TWO FIRES THIS WEEK

Ehrlich's Harness Shop and John-H. W. Manville Co.'s Paint Works Slightly Damaged—Timely Discovery and Prompt Action of Firemen Prevents Heavy Loss.

What might have been a serious fire was discovered just in the nick of time at Charles Ehrlich's harness shop, on Broadway, about 11:20 o'clock last Tuesday night.

Albin Ginter, who attends the saloon next door, noticed smoke issuing from the building, and with Howard D. Littell and Frank L. Dey made an investigation and found that the back room on the first floor was ablaze. An alarm was sent in from box 54, and the fire department soon responded. The fire was extinguished with a few pails of water and thus the majority of the stock was saved from destruction.

How the fire started is a mystery. It was at first thought that an overheated stove was the cause, but Mr. Ehrlich states that there was not any fire in the stove, but that when he wanted heat in the room he used an oil stove, which was always out when he left for home at night. Several heavy sets of harness left for repair by Whitehead Brothers were destroyed, and Mr. Ehrlich lost several dollars' worth in stock. The building was owned by E. R. Brown, and his loss will not be very heavy. There was insurance on stock and building.

Paint Works Ablaze.

About 12:55 o'clock Wednesday afternoon an alarm was sent in from the Pennsylvania Railroad system, owing to fire being discovered at the John-H. W. Manville Co.'s paint works at Mechanicsville. Word was also sent by phone to Independence Engine Company to send hose cart.

With the combined efforts of four locomotives, the Mechanicsville Hose Company and Independence boys the fire was extinguished. Part of the roof of the building fell in. That some good work was done is evinced by the fact that the entire plant was not destroyed. The loss will be quite heavy.

Miss Mary Conway Weds W. H. Freeman

A very pretty wedding took place in this city on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock, when Miss Mary Conway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Conway, of Stockton street, was united in marriage to Mr. William H. Freeman, of Mechanicsville. The ceremony was performed in St. Mary's Church by Monsignor J. F. Brady, and was witnessed by quite a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Nellie Josephine Foden, of New York city, and Mr. Joseph Holton, of this city, was bestman.

The bride was attired in a steel-colored silk gown, with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations. The bridesmaid was attired in a pretty pale blue silk creation, with hat to correspond, and carried roses.

After the wedding an elaborate breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Quite a number of guests participated in the social festivities. Master James Maguire entertained with music on the violin.

The bride received a number of pretty gifts.

Among those present were: Mrs. John A. Carroll, Mrs. Frank McGuire, Mrs. Joseph Foden, Mrs. M. Connolly and Miss Katie Melia, all of New York; Mrs. Keenan, of Sayreville; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Carroll and family, Thomas Conway and family, Street Commissioner John Connors, Mrs. John Ryan and daughter Maggie, Mrs. Kennedy and family, Mrs. Keays and family, Miss Annie Dawson, Miss Bessie Holton, Miss Elizabeth Mulvey and Mrs. John Keane.

RED MEN HONOR C. T. GRACE

Great Sachem Appoints Him as Great Mishenewa at Annual Session of Great Council—Salary Increase Voted Down.

George G. Cliver, as representative of Seneca Tribe, No. 23, and Charles T. Grace and Past Sachem George McKenna, of this city, attended the annual meeting of the Great Council of Red Men held at Trenton on Thursday of last week.

Charles T. Grace was honored by being appointed to the high office of great Mishenewa, which is also a compliment to Seneca Tribe. Mr. Grace has always been an active worker in the ranks of Red Men, and his appointment was no doubt in a measure due to the interest he has taken in the order.

The closing hours were perhaps the busiest of any session in the history of the organization, and many matters of grave importance were given attention.

Aged Men's Home.

It was decided that the committee on the proposed aged men's home be continued and the matter will positively be decided upon at the next annual gathering. It is understood that the plan to establish a home meets with the approval of a majority of the Red Men of the State, but it is deemed advisable to go slowly.

Salary Not Increased.

It was decided not to increase the salary of Great Keeper of Records Stevens from $1,500 to $1,800 a year, and in the closing of the session a handsome regalia and an emblematic watch charm were presented to John Thompson, retiring great sachem. One of the gifts was from the tribe of which he is a member, while the other was from the Past Sachems' Association of Asbury Park.

The matter of offering prizes to persons who secure three additional members during the year was left in the hands of the great chiefs for decision.

Grace Appointed Mishenewa.

The officers were installed by Joseph Mowrey, of Camden, and John B. Wright, the great sachem, made these appointments:

Great Sannap, Alfred J. Royer, of Atlantic City.

Great Mishenewa, Charles T. Grace, of this city.

Great Guard of Wigwam, John A. Meyers.

Great Guard of the Forest, Elmer Lochard, of Belvidere.

Finance Committee, M. B. Spoffard, of Bayonne; H. F. Stetzer, of Gloucester; and William R. O'Brien, of Asbury Park.

Law Committee, J. Milton Burger, F. P. Johnson, Jr., of Camden; Charles L. Holstein, of Plainfield.

Board of Appeals, A. H. Styles, of Atlantic City; Walter S. Wetmore, of Oceanic; and Theodore S. Sprague, of Burlington.

STATE MUTUAL DIVIDEND.

Ten Per Cent. to Be Distributed Among Shareholders.

Shareholders of the defunct State Mutual Building and Loan Association to the number of several thousand, and who are scattered all over New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, will get ten per cent. more in dividends, according to a fourth report made to Vice Chancellor Leaming in Camden Monday by one of the receivers.

Already the receivers have been able in the two years of their work to clear a total of 55 per cent., which, with the present one, will make 65 per cent., or just the Assets Realization Company offered for the association's holdings. In addition to this, the receivers state that there are sufficient assets remaining to warrant the belief that another 10 per cent. will be declared, or 75 per cent. in all.

In connection with the report, it was stated that a bill is now pending against former Judge E. Ambler Armstrong, who was president of the association, to compel him to give an accounting of the proceeds of sixty-five shares of stock of the Atlantic Electric Light and Power Company. This is scheduled to be heard before Vice Chancellor Stevens in Camden on March 17.

This is pleasant news to the shareholders in this city.

