realized on rents and $3,500 from fire hydrant service in 1977 and to await approval of a supplement figure of $50,880 on rents and $8,100 hydrant service in excess of amounts realized last year before they can become accredited figures in the budget.

Jankowski questioned by the Council had anticipated $6,500 in hydrant rents last year, yet only $3,500 had come in. O'Brien explained the $6,500 figure had become a so set one that there had been an oversight providing for the $6,500 in fire company allowances.

Jankowski declined to believe the estimates in the water utility budget were reliable enough that a cut in the deficit from $65,000 last year to $25,000 this year could be relied upon. Smolney told him that an exhaustive study on a water rates structure had devised the new rates and Jankowski could go over it.

O'Brien told Jankowski if the Council six years ago, on which Jankowski had served, had been far-sighted enough to rebuild the water plant at the price-level prevailing then, much of the difficulty afflicting the city today could have been spared. But Jankowski retorted the 1971 Council had only $100,000 surplus, not the million built up through the years for the present Council to use.

The Council president reminded Jankowski the city is faced with the possibility of the legislature passing a bill that will take away from the city 75 per cent of the Gross Receipts tax, the source of the accumulated surplus. But Jankowski affirmed his confidence this would not happen and he joined Norek in holding the Council should have used more of the $1,296,777 surplus, built up by $350,000 in just one year.

O'Brien observed $388,000 was taken from surplus to keep down the tax rate, which, with $600,000 for Broadway and the uncertain condition of the water and sewer utilities, the surplus had been more than adequately used. He said it was drawing interest in the bank and made for collateral to non-interest bearing loans to the city.

In addition to his main complaint that the Council had done nothing to ease the impact of school costs on the tax rate, Norek was critical of a $39,000 jump in insurance premium costs. He felt the insurance should be put out to bid. O'Brien

