Syndicate Buys Laurence Harbor

The 300 Acre Tract to Be Developed Into Home Sites--New Cottages to Be Erected

With spring a reality and summer on its way, Laurence Harbor, Jersey's newest coast development, is beginning to take to itself the appearance of a summer colony. Formerly the estate of the late William E. Travers, famous wit and raconteur of New York City, and more recently the beautiful home of the Laurence Harbor Country Club, this piece of property consisting of 500 acres of land that slopes down to the shores of New York Bay is being cut into lots by the Laurence Harbor Heights Company. Morrissey & Walker of Keansburg are the selling agents.

Laurence Harbor is the most northern point on the Jersey shore and commands not only a view of Staten Island, but also a panoramic glimpse of the Monmouth Hills and the Orange Mountains, far away.

Laurence Harbor has a beach-front of about one and one-half miles, which is of white sand and gravel. The tract is bordered on the north by a tributary of the Cheesapeake Creek which affords fine harborage for pleasure craft in all seasons.

In purchasing the tract, for an estimated amount of $300,000, the officers of the company took over an estate that has been historic during the past century. While owned by Mr. Travers the estate became a rendezvous for America's most famous lovers of outdoor sports and there occurred many fox hunts.

In recent years the Travers mansion was occupied by the country club members. Many golf tournaments of note were held there. Harry Vardon, the nationally known golfer, on his first visit to this country, played his first match there, and acclaimed it one of the best courses and most delightful locations he had ever seen.

In developing the land the company will attempt to make it one of the most picturesque seaside cities. Plans for the erection of seventy-five cottages have been formulated and construction will begin shortly. At the present time the Harbor has electric light service, long distance telephone and an artesian water supply from deep wells and a pumping plant. The main seashore road passes through the tract and renders it accessible to automobilists. Rail service to Laurence Harbor includes the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Jersey Central Traction Company. Direct service is provided from New York, Newark, and Elizabeth.

Both railroads use the same tracks through the property but most of the trains stopping at this station are over the Central Railroad of New Jersey. From the station it is only a five minute walk to the Laurence Harbor office.

A direct route for autoists from New York is by way of Staten Island to Perth Amboy, crossing the bridge over the Raritan River to South Amboy and thence three miles to Laurence Harbor. Autoists from Newark may reach the harbor over the same route after reaching Perth Amboy.

The appeal for those who wish to commute is in the fact that New York City can be reached in fifty-five minutes; Newark in thirty-four minutes; and Elizabeth in half an hour, and that there is service that permits a man being in Newark, Elizabeth or New York in time to reach his work at 7:30 which is a fact not so of any other shore resort. Several other morning trains reach the cities before 8 a. m.

The lots, for the most part, will be divided into plots of 25x100 feet and will be placed on sale about April 1st at prices ranging from $75 to $500 for shore front lots and sold on easy terms as will be the bungalows.

The officers of the Laurence Harbor Company are: President, George Hanse Conover, of Keyport, who is president of the Conover Lumber Company; vice-president, George M. Patterson of Red Bank; who is a director of the Second National Bank of Red Bank; secretary and treasurer, Samuel D. Walker of Keansburg, president of the Granville Park Company; Board of Directors, in addition to the officers are: John S. Applegate, Jr. of Red Bank and Charles W. Morrissey of Keansburg.

The sale to the Laurence Harbor Heights Company, was made from Laurence Lamb, Memphis, Tennessee, to the firm of Morrissey & Walker of Keansburg, New Jersey, representing both parties. This sale is said to be the largest in the amount of area and money involved that has ever been made in the Jersey Coast for lot developments.

Make Navigation Easy for Skippers

Congressman T. Frank Appleby has just received a communication from the Honorable George R. Putnam, Commissioner of Lighthouses, Department of Commerce, stating that when in New York recently he conferred with the district superintendent in regard to carrying out the project for improving the system of aids to navigation in Princeton Bay, Dredged Channel, Raritan Bay, Arthur Kill, South Amboy Dredged Channel and Raritan River, for which provision is made in the Department of Commerce bill now awaiting approval of the President. The Commissioner further states that he takes much pleasure in informing the Congressman that this Service will be prepared to go ahead with these improvements very promptly after the funds become available on July 1st, and it is hoped that the improved markings of the channels will for the most part be available for the benefit of shipping within about two months after that time.

The funds referred to is the item for $108,000 which Congressman Appleby had inserted in the Department of Commerce Appropriation Bill for the next fiscal year which has just been passed by Congress. The installation of these additional aids to navigation will enable vessel owners to operate their vessels with safety during the full twenty-four hours of the day, and with these additional aids there will undoubtedly be an increase in transportation facilities which should bring an influx of industry to the banks of these rivers and bays.

THIEVES MAKE GOOD HAUL

Thieves entered the A. & P. store on Broadway Thursday night and secured about $200 in cash and a lot of checks.

FUNERAL OF MRS. MARY M. TICE

The funeral of Mrs. Mary M. Tice was held Monday afternoon at two o'clock from the home of her daughter, Mrs. James A. Lettis, in Main street.