A Public Service trolley car and C. Rehfuess' baker wagon came together on Bordentown avenue, near the Raritan River Railroad bridge, about 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, resulting in the wagon being badly damaged.

Charles Cox, the driver, was coming down the avenue and the car going up, when he became crowded between the tracks of the two trolley lines.

The wagon appeared to have escaped the front of the car, but the car lurching apparently to one side, struck the top of the wagon and swung it around against the car. The top was broken off, side crashed in, and front axle bent, which made the wagon a wreck.

Clarence Applegate, the blacksmith, ran out of his shop and caught the horse by the head, preventing the animal from running away. Fortunately the driver escaped injury. The wagon was a new one, and the damage will be considerable.

Dillon--Walters.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walters, 140 Main street, was gladdened by a quiet, but exquisitely pretty wedding at 6:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening, March 1, at which their daughter, Miss Cecel A. Walters, became the bride of Mr. Howard William Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Dillon, of Riverton, N. J., the ceremony being performed by the Rev. C. S. Miller, pastor of the M. E. Church, of this city.

Miss Emma B. Dewald, of New Brunswick, attended Miss Walters as bridesmaid, and Mr. John Van Dorn, of Jersey City, acted as bestman for Mr. Dillon.

Following the ceremony congratulations and best wishes were in order after which a delicious supper was served to the guests present and from then on until the departure of the bride and groom merriness reigned supreme.

Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburg, Altoona and Punxsutawney will be included in the honeymoon, upon their return from which Mr. and Mrs. Dillon will reside in Riverton.

The bride was stylishly attired in a handsome travelling suit of blue Panama serge and hat to match.

With the exception of Miss Etta Straub, a very dear friend of the bride, and Mr. Frank O'Donnell, of Rhode Island, a personal friend of the bride's family, the guests were confined exclusively to the immediate families of the bride and groom.

Quite a number of friends of the bride, who is very popular among her associates, and the groom, accompanied them as far as New Brunswick to wish them God-speed on their journey.

Besides the many gifts which the bride received at a shower which was given her by her pupils in School No. 2, Sayreville township, many other beautiful and costly ones were received from her host of friends and relatives.

Jury Disagrees In Highway Robbery Case

The trial of Edward Muldoon, John Ranjo and Edward Josiak charged with highway robbery of Gregory Serva on January 10, took place Wednesday afternoon and resulted in a disagreement of the jury. It is understood that the talesmen stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal.

The defendants denied being implicated in the robbery and asserted facts tending to prove an alibi.

During the presentation of the State's case Serva was called upon to illustrate how the robbery was carried out. He caused quite some amusement to the spectators and consternation to the court when he shoved his hand in Detective John Ferguson's pocket, extracting his roll, and started full speed for the door of the courthouse.

Constables Masterson and McCabe stopped him. In reply to Judge Lyon's question as to why he tried to run away with the money, Serva replied through the interpreter, "You wanted me to show how they did it and I did." Joseph E. Stricker and Francis P. Coan represented the defendants.

County May Escape Expense of Registrar

It looks now as if Middlesex county would not have a registrar of deeds forced upon it against its will. The House on Tuesday afternoon passed without a dissenting vote the three bills introduced by Assemblyman Humes, of Bergen, repealing the act of last year creating the office of registrar of deeds in Bergen and other counties in that class.

Last year's bill was passed with the special purpose of creating a place for Speaker Harry P. Ward, but when R. D. Sibbalds, his opponent on the Democratic ticket, started out on his campaign he made the pledge that if elected to the $6,000 office he would use his best efforts to secure the repeal of the law under which it was created, as he knew it was an unnecessary office. Mr. Sibbalds was elected, as were the two Democratic candidates for Assembly, in the great Wilson tidal wave, and Mr. Humes presented the repealers.

As the act affected Mercer and Middlesex counties, neither of which elected a registrar of deeds last fall, the members from those counties were ready to aid the passage of the repealers.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS.

"The Slim Princess" a Big Hit.

Miss Elsie Janis has scored the greatest hit of her remarkable career, by her splendid and captivating performance of "Slim Princess" in Charles Dillingham's new musical comedy production of that name, now playing to packed houses at the Globe Theatre, New York. Miss Janis is seen in a role in marked and wonderful contrast to the parts she has impersonated in past seasons. She appears as a Turkish princess who is too thin to find favor in her own country, where the ladies must be fat to be fashionable. She comes to America where she has heard that slim ladies are much admired. Miss Janis is a striking picture of youth and beauty when she makes her first appearance in the gorgeous robes of a Turkish princess, borne in by slaves and surrounded by a retinue of the prettiest girls ever assembled together on any stage in New York. This harem scene is a riot of color and magnificence. Later Miss Janis is seen in smart, fashionable frocks, and the large chorus likewise exchanges oriental costumes for fashions a la mode. Miss Janis has a number of song hits, including an unusually effective song, "What a Chance to Take," which is rendered with the assistance of the full chorus. Then the imitations for which the clever young star has always been famous, are introduced in a novel manner, and there are several which Miss Janis has never done prior to this season. Joseph Cawthorn is in chief assistant of the array of fun makers, appearing as a German tutor to the Turkish princess. The wh

Master James Birmingham had a close call from being run over by a Jersey Central Traction car on Stevens avenue about 11:30 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and it was only through the alertness of the motor-man that the boy escaped injury. The boy ran across the track in front of the car and immediately started to re-cross again, and in doing so his hat fell off on the tracks and he stopped to pick it up. The car was then almost to him, and the motor-man by applying the air brakes stopped the car within a foot or two of the boy. He then ran for home without further delay.

I hereby extend my sincere thanks to the many friends who kindly rendered assistance during the illness and at the funeral of my husband; also to the employees of the P. R. R. car shops and others for beautiful floral pieces. MRS. CHARLES PETERSON.

NEVER ANYTHING TO EQUAL IT.