Potholes Work, Library Aid, Added to Budget

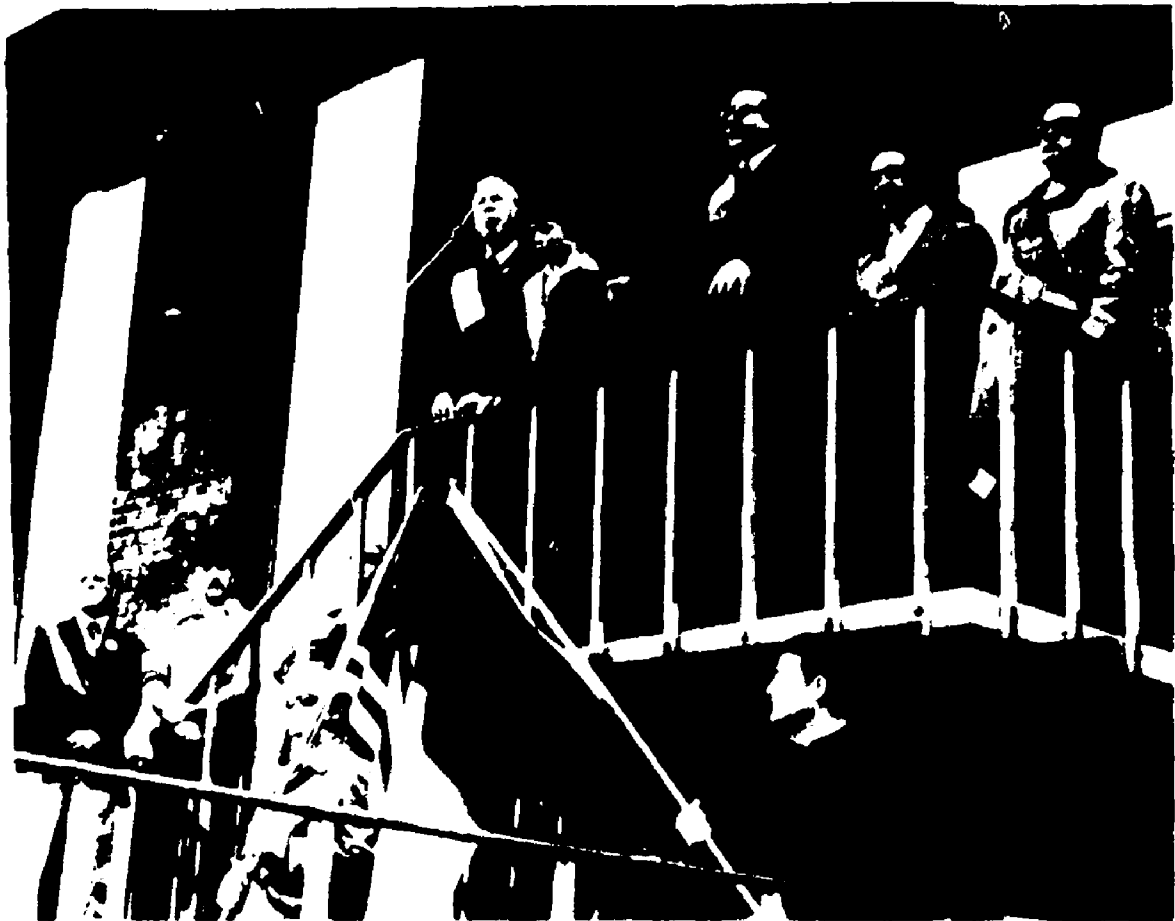

Amendments were made to the 1978 budget by the Council Monday to add $18,000.56 Nicholas Smolney, business administrator, explained $10,000 more had to be put into the account of Division of Roads, to cover the cost of snow removal, $60,000 Salaries and Wages had to be jumped $32,000 to $142,370 to cover the overtime forced by snows this winter and Miscellaneous Other Expenses $25,000 to $60,200, the latest cost being for the acquisition of 10 tons of fill for potholes.

The interest of Alice Kupper and Pat Moran, of the Library Board, gained an added $6,500 to the $50,000 originally allowed for the library that it can expand its offerings for children. And they were also instrumental in getting Council President Thomas O'Brien to recommend $2,000 could be put in that an advisory commission on cultural heritage and arts could be appointed by Mayor J. Thomas Cross.

Smolney reported that in addition to asking approval of the State Division of Local Government Services to approve special items for the water utilities budget, the state was being asked sanction use of $16,999 and $8,000 in CETA items and $13,637 in Old American funds. Continuance of work on the waterfront is a part of these requests.

Mrs. Moran questioned on the Recreation appropriation about providing a playfield in the Pupek Rd. area. She recalled it had been long promised as a capital improvement but nothing had happened. $10,000 goest for maintenance of the two new girls softball fields.

Smolney reported a $25,815 addendum to Department of Fire, Other Expenses, included monies for Scott air packs and $8,300 added for fire hydrant service. Each fire company will again get $5,000 and

A REPORT FROM SENATOR WEISS

Compensation for Crime Victims

Recent press reports indicate that many victims who are eligible for aid under the terms of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act of 1971, are unaware of the existence of the Compensation Board or of the services it offers to victims of violent crimes.

By making applications available in police stations and hospital emergency rooms, and by making police officers advise victims of their rights under this bill, it is hoped that more of those entitled to such aid will apply for and receive it.

According to information given me by the Chairman of the Board, there were 30,000 violent crimes reported in the last report year. It was also stated that for each reported crime there are from 1 1/2 to five crimes that are not reported at all.

Reasons for not reporting such crimes include a feeling on the part of the victim that "no one will help," that "the police do not care about the victim," and further, that "the police are too involved with the offender to pay much attention to the needs of the victim."

From time to time this space will feature a discussion of legislative and other matters as they emanate from the State House in Trenton. Since communication is a "two-way street," I look forward to receiving comments and reactions to items under discussion.

Two weeks ago the Senate passed and sent to the Assembly S98, a bill whose purpose it is to make the workings of the Violent Crimes Compensation Board better known to the public, and particularly to that portion of the public who are unfortunate enough to be victims of violent crime.

S98, which I was pleased to sponsor, simply provides that application forms for compensation to certain victims of violent crime be made readily available in police stations, hospital emergency rooms and other places of emergency medical care. Also, that "each police department shall, at the time a report of a violent crime is filed with the department, mail to the victim of such crime an application for aid and any other information concerning the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act of 1971."

In the "statement" that accompanied S98, it was noted that despite a steady increase in the number of murders, rapes, robberies and assaults in the State, less than 3% of the victims of violent crimes in New Jersey ever file claims for aid from the Violent Crimes Compensation Board.

S98, if passed by the Assembly and signed into law by the Governor, will enable the State of New Jersey to be eligible to receive 25% of federal matching funds under a provision of HR7010 sponsored by Congressman Rodino. This federal law passed the House on September 30, 1977 and is presently before the U.S. Senate.

Further, it is said, S98 will encourage the reporting of crimes and should encourage victim-witness cooperation with Law Enforcement Authorities in the detection, apprehension and prosecution of offenders.

Our criminal justice system is meticulous when it comes to protecting the rights of those charged with crimes. It is most reasonable therefore, that the system be equally meticulous when it comes to protecting the rights and the condition of the victims of such crimes.

"Local Boy Up and Coming"

Is none other than South Amboy's own Frank Dill. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Dill on August 12, 1966 in South Amboy's Memorial Hospital.

At three years old, Frankie would jump up onto his father's lap to accompany him while playing the guitar. Since then Frankie has been entertaining family and friends at parties and neighborhood barbecues.

At nine years of age people began asking Frankie Dill to play in shows and P.T.A. meetings at school.

It seems as if Frankie is following in two sets of footsteps. His father's who was a lead guitarist for a country and western band that played in some of Jersey's night spots. Also his uncle's "Eddie Charles" lead guitarist for the group, "The Megatons."

Frankie has been asked to entertain on various occasions. His last engagement was at a Cub Scout Award Dinner for the Blue and Gold Troup on February 19, 1978. He was awarded a check for $25 dollars for his performance.

Frankie's act includes a "Tribute to Elvis," in which he does a medley of songs once done by Elvis.

Strangely enough Frankie Dill has never had a lesson for either guitar or singing in his life.

Many say he has the fastest fingers for a boy his age while playing the guitar.

Frankie Dill's main goal is to continue entertaining and making people happy.

Morgan First Aid Seeks Funds, Members

Any resident of Morgan who has not received an envelope for a donation to support the Morgan First Aid Squad, Inc. during the annual drive in January and February may still contribute. Stanley Kurpiewski, president, announces. Please send a donation to support the work of the Squad to Morgan First Aid Squad, Inc., Post Office Box 296, South Amboy, N.J. 08879, enclosing also a notation of your name and address.

Kurpiewski comments that new residents of times do not know about the Squad and its services. He points out Morgan First Aid is the Squad covering the area. All members are volunteers, well trained, who are available 24 hours a day to render all types of assistance. For such aid, first call in an emergency Sayreville police at 254-1400, give the officer in charge the address of the home or business where the accident has occurred, the type of injury or accident, tell how many were injured and give the phone number from which you are calling. Then have someone at the house or place of business wait for the arrival of ambulance to direct the first aiders to the room or location where the sick or injured person is.

Funds received for support of the Squad's work are strictly used to purchase first aid equipment or supplies. The Squad is a busy one so such articles are quickly used up and donated funds to replenish them are needed.

"Qualified persons" are asked to offer their services. Duty will be adjusted, so far as possible, to the hours most convenient to the volunteer. Give a call, help us out, by calling about membership to 721-4493 or 721-2310. Kurpiewski asks.

GARDEN NEWS

TENT CATERPILLAR

Tent caterpillars spend the winter as brownish egg masses on twigs of black cherry, chokecherry, apple, and other fruit and ornamental trees.

Egg masses are about 1 inch long and completely encircle the twigs.

Eggs hatch during the first warm spell about the time wild cherry leaves begin to appear. Young caterpillars gather in a nearby fork of limbs and spin a large webby nest. They leave the nest during the day to feed on leaves and return to the nest at night.

To reduce damage by tent caterpillars move as many egg masses as possible between now and early April.

All you need to do is crumple a piece of newspaper and wipe the nests out of your trees. Burning a nest with a torch does the job, but you may hurt your tree or start a fire.

Every egg mass you remove will lessen the potential population of tent caterpillars by 200 to 300 individuals.

EASY TO PLANT

If you expect to plant evergreen seedlings this spring, here are some tips on how to plant and care for them.

The recommended time to plant seedlings is March or just as soon as the frost is out of the ground. They should never be planted after the middle of May.

For best results pick a spot where the tree will have full sunlight.

If you can't plant your seedling as soon as you get it, keep the roots wrapped in wet moss to prevent them from drying.