The first day's sale of the Kabosky stock witnessed a "packed" store from the time the doors swung open, till late into the night. And at the time of this writing (morning of the second day of the sale) people are arriving in such numbers that it looked as if we are to have a repetition of the first day's crowds. Of course we are not surprised at the crowds, for South Amboy people know a good thing at all times, and especially when they can get good, first class suits, underwear, shirts, hats, shoes, etc., on the average, at 50c on a dollar. That a large quantity of goods were sold you may be sure, but the stock is so vast, that the choosing is just as good as at the start. Indeed it is a marvelous money saving event, and no one should miss it. Come everyday, for soon as one lot is sold another takes its place, or in other words some new and startling special bobs up. Yes, pass the goods word to your friends that Andrew Kabosky's good and reliable stock is being sold at about 50c on a dollar at the Salz's Store, near Parlsen's Drug store.

L. F. MEINZER ON MEINZER'S BLOCK.

Our announcement last week was very brief, but far-reaching. Defined, it said it did not make any difference how affluent a family was, they could not buy any purer nor higher grade goods, it mattered not how high a price they paid, nor where they bought them. It said furthermore that no family in the city was too indigent to procure those pure high-grade goods if they called at the store on Meinzer's block.

Genuine gold dollars at eighty cents a piece is regarded a profitable investment. Those who do their buying at our store make higher per centage than that, as an analysis will show from five dollars invested in gold dollars you will realize one dollar, or twenty per cent. Five dollars invested in 4-pound packages of Gold Dust Washing Powder you will realize $3.40 or 68 per cent.

The Cake That Billy Bought

A Valentine Story

By MARTHA J. TOWNE

Copyright by American Press Asso- ation, 1911.

The door of the Woman's Exchange swung open and closed behind Billy Delwin's broad back. For an instant he hesitated, besieged by a battery of feminine eyes. Then he strode forward to the counter, where under glass cases were arranged handsome and toothsome cakes of every description and variety.

With his hat under his arm he stared down at the cakes with a calculating eye. "I want a plum cake," he said finally. "Have you got one today?"

"Wait a minute." And the woman disappeared, presently returning with a large box, which she opened and disclosed under tissue paper wrappings a large round cake.

Billy's eyes sparkled dangerously as he surveyed the beautiful cake. "I'll take it," he said quickly. Then he added a question, "Is it plum cake?"

"Yes, indeed, and perfectly deli- cious," said the woman enthusiastically.

Then it was that he summoned cour- age to lean forward and ask a ques- tion in a low voice, "Is it against the rule to mention the name of the mem- ber who baked this cake?"

The cash register clanged noisily as the woman turned away. "Against the rules," she said crisply.

"May I inquire," persisted Billy hesi- tatingly, his voice still lower, "if this cake was baked—er—er—by an old lady?"

The attendant smiled shrewdly over her shoulder. "It's against the rules to mention ages also," she returned.

Once in the street he boarded a car and was conveyed with more or less rapidity to his bachelor rooms. He took the cake from his box.

"I dunno. That's more like it than any of 'em," he muttered as he went to and fro, hastily removing the things from his library table. Then he laid several clean white towels on the polished surface and, bringing from vari- ous places of concealment a number of large round frosted cakes, he placed heart of she would never have hidden herself away from me in this manner. As if Mr. Giles' failure and suicide could make any other difference to me than to feel more tenderly toward her! If nothing had happened or if Phyllis had not hidden away after it was over we should have been married by this time instead of my following up the only clew I ever could get—that she had come to New York and was baking cakes for the Woman's Ex- change! I've bought plum cakes from every exchange in the city, I believe, until the women look on me with sus- picion." He sat for a long time in silence, and then he arose and bundled the cakes into their boxes.

The last purchase he wrapped care- fully and replaced in its box. Then he got into his overcoat, picked up his hat and with the cake under his arm he sought the street. Presently he was once more standing before the counter in the Woman's Exchange.

The tea tables were empty now, and there was no one around save the stern visaged woman who had waited upon him earlier in the afternoon.

"Will you kindly break your rule and tell me the name of the young lady who made this cake?" he asked with the keenest anxiety in his deep voice.

"It is impossible," said the woman primly.

"Would you forward a letter to her if I should write one?" pleaded Billy.

"Certainly not!" And her shocked expression was the first glimmer of humor that Billy had seen in the dull fabric of this wearisome chase after the girl he loved.

"Will you call her on the telephone and allow me to talk with her?" per- sisted Billy. "Really, madam, you will be making two people very happy!"

"I could not do that either. I am very sorry, sir, but it seems to me if Miss Giles really wanted to see you she would not withhold her address." The woman flashed with vexation at the slip she had made in thus revealing the name Billy had been toying to hear.

"It is Phyllis, then!" he cried tri- umphantly. "I knew that cake. No- body in the world can make a plum cake like Phyllis," he explained with enthusiasm. "The moment I tasted it I knew."

The harsh face softened a little. "Her cakes are different from the others," she said lukewarmly. "She said once that she could make cakes better than anything else in the world, and so she thought that was the thing she ought to do to gain a livelihood."

"Bless her heart!" muttered Billy un- der his breath, knowing well that if he had his own way that Phyllis' duty fingers should never bake a cake in the world unless it was for some es- pecial treat like St. Valentine's day.

"Do you know what day tomorrow will be?" he demanded suddenly.

The woman stared. "Valentine's day, of course," she said, busying her- self with the wares in the glass case.

"Well, that's the day when separat- ed sweethearts are reunited, you know," blurted Billy sheepishly. "Seems to me if I could help any one along in that way I'd do it!"

"It isn't part of the business," said the woman impatiently. "Really, sir, I'd like to help you out, but I simply cannot divulge the names of our mem- bers."

"Very well, madam," cried Billy grimly. "I'll find her without your help, and when I do you'll lose the best cake maker in your membership!"

The door closed noisily behind his indignantly retreating form, and the woman stared after him for a brief moment. "I wonder," she muttered softly—"I wonder if it would have done any harm to have told him; he had a good face and he seemed so much in earnest, and, just as he said, tomorrow is Valentine's day!"

In the street Billy paused for a mo- ment and looked up and down. Sud- denly a little black gowned form emerged from the crowd and paused for an instant before the door of the exchange and then laid a tentative hand on the knob.

Billy Delwin was beside her in an instant.

"Phyllis!" he cried sharply. "I've got you now, and you can't lose me again!"

She uttered a little frightened cry and turned a white face up to his. "Oh, Billy, Billy!" she gasped. "Where did you come from?"