Dig a hole about 10 inches wide and 10 inches deep. This should be large enough to accommodate the root system of seedlings 8 to 10 inches tall. Spread the roots and pack the soil tightly around them to avoid air pockets.

Water thoroughly and repeat if the soil becomes dry.

Build a wire enclosure to protect the seedling from damage by animals and lawnmowers.

PATTEN IN THE HOUSE

By U.S. Rep. Edward J. Patten

"Rodding," an orthopedic procedure to straighten and strengthen crippled limbs, is the most significant corrective development to date. The procedure is tedious and painful.

Carefully applied physical therapy may help too.

Brittle Bone Disease has a history that stems from antiquity. Little was done about it over the centuries, but the American Brittle Bone Society was founded nearly a year ago to concentrate on coping with the disease.

I am pleased to say that the Society is based in New Jersey and that I had the pleasure to meet recently with some of its leaders. The Society has its headquarters in Cinaminston. Its members, advisors and consultants are among the outstanding medical people in the world and are affiliated with the outstanding medical schools and hospitals of the world.

The National Institutes of Health (NIH) is responsible for the funding of the greater portion of health research in this country. I will try to see that NIH is made more aware of the many problems related to OI and also try to see that the NIH budget includes some funds for OI research.

Needless to say, the Society looks toward Congress to help fund its effort to research, detect, treat and ultimately cure Brittle Bone Disease. The Society hopes to educate the public about the seriousness of osteogenesis imperfecta.

Its office is located at 712 Dartmouth Avenue, Cinaminston, N.J. 08077. It needs the understanding and help of everyone.

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor

Legislation recently approved by Senate and House conferees which would raise the mandatory retirement age in the private sector from 65 to 70 years would help millions of deserving senior citizens in America.

It's unfair, even cruel, to force persons to retire at 65 when they are still effective and want to continue working. Performance, not age, should determine if persons should keep working. Younger persons have more energy, but older workers usually appreciate their jobs more, are often more versatile and dedicated, and are certainly more experienced.

Although there has been some criticism the bill would harm those who want to enter the work force, one survey estimated that only 200,000 persons who are 65 would continue working. As a safeguard, however, the proposal would require that a study of the program's impact in the private and public sectors be submitted to Congress within two years.

U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (Dem.-N.J.) and U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper (Dem.-Fla.), the bill's chief sponsors, deserve the gratitude of those who want to work after 65 if they have the ability, interest and need. Pres. Carter should sign it as soon as Congress passes the Conference Report.

Much more must be done by Congress, though, before senior citizens enjoy the security and peace they have earned when they reach what Cicero called "the crown of life." Their needs are extensive and range from protection against nursing home abuse, to national health insurance.

Yet, the Williams Pepper bill is a major achievement and represents important progress for those who have not only done more for America than any other age group, but tragically are also the most neglected.

Robert Herrick wrote, "That age is best which is the first. When youth and blood are warmer." But Shakespeare also observed that, "Though I look old, yet I am strong." Millions of American workers are not only strong at 65. They are also capable, reliable and useful.

IT'S A RECORD!

The world's largest tomato was harvested in August, 1976 by Clarence Dailey of Wisconsin. He used natural fertilizer and lots of compost, and aerated the roots frequently with a pitch fork. The tomato weighed 6 pounds 8 ounces, and measured eight inches across.

The world's largest squash was grown by Bob Ford of Pennsylvania. From a vine yielding 1,016 pounds of fruit, he picked a 451-pound squash that grew, on the average, 7 1/2 pounds a day.

The world's tallest sunflower was grown by Frank Kelland of England. His prize-winning plant grew to 23 feet 6 1/2 inches tall and had a seed head measuring 1 foot 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

... About Your SOCIAL SECURITY

The way people earn social security credits has been changed so employees' earnings can be more simply reported on a yearly instead of a quarterly basis, starting in 1978.

People earn benefit protection by getting credit for work covered by social security in or after 1937, the year the program started. The work credits are called "quarters of coverage."

Before 1978, they were measured in terms of earnings attributed to the 4 calendar quarters in a year: January-March, April-June, July-September, or October-December.

For years before 1978, most employees got credit for a quarter of coverage if they were paid $50 or more in a quarter for work covered by social security. Most self-employed people got credit for 4 quarters in any year their net annual self-employment income was $400 or more.