"I just came out of this exchange, where the hearts of the attendants are harder than the little red hearts on your Valentine plum cake, for they would not divulge your address, though I begged almost on my knees. But I've got you now, Phyllis Giles! Don't you dare enter that ogre's den again!"

He drew her trembling form close to him, and they stood in the shadow of the doorway, her slight form lean- ing against him.

"How did you know, Billy? How did you find me out?" asked Phyllis after a little silence.

Billy told her of his quest for the cakes; of the slight clew he had fol- lowed and of his purchase that night of the Valentine plum cake, which he recognized as her handiwork.

"Darling," he whispered after it had been told, "tomorrow is St. Valen- tine's day. You have baked this cake, and on it you have asked the question, 'Will you be my valentine?' Now, I bought that cake and take it upon my- self to answer that question. I will be your valentine under one condition."

"What is that?" asked Phyllis.

"That you will admit that you're not sorry that I bought the cake."

"Sorry!" echoed Phyllis joyfully. "Why, Billy, I was thinking of you when I made it, and I splashed so many tears over the little red hearts that they bled, and I had to place them with others. Billy, I thought you'd never see me!"

WILL JONES

"I've got you now, PHYLLIS GILES." them in a row on the table. There were seven in all.

"Looks like a cake sale," he grinned somewhat anxiously. "I hope none of the chaps happen in. They'll think I'm all off if they see this layout; but, by George, I'll find her if it takes the rest of my life!"

He walked around the table, survey- ing its toothsome burden with a crit- ical eye. Of all the cakes he decided that his last purchase was the hand- somest, the lightest and the most de- liciously fragrant.

"Now for a taste," he said, plunging a silver knife in the first one. The slice was clean and yellow and full of currants. Billy wrinkled his nose dis- dainfully and laid down the slice.

"Phyllis never made that one," he commented. "Her cakes always have raisins in. Now for the next one!"

One after another he tried the dif- ferent cakes, sniffing, tasting, exam- ining and shaking his head dubiously after each operation.

At last he came to his latest pur- chase, the Valentine cake, and if one watched him closely they might have observed that his cheeks paled and his firm lips were compressed into straight colorless lines. Suddenly he groaned and laid down the knife.

"If this one shouldn't be hers!" he muttered desperately, and then, with an upward fling of his handsome head, he plunged the knife into the cake near its edge, careful not to disturb the de- corations that adorned the top. He drew out a piece, yellow and rich and crumbly, full of great raisins and tiny flecks of spice.

With the air of one participating in some great ceremony Billy Delwin ate the cake slowly, enjoying to the full its elusive flavor. When he had dis- posed of it he laid down the knife and sat down in a big leather covered chair, the color flooding his tanned cheeks.

"I've found her! I've found her!" he cried exultantly. "Nobody in the world ever baked that cake except Phyllis Giles! She made one last year for her Valentine party—same size, same flavor, same decoration—and you can't fool me, sir!"

He turned the cake slowly around and viewed it from all sides. "Her hands made it, she touched it, and she placed all those little hard red hearts all at the edge, and not one of those is harder than Phyllis'!"

"Well, what one is that?" questioned the great statesman in his deep and powerful voice.

In the Wrong Church.

A Cleveland man recently told this story of the Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, fa- mous New York divine of a generation ago:

A wealthy man came to him and said he wanted to rent one of the most expensive pews in the church. "But," he added, "I'll only take it on one con- dition—you mustn't expect me to do any church work."

The eminent rector smiled. "My friend," he replied, "you have come to the wrong church. You belong four blocks down the street, in the Church of the Heavenly Rest." — Cleveland Lender.

REATEST BATTLE PAINTING OF ALL TIMES
PHILIPPOTEAUX MASTERPIECE

"Battle of Gettysburg"

ON PERMANENT EXHIBITION AT HAHNE & CO'S

The people of New Jersey are only awakening to a realization of the fact that they have in the city of Newark one of the world's greatest treasures of art—one of the most stupendous, and magnificent, and thrilling paintings ever put on canvas, depicting with wonderful fidelity to fact the memorable scenes of the Battle of Gettysburg in the great three-day battle, the like of which the world has never known.

This enormous canvas, 352 feet long, was originally painted by the famous French artist, Paul Philippoteaux, for the Boston Cyclorama, where it was shown for a number of years and afterwards packed away. This painting has never been exhibited in any other city than Boston. True, imitations of it by artists of lesser note, their ideas largely copied from Philippoteaux, were exhibited in other cities; but this is the original Gettysburg by the most famous painter of battle pictures who ever lived.

The picture was unearthed a couple of years ago and negotiations have been going on for many months between the owners of the picture and our representatives, culminating in the bringing of the picture to Newark, where it may be seen, free of cost, by every one.

It is a noteworthy fact that the Hahne & Co. Store, where the picture is exhibited, is one of the few in America adapted to such exhibitions; in fact, there is hardly an art gallery or museum anywhere that could accommodate such an enormous painting. Thus Newark may count itself immensely fortunate in having such an exhibition placed, in having a business concern with the courage and enterprise essential to the purchasing outright of so great a picture and placing it on exhibition without cost to the people. The painting is practically priceless. The canvas alone cost $2,500 originally. The contract price for the painting was $50,000. And now that the artist who went over the ground, who had all the assistance of the United States Government officials and of the officers engaged in the battle, who has painted a geographically perfect representation of the Battle of Gettysburg has passed away, it is likely to be made again.

Those already seen this painting here and veterans of the Civil War who ought to recognize on the picture points to them in the days of the terrible South.

Those having opera or field glasses are advised to bring them when they come to see the painting, as its beauty and realism is enhanced a hundredfold when seen through the glasses. Glasses will be loaned those desiring them upon application to the Upholstery Office on the Third Floor.

The London Debut of Edmund Kean, the Great Tragedian.

A SUCCESS AND ITS PATHOS.

The Tearful Meeting With His Wife After His Triumph on the Boards. Snubbing a Noble Lord—An English Critic on Edwin Forrest's Macbeth.