Starting in January 1978, workers will get credit for a quarter of coverage for each $250 they're paid within a year for work covered by social security with a limit of 4 quarters of coverage for the year. This will also apply to the earnings of self-employed people.

The $250 figure will be increased in the future to stay in line with increases in average wage levels.

To be eligible for social security retirement benefits, most people need credit for at least one quarter of work for each year between 1950 and the year they reach 62. People who reach 62 in 1978 need at least 27 quarters (6 3/4 years) of coverage.

Eligible workers can start collecting their full social security retirement benefits at 65 or reduced benefits at 62. Dependents can also get payments based on the worker's earnings record.

Quarters of coverage credit determine eligibility for social security retirement but do not affect the amount of the monthly check. The payment amount is based on the worker's earnings covered by social security over a period of time.

People can find out how much work and earnings are credited to their social security record free of charge by calling any social security office and asking for a Request for Statement of Earnings postcard.

RUTGERS NEWS SERVICE

Behind the scenes at Rutgers University, a group of environmentally-concerned young people may be conducting the nation's biggest campus recycling operation.

Considering the magnitude of their operations, involving the State University's large and busy campuses here and in Piscataway and an arrangement with the City of New Brunswick to collect some of its discarded waste materials, they may indeed be one of a kind.

Led by Mark Usinger, a 22-year-old Rutgers College alumna, seven undergraduates are running on a part-time basis what an official of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Washington has referred to as "one of the largest volunteer recycling programs in the United States."

The EPA statement, contained in a letter to U.S. Senator Harrison Williams in response to a request for federal funds, was based on the fact that the Rutgers recycling efforts nets nearly a million pounds of waste paper, glass and cans a year.

George Washington University reportedly runs the only other sizable campus recycling operation totaling some 600,000 pounds of scrap materials a year, according to Usinger.

Like other enterprises, the Rutgers recycling program began on a much smaller scale.

"It started in 1973," Usinger noted, "with three or four students concerned with the environment and conservation, who volunteered their services part time to develop a recycling operation on campus."

No longer functioning on a strictly voluntary basis, the program has grown to a point where there are 20 "recycling centers" or sites, both on- and off-campus, where waste materials are collected, and then carted by trucks to commercial recycling establishments located in Jersey City, Freehold, Edison and Elizabeth.

The growth of its operations probably was best dramatized to the University community last fall by the appointment of Usinger - long involved in voluntary campus recycling activities - as Rutgers' first salaried recycling coordinator. His salary of $10,308 a year is partly paid by the City of New Brunswick.

Usinger's student assistants, all Cook College sophomores concerned with the environment, are also now being compensated for their work, receiving $2.60 an hour.

TOP OF THE HEAP - Concerned with the environment and conservation, young people at Rutgers University may be running the largest recycling operation on the nation's campuses. The group carts away nearly a million pounds of waste paper, glass and cans a year from collection centers on campus and in the city of New Brunswick to commercial recycling firms in Northern and Central New Jersey.

Describing the volume of recyclable materials his crew handles, Usinger said that "on a typical Saturday, we'll pick up 10,000 pounds of paper and 13,000 pounds of glass for the week." They also collect some 3,000 pounds of metal cans a month, he said.

A good month's operations will net 100,000 pounds of materials, a poor one, on the other hand, such as December, during holiday class breaks, will drop the volume to about 67,000.

The financial incentive for collecting these materials is good and getting better. Recycling companies are paying $40 a ton for old newspapers, up from $7 a ton in 1975, and the price for glass and aluminum and bimetal cans ranges from $30 for glass and bimetal up to $340 a ton for aluminum.

The quantity of materials handled by the Rutgers recycling crews calls for a strong cooperative effort by a host of people working or living on or off University property, according to Usinger.

With a fairly limited staff and just a couple of trucks at their disposal, the students do little collecting in the many buildings that dot the New Brunswick-Piscataway area campuses.

Usinger and his crew do make collections of waste paper and other materials at a few campus buildings, but generally they depend on office personnel in the various buildings drop off whatever discarded materials they have at one of the nearby recycling sites.

The same holds true for those New Brunswick residents who live near the three off-campus sites.

In the short period that Usinger has directed the recycling program full time, he has had little opportunity to expand to any substantial extent his services to New Brunswick.