Edmund Kean's London debut was made in 1814, at a time when his financial affairs were at a very low ebb. With his wife and one child he was lodging in an attic. His reception as Shylock was most encouraging and flattering. In an almost frenzied ecstasy he rushed through the wet to his humble lodging, sprang up the stairs and threw open the door. His wife ran to meet him. No words were required—his radiant countenance told all—and they mingled together the first tears of true happiness they had as yet experienced. He told her of his proud achievement and in a burst of exultation exclaimed, "Marry, you shall ride in your carriage, and Charley, my boy"—taking the child from the cradle and kissing him—"you shall go to Eton and"—a sad reminiscence crossed his mind. His joy was overshadowed and he murmured in broken accents, "Oh, that Howard (his dead child) had lived to see it—but he is better where he is."

On the night of Edmund's first appearance as Richard a group of idle actors in the greenroom were discussing his merits in anything but a liberal spirit. "I understand," said one, with an elaborate sneer, "that he is an admirable barlequin." Bannister entered at that moment, overheard the remark and retorted, "I am certain of that, for he has jumped over all our heads."

It seems that the great tragedian, Edmund Kean, and Charles Inceledon, the popular singer, were one day walking in Bond street when they met Lord Essex, who bowed coldly to Kean, though they were on terms of intimate friendship.

The next day Kean found a note at the theater from my lord desiring him to call at his house. When there the nobleman said to the tragedian, "My dear Kean, you will pardon me. You know how greatly I admire your genius, but I was surprised yesterday to see you in company of that singing man, Inceledon." "My lord," said Kean with flashing eye, "Pray don't excite yourself, now, my dear Kean." Interrupted my lord, "but the respect, I may say reverence, I have for your wonderful genius prompts me to speak thus." "Lord Essex," cried Kean, drawing himself up and casting a withering glance at his noble patron, "twelve years ago my family were in want of bread and Charles Inceledon, my friend, supplied the means to procure it, and when Edmund Kean forgets his friends may God forget him." And from that hour the two men never exchanged courtesies.

Kean, from early manhood, had an internal complaint, for which he had always been his own physician and prescribed that sovereign balm called "brandy," from which it generally found relief, and at least it always proved an alternative. While traveling from London to Belfast, on quitting the coach at Donegal Arms, he missed his sovereign balm and he called out to the Irish waiter to search the lately abdicated vebicular conveyance as he had left his pocket pistol behind. "The devil a pistol can I find," cried the searching Hibernian, "or anything else but this," producing the leather covered charm. "Why, that's it, you blockhead," exclaimed Kean, snuffing the action to the word and tasting to be convinced. Pat scented the cordial and, laughing, cried: "Do you call that a pistol, sir? Why, then, faith, though I'm a peaceable man, I wouldn't mind standing a shot or two of that pistol myself."

When Edwin Forrest went to London he was received in anything but a cordial way. One critic wrote:

"Our old friend Mr. Forrest afforded great amusement to the public by his performance of Macbeth on Friday at the Princess. Indeed, our best comic actors do not often excite so great a quantity of mirth. The change from an inaudible murmur to a thunder of sound was enormous, but the grand feature was the combat in which he stood scraping his sword against that of Macduff. We were at a loss to know what this gesture meant until an enlightened critic in the gallery shouted out, 'That's right, sharpen it!'"

A good story is being told at the expense of a certain local theater whose "Standing Room Only" notice is no longer needed. One night after the curtain was rung up a small boy was discovered in front of the box office. The manager of the theater went to the lad and kindly asked him what the trouble was. "I want my money back," sobbed the boy in answer to the query. In surprise the manager asked his reason for such a request. "Because—because I'm afraid to sit up in the gallery all alone!" he wailed. His money was returned.—Franklin Barry in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Mere Trifle.

The young lady had won the philopena. "Well," said the gentleman who had lost, "I've lost: what shall I give you?" "Your photograph, nothing but your photograph," she answered. "In a pretty little gold mounting set in a gold bracelet, with a sprinkling of emeralds and just one solitaire—one only, mind you—no more!"

Depest law of human

Milady's Mirror

The average woman has neither the time nor inclination to make an elaborate bedtime toilet, but there are essentials which no woman can afford to neglect not only for present use, but to checkmate Father Time and to make us physically attractive members of society.

A prime factor in encouraging and retaining health and good looks is body cleanliness.

The amount of soil accumulated in a single day when our work takes us into the big cities is remarkable, as evinced by a single experience.

It is sometimes a source of annoyance to perform little duties for ourselves when we are tired, and yet a woman is amply repaid by her fresh, well groomed appearance in the morning. Furthermore, it is a great saving of time if she must needs be off early the next day and cannot indulge in a leisurely morning toilet.

The daily bath is advised to all women who are physically strong enough to stand it. Not more than from five to ten minutes should be consumed in the bath. A quick sponge off in salt water or a shower in cold water makes a splendid tonic and bracer. One or two warm baths at night will keep one reasonably clean at least.

Where a warm bath is found too stimulating at night to prevent sleep it should then be taken in the morning or late afternoon, but in each case a cold sponge off should be taken to close the pores and prevent taking cold.

Where a body bath is not taken at night a warm foot bath will be found very grateful to tired and painful feet. It is very restful and draws the blood from the brain, inducing sleep.

Before starting the night toilet remove all binding clothing and slip on a long kimono and bedroom slippers, those without heels, as Turkish ones or sandals.

Relax as much as possible, especially when inclined to be nervous, for when the tension is taken off the nerves these little preliminaries tend to make one quite sleepy.

Several details of the toilet may be performed at the same time. For example, remove all pins from the hair and when false pieces are worn brush and comb these out and lay before an open window to thoroughly air. Shake out the hair thoroughly and spread it over the shoulders to ventilate and rest the roots.

When a foot bath is desired it is a good plan to take it at this point, so that two things may progress at the same time. When one is not hurried five minutes' relaxation may be indulged in. Be sure you sit in your most comfortable rocker while the night toilet is progressing.

Look to the Ways of Your Mouth.

If you haven't given your mouth much thought study it a bit. See if the expression of it has all the charm it might have. Try to catch yourself off guard some time in your mirror. You may be surprised to find your lips framed in cold, peevish or discontented lines. Keep them in good condition, red and glowing with health and not roughened and chapped with wind and cold.

See to it that your teeth are in as good condition as a dentist or dental surgery can put them. Don't pout, don't screw your mouth to one side when talking, don't purse up the lips, don't close them so tight that they positively look savage.

Cultivate a calm, pleasant, cheerful expression without a perpetual smile.

Add to your charm and power of pleasing in every legitimate way you can, for you are thus adding to your pleasures, your happiness and your success in life.

Beautiful Hands.

Mrs. Jamieson, the well known authoress, was a great admirer of beautiful hands and thus expressed herself on her favorite "point" in a woman.

"A white hand," she wrote, "is a very desirable ornament, and a hand can never be white unless it be kept clean, nor is this all, for if a young lady excels her companions in this respect she must keep her hands in constant motion, which will cause the blood to circulate freely and have a wonderful effect. The motion recommended is working at her needle, brightening her house and making herself as useful as possible in the performance of all domestic duties."

Hair Hint.

If a woman is troubled with a hideous growth of superfluous hair and if electrolysis is impossible for her the tweezers are safer than depilatories, for the reason that these powders remove the soft, downy growth as well as the long hair and the undeveloped hairs come back in the form of bristles. No woman should go about burdened with such an affliction. The cure is certain when the electric needle is used. Flat moles be taken away by applying acetic acid. Protect the white skin about the mouth by anointing with vanishing cream.

SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1911.

Along the official positions of this city the one of dog warden remains unfilled. The committee on licenses will search for a good man to fill this position, but it is doubtful if the applicants will be numerous.

The charges preferred against the matron of Tompkin's Home were well ventilated at the public hearing on Thursday night. From the testimony it would seem that the matron had played the joker for the overseer of the poor, as in every instance where she had asked cash of the grocers it was under his instruction and so admitted by him. It was also evident that no dishonesty was intended by the overseer, as it was explained his money was devoted to the care of the inmates. It was also stated that should there be a deception in the food that should not have existed, the expense should be borne by the overseer, not the council. The overseer made account out of his own name. This is one of the things that caused the matron to be in trouble. So far as feeding the inmates is concerned, there should be no cause for complaint, as good food ought to be served to them. The expense of the food should not be kept out of the account of the inmates. The money given was such as to enable the committee that very poor food was given the inmates, but the matron emphatically denied the statements. Just what decision the committee on poor will take, may be known at next meeting of the Council.

The city is overrun with dogs who appear from their emaciated condition to have no homes. They prowl the streets at all hours of the day and night, upsetting garbage cans in their effort to obtain sustenance and frightening timid people they pass. The matter has been taken up by the Council, and if the dogs can humanely be gotten rid of the community will be benefited.

HOME NEEDED FOR CHILDREN.

The Citizen has received the following letter from the New Jersey Children's Home Society, which explains itself:

Trenton, N. J. Feb. 22, 1911.

My Dear Sir:

We are in great need of homes in Christian families for little children, particularly for little boys under ten years of age. Would you be willing to give notice of this great need to your constituents?

These little children come from every part of New Jersey. When received at Trenton, they are subjected to thorough examination, physical defects, where possible, are remedied. We seek to have them transferred to private families just as soon as suitable homes can be found.

We do not ask legal adoption, but that the child be treated just as one of the family so long as with the family. The child may be returned to the Society at any time. None of them are indentured.

A personal call is made upon the family applying for the child by one of the trained agents. This brings about a proper adjustment of child to family. Many of these little ones have gone into the homes of our best citizens and have brought there a great blessing. We believe that every child ought to have individual care; each of them have an infinite longing for a mother's love, and that is the reason why we make this appeal.

The Society is also providing temporarily for the care of little children who are to be restored to their own parents. We are finding some families who cannot receive a child permanently, who are willing to aid by receiving a little one for a few weeks or a few months. Perhaps some of your readers would be willing to aid in this manner.

We greatly appreciate the manner in which the editors of the State have been willing to co-operate with us in bringing something of sunshine into the darkened lives of these children.

Yours truly,
JAMES A. TRENTON

F. W. STITES PLEASED.
Lawyer F. W. Stites, of Philadelphia, Pa., gave a rare treat to his hearers at the P. R. Y. M. C. A. last Sunday afternoon in the recital of the "Pied-piper," as an illustration on the subject of love to God and our fellow men and the square deal to all. Mr. Stites proved to be a man of education and a fluent talker, being also a sweet singer he was altogether above and beyond all that was expected of a busy professional man like Mr. Stites.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Nellie Schanck, wife of Frederick F. Schock, of Spring Lake, died at her home last Saturday from diabetes, hastened by an attack of the grip. Mrs. Schock had suffered from diabetes for a year or more past. On Monday of last week she entertained the Whist Club of Spring Lake and was no worse than she had been for several months. She subsequently caught a cold, which developed into the grip, which was the immediate cause of death. She was 35 years old.

Mrs. Schock is survived by her husband, who is cashier of the First National Bank of Spring Lake, and two sons—Frederick and John. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Schanck of near Holmdel, four sisters and one brother also survive her. They are Mrs. W. L. Brown, Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mrs. Palmer Armstrong, Miss Florence Schanck and John Schanck.

Mr. and Mrs. Schock were married ten years ago on Tuesday, the day of her funeral, Rev. Garret Wyckoff of Red Bank, but then at Holmdel, performing the ceremony. Mr. Wyckoff officiated at the funeral services, which were held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Schock and were largely attended. Among those present were Mrs. R. F. Schock, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Schock, Charles Schock, C. H. Wardell, W. H. Tuttle and Mrs. M. C. B. Heyer of Matawan. Interment was at Manasquan.—Matawan Journal.

Do You Want to Get Slender?

A food specialist said of dieting: "The simplest, easiest and most efficacious diet to bring down the weight is the one dish diet. At no meal, that is, should more than one dish be eaten. The dish may be what you will—Irish stew, macaroni and cheese, roast beef, vegetable soup, bacon and eggs—but no courses are to precede or follow it. You may eat as much as you choose of the dish, and yet, for all that, you will lose weight steadily. It's the variety of dishes—the oysters, soup, fish, turkey, mince pie, ice cream—it's the variety of dishes, creating an artificial appetite when the body has really had all it requires, that causes corpulence. If we confine ourselves to one dish we know when we've had enough—we don't know otherwise—and the result is that we soon drop down to the slimmest natural to children, animals and temperate and healthy men and women."—Kansas City Star.