This is not for lack of ideas.

In the coming months, Usinger said he would like to develop with municipal officials a plan for neighborhood curbside collections at Rutgers Village, a housing development and elsewhere, possibly using the manpower financed by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

He said he would also like to solicit the assistance of both larger firms and retail businesses to help them set up a program for recycling disposable materials.

"It's the kind of community cooperation that will be the key to our success," Usinger said.

METHODIST CHURCH NEWS

The problem with many of us in our spiritual dedication, is that we wave our palm fronds zealously for awhile and shout lusty hosannas for a season, then we forget their reason until some setback comes that requires a faith greater than our everyday variety. In this high holy season it is good for all of us to take stock of our commitment and having done so rededicate ourselves to the high calling of Christ.

We will be observing Palm Sunday in both of our churches this Sunday. Palms will be distributed at both churches. Cliffwood Community Church is at 9:00 A.M. South Amboy worship service is at 11:00 A.M. Reverend Benson's sermon title is, "The Children Understood."

Church School at South Amboy begins at 9:30 A.M. each Sunday. Graded lessons from Pre K to and including Adults.

Monday evening the Council on Ministries will meet at the Church, 7:30 P.M. Tuesday at 7:00 P.M. the United Methodist Women's business meeting and installation of new members. At 8:00 P.M. a representative of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company will lecture on, "Gems of Romance." All women of the church are invited.

Confirmation Class is cancelled for this Wednesday.

Thursday at Cliffwood Community at 6:00 P.M. there will be a dinner followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. 8:00 P.M. at the South Amboy Church the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. Mr. Benson will take part in the three hour service in the Presbyterian church beginning at 12 noon, then at 8:00 P.M. we will be worshipping in our own church with a Tenebrae service.

Saturday 25th the Children's Annual Easter Egg Hunt at the church 10:00 A.M.

said the reluctance of carriers to take on municipalities today would only mean the city would not get a bid. The Council president said South Amboy was better off with the figure quoted, than other towns around. But Norek insisted bidding the insurance to see what would happen would do no harm.

Norek attacked the police salaries appropriation on the basis that it provided for three detectives when he had been assured only two would be needed for a city the size of South Amboy. But mayor Cross told him the vandalism, crime and even disorders from the great amount of drinking required the extra detective and the addition of four men, by increasing the salaries appropriation by $12,000 and taking $35,000 more in revenue-sharing. Norek questioned why more use was not being made of specials, but the mayor told him the attorney-general had greatly reduced their use. There has been a $3,000 cut in school crossing guards' salaries since schools went on full time. Norek was told.

Asking about Salaries, Administrative and Legislative, Norek was told the mayor and Council are holding the line, that the increase is for the administrator, providing a secretary for his office and a part-time operator for the new computer.

Norek was cut off by O'Brien when he attempted to probe $21,000 Salaries and $15,000 other expenses for the Law Department other than to be told an assistant was being hired half year for the court clerk and the prosecutor's $4,500 salary came in to play a full year the first time. Convery & Convery, Perth Amboy, city attorneys were placed under other expenses, Norek was told, but O'Brien refused to allow him to question the uses where current litigation is involved.

The Council and Norek agreed that adding $50,000 to the fire alarm account was good. The mayor said $100,000 would be used to provide the city a four loop system that would end the uncertain workings of devices now in use.

As for increases totaling $37,000 in Public Works, the mayor told Norek that $40,293 toward repair of buildings was little enough, that buildings and grounds needed the $20,000 increase to $96,000. In the increase for Recreation the mayor noted two added fields now needed care and a man had to be stationed as a watch in the summer.

POLICE OFFICERS ENTER LIBEL SUIT

Four members of South Amboy Police Department, Det. Raymond Durski, Sgt. Robert Kelly, Ptl. Joseph Dragotta and Ptl. James Holovachio, filed suit in Superior Court last week charging libel by Sol Chaneles, New York free lance writer, in an article about a suicide death in the municipal jail Jan. 25, 1974. The article was entitled "Cruel and Usual Punishment." It appeared in New Jersey Magazine, Princeton, also named as defendants.

The bill of particulars charges gross overplaying in the matter of a prisoner confined to jail at 5:45 p.m. that day and found death at 8:10 p.m. The man was incarcerated on a complaint by a private individual, not the police.