A Miracle Under Orders.

In "The Glory of the Shin World," translated from a Persian manuscript, is a story that will interest Christian Scientists:

"Nadir, builder of the golden porch of Nadir, in the sacred city of Meshed, was a world conqueror and a lord of perception, albeit cruel. Of his power of perception they relate that one day when he entered the sacred shrine he saw a blind man invoking the aid of the Imam, and upon inquiry he learned that he had been there for several months. The great monarch asked him why his faith was so weak that his sight had not been restored and swore that if on his return he found him still blind he would cut off his head. The wretched man prayed so fervently and fixed his mind so intently on the Imam that within a few minutes his sight was restored."

Might Be in a Nice Fix.

Two men of Milwaukee were discussing the case of a person of their acquaintance whose obituary, it appears, had been printed by mistake in one of that city's newspapers. "Oh, ho!" exclaimed one of the Germans. "So dey haf brieded der funeral notice of a man who is not dead already! Vell, now, he'd be in a nice fix if he was one of dose booble vot believes everything dey sees in der papers."—Harper's Magazine.

Sorry He Asked.

"Have you any special terms for automobilists?" asked the man in bear-skin and goggles. "Waal, yes," responded the old toll-gate keeper, whose gate had been broken down by speeding machines. "Sometimes I call them deadbeats, and sometimes I call them blamed rascals. Anything else you want to know, mister?"—Chicago News.

Parsimony and Economy.

"Papa," said a child, "what is the difference between parsimony and economy?" "I will explain the difference by an example," the father replied. "If I cut down my own expenses that is economy, but if I cut down your mother's then it is parsimony."

His Suggestion.

The great road builder had his mind on his work that morning, as the following dialogue between him and his wife will show: "How do I look?" "Well."

A Red Letter Day For Post 118 G. A. R.

Mr. Editor:

For some time the Grand Army men of South Amboy have labored under discouragements. The Great Reaper has been and is, abroad in the land, and while the young men die, the old and infirm certainly must. Last October two of our little band were taken in one day; and shortly after another moved into another State, and we gave him a transfer, thus bringing our Post membership to less than twenty.

A number of our comrades are still in the ranks of the workers, and when their work is done for the day, they feel little like walking out in the night to attend Post meeting—and only occasionally do we see their faces in the Post room. Still further—several of our very best comrades are living too far away to attend Post meetings—two of them are past presiding officers of the Post. One lives at Hoboken, one in Bradley Beach, one at Long Branch and another at Keyport, do you wonder, Mr. Editor, if sometimes we feel a little sad as we run our eyes over "The thin blue line" in the Post room? But we have held the fort, and when three weeks ago one of our most prominent citizens—the former surgeon of the gallant old 14th N. J., in fact—gave us his name, we were so elated that (to put it in the language of the young lady with her first beau) we hardly knew how to act. We notified all our comrades, sent invitations to Post 67 of New Brunswick, Post 43 of Perth Amboy, and Post 79 of South River, and awaited Monday evening, March 6, with what patience we could.

Snow, snow, beautiful snow, and now falling fast as it could was the vision that greeted our eyes Monday morning; but as the hours wore on it ceased to fall, the weather got warmer and the snow melted; but it was sloppily walking and we feared that many of the comrades would not be present. We went to the Post room very anxious, but when a splendid delegation from Post 43 came trooping in we felt the day was saved for us.

Commander Stillwell opened the Post promptly on time and our usual course of business was quickly run through with, when he called Comrade Garretson to the chair and surrendered the gavel to him, to give him the honor of receiving into the ranks of the G. A. R. the former surgeon, Dr. Ambrose Treganowan. This was soon accomplished, and we had just called upon him for speech when Comrade Ward hastened to the door to answer a summons and announced Past Department Commander Lawrence and Commander De Hart of Post 67 of New Brunswick. Well! The greeting those two comrades got would have warmed the heart of a citizen of the North pole.

The feast of reason and the flow of Soul held the floor for an hour—I wish Mr. Editor, I could tell you all that was said, but that is impossible. The doctor's address was largely retrospective—he told in a humorous way of the old days when our armies marched and fought back and forth over the State of Virginia. He had a song he had just written, to the tune of "John Brown's body lies moldering in the grave," and we had to sing it—or rather we yelled it—you heard us no doubt, hence your request.

Comrade Lawrence told us of the achievements of the Grand Army as a body and what a record it is! If any organization in the world today had a reason to be proud of its work that distinction belongs to the G. A. R.

More addresses were given by Comrades Garretson, De Hart, and Lanning from Perth Amboy, and Comrade Kirby.

Then as time was flying Comrade Garretson closed the Post for what he called a "social hour." The comrades had prepared refreshments and a pleasant and enjoyable time was spent. But some of us could neither eat or drink.

The writer of this came upon three comrades—all members of the 14th N. J. and they looked for all the world like a stack of three guns. I went up to them with some refreshments but they could not see me—I spoke to them but they could not hear me—they were oblivious to what was going on around them, and I verily believe if an earthquake had come and tumbled Mr. Welsh's building in a heap of ruins they would have thought it was a continuation of a war scrap away down South in Dixie.

But all things come to an end, the hour was getting late and our comrades had to take their cars for home. We parted with the hope of having many more of such pleasant reunions in the future. Our Chaplain said to me yesterday he wished every one of the veterans in our city could have been in the Post room with us—too many of them are still outside the ranks—may the soon come when they will march with us singing a part of the G. A. R. song, "Attention, Attention, Forward March, Forward March."

LAYING BRICKS.

How Scientific Methods Raised the Standard of a Day's Work.

There are now eminent consulting engineers who are engaged by industrial heads to study their establishments from top to bottom with a view to finding by scientific study the methods of working, accounting and handling labor which will improve on the old traditional habits. Some extraordinary results have been attained. What scientific management means is admirably illustrated by the story of bricklaying, as told by an expert.

Ordinarily a brick mason makes eighteen different sets of motions in laying a single brick. He bends over, in the first place, to pick up one brick, and in lifting it he lifts ten pounds of brick and about a hundred pounds of brick mason—the upper part of his own body. In laying 1,000 bricks in a day's work he lifts 100,000 pounds of brick mason. This was an obvious waste of labor. So a common laborer was hired to put the bricks where the masons would not have to stoop for them. Another thing is that when a mason picks up a handmade brick, which is always a little thicker at one side than the other, he tosses the brick up, turning it over until his touch tells him which side is the top before he puts it in place in the wall. The cure for this was to have all the bricks piled top up before they were brought to the masons. Then, further, every one has seen the mason tap his brick several times to settle it into the mortar—more waste of time. The cure was to make the mortar thinner, so that the weight of the brick would settle it into the right position. This was scientific management, "motion study." It raised the day's work for the average brick mason from 1,000 up to 2,700 bricks a day and in individual cases to much higher figures. The mason made only six motions where he used to make eighteen.—American Review of Reviews.

WHISTLER WAS INDIGNANT.

The Idea of Buying His Pictures and Then Demanding Possession.

A certain eminent English lady, the proud possessor of a title of fairly high degree, who admired Whistler's genius to the extent of purchasing one of his pictures, never was able to obtain possession of her property. One day she drove to the studio in her victoria, Mr. Whistler went to greet her.

"Mr. Whistler," she said, "two years ago I bought one of your pictures, a beautiful thing, and I have never been able to hang it on my walls. It has been loaned to one exhibition or another. Now, today I have my carriage with me, and I would like to take it home with me. I am told it is in your possession."

"Dear lady," returned Whistler, "you ask the impossible. I will send it to you when I have it again, but it is not here. You have been misinformed." And so forth, and so forth, to the same effect, and the lady drove off without her picture.

After she had departed Whistler commenced to poke around his studio and, to the great astonishment of a friend who had been an involuntary listener to the above conversation, he brought forth a canvas.

"Here it is," he said, "She was right about one thing—it is beautiful." And it was beautiful.

"But the impudence of these people," he continued, "who think that because they pay a few paltry hundred pounds they own my pictures. Why, it merely secures them the privilege of having them in their houses now and then! The pictures are mine!"

A Medical Sherlock Holmes.

A physician was knocked down and robbed while on his way to see a patient. His pockets were rifled, and one of the articles stolen was a clinical thermometer with which he had earlier in the evening taken the temperature of a patient. He remembered the temperature registered and also that he had not shaken down the mercury before putting the thermometer in his pocket. He communicated these facts to the police. Some time afterward a thermometer registering the identical temperature was discovered in a pawnshop, and the police were enabled thereby to track the doctor's assailants and to arrest them.

The Wicked Majority.

A new gardener had been employed on a Long Island estate. This man was raking leaves off the lawn one fall day when a neighbor, passing by, inquired of him, "Where's the gardener who used to work here?"

"Dead, sir," was the reply.

"Dead?" said the astonished neighbor. Then, musing, he added, "Joined the great majority, eh?"

"Oh, sir," the gardener interrupted in a shocked voice, "I wouldn't like to say that. He was a good enough man as far as I know."

Caution.

"Shall I have this prescription filled without further consultation?" asked the patient.

"Certainly," replied the physician.

"Why not?"

"I thought maybe I'd better call in a handwriting expert."—Washington Star.

Reciprocity.

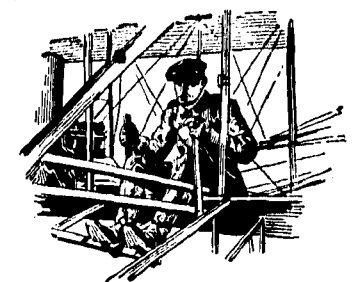

There is one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life—that word is reciprocity. What you do not wish done to yourself do not do to others.—Confucius.

A Repulsive People.

The inhabitants of Dutch New Guinea are not an attractive race. "The native woman," says Dr. Eric Marshall, the explorer, "drags up the children,
cuts the firewood, brings in the sago, works the canoes, occasionally proving her skill as a warrior in the family and village quarrels, and always coming off best with her tongue. She is usually content with a strip of bark cloth. When in mourning she dis-pens even with this. The male sex predominates, and most of the men have to be content with one wife. On the death of a man the widow, clad like Eve, but as ugly as Satan, crawls around the grave, wailing and chanting, performing weird movements with arms and body, which may or may not be meant for dancing."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Blue Tits Love the Bees.

Bees have enemies of various kinds like the rest of creation. Every one knows that many birds are insectivorous, but all insects do not form the food of any one species. The bird which has formed a taste for bees is the blue tit, and if a pair of these discover a suitable nesting place in the neighborhood of an apiary it is surprising how many bees will be carried off to satisfy them and their young.

SOUTH AMBOY

—AS AN—

INDUSTRIAL CENTER . . .

Its Location Should Appeal to Manufacturers.

Situated on Raritan Bay and at the mouth of the Raritan River, twenty-four miles from New York City, and sixty miles from Philadelphia, with one of the finest harbors in the State.

Its location should appeal to manufacturing industries, as with its four railroads and water facilities, shipments can be made economically to any part of the United States.

As a residential place South Amboy has no equal, and is very healthy. Its soil is sandy, and its land runs from the water-front with a gradual slope until it is 189 feet above sea level, thus affording excellent drainage. Home sites commanding an excellent view of the harbor can be had very low.

The Pennsylvania R. R., Central R. R. of N. J., New York & Long Branch and the Raritan River Railroad afford excellent transportation. The terminus of the Amboy Division, P. R. R. is here. The principal shipment is coal, and from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons are transported from the mines and shipped from the piers yearly.

The Jersey Central Traction Company and the Public Service
Street Railway Company operate trolley cars through the city.

Besides the railroad yards, South Amboy has a paint works, two underwear factories, cigar manufactory, Terra Cotta Works, and Army and Navy Uniform factory, all in successful operation.

South Amboy has a sanitary sewer system, and water works, and besides private corporations furnish gas and electricity for light and power.

It has a Board of Trade who stand ready to lend assistance to reliable industries to locate in the city.