At one thirty o'clock, the Isthmian Council, Daughters of Pocahontas and Friendship Council, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, of which Mrs. Tice had long been a member, held their services. On account of ill health, Rev. George W. Abel was unable to take charge of the services, the Rev. William H. Bowen, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church taking charge, his sermon being of the most consoling and heart soothing order. The Methodist Episcopal choir rendered two of Mrs. Tice's favorite hymns, they being: "Softly and Tenderly Jesus be Calling" and "We'll Never Say Good-bye in Heaven."

Mrs. Tice on account of her good Christian character and cheerfulness of personality was loved by a wide circle of friends and relatives, and her death has caused sorrow to come to many a heart, as the chain of love and happiness, of which she was a link, has been broken.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. A. E. Conover, of Trenton; Harvey Bloodgood and Henry Bennett, of Red Bank; Daniel Gaub, of Matawan; Henry A. Nilson, and Thomas Kvist of this city; all being relatives of the deceased. Interment was made in Christ Church cemetery. E. S. Mason & Son took charge of the funeral.

SPRING DANCE

Much interest is being shown in the elaborate plans made by the Catholic Daughters of America for their spring dance which is to be held Easter Monday night at Saint Mary's Hall.

The dance is in charge of a very active committee, which is subdivided into the following: Reception, decoration, refreshment and music committees.

The committee has been fortunate in securing very excellent music to be furnished by the Matuchen Four. Each ticket admits a couple and may be secured from any member of the court.

The new Duchess of Leinster is the first musical comedy actress to become a duchess.

"Dads" to Get in With Legion Boys

"Daddies" of the South Amboy boys who served with the colors in the World War are now to have their inning. Next Thursday night all fathers of ex-service men are requested to meet with the Legion boys at the clubhouse. There will be a "get-together" meeting, to be followed by a social hour, and it is expected that the fathers who attend will form the nucleus of an organization that will well be worthy of the name of the Post with which it is affiliated.

During the war none worked harder to keep the "grub" and ammunition going over to the boys in the lines than the fathers of the boys who served, and none were prouder of those boys than the good old "dads," who followed the newspapers word by word and muttered the fervent prayer that Tom, Dick, or Harry would "give 'em hell."

The boys of the Legion are just as proud of their fathers as the fathers have been of them, and they want the Daddies to get together and form a club--a regular "he man's" organization. The use of the club house will be given them, and there will be a good time in store for all who join the new club.

Next Thursday evening every fellow is asked to bring his father to the meeting and social. A special committee consisting of Leo Coakley, Frank Disbrow, Harold Hoffman, and George Gundrum, Jr., has been named to assist in the formation of this club. It is hoped that a lot of the men will come out to the first meeting and get the proposition under way.

There'll be "smokes," cuspidors, n'everything, and boys, the Legion members and their daddies are bound to have a good time.

Stork Flying by Night Now.

About midnight Wednesday evening the stork visited this city, and left a bouncing baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stephenson on Second street. "Papa" Stephenson is now carrying a smile that "won't come off."

FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

On complaint of R. P. Mason, a driver of a Perth Amboy bus was arraigned before Police Justice Forgotson on Monday evening, charged with reckless driving. The driver, coming down Bordentown avenue, crossed between a funeral procession at Pine avenue, and had it not been for the alertness of a driver on the car owned by John Sulliff there would have been a collision. After hearing evidence Justice Forgotson fined the driver of the bus $5.00 and costs, and was given a reprimand not to attempt the same stunt again, or a severer penalty will be imposed.

"NO MEN WANTED"

The Willing Workers of the M. E. Church will hold an entertainment in the church on Thursday evening, April 6, commencing at 8 o'clock. The title of the play will be "No Men Wanted," and abounds in wit and humor. These young people have been working hard for some time to present this play, and now have everything in readiness to please the people, and the play will slide along as smoothly as a ship on the greased ways. Don't fail to attend. Admission is 25c, children 15c. Tickets now on sale.

O'Leary Has Many Engagements

Sturdy O'Leary has been signed by his manager to take part in three fights this month. On Monday April 3rd, O'Leary will meet Eddie Hart of Newark at Westfield. There will be a bus leave Mulrain's Lunch at 6:30 p. m., direct to the fight. Call South Amboy 235 for reservations on the bus, as only a limited number can be taken. On April 20 O'Leary fights Johnny Moon of Chrome at the Firemen's smoker to be held at Coughlin's Hall, Carteret, and some good man on April 26th at South Amboy. Kid Coughlin, of South River, who is managed by McGuire, will also fight at Carteret on the 20th and at South Amboy on 26th.

Will Condemn Land For Bridge Approach

Highway Commissioners Claim Price Asked is Too High for Perth Amboy Approach to New State Bridge.

The State Highway Commission at its meeting held in Trenton on Tuesday decided to proceed to complete the negotiations for the purchase by the State of all properties at the two approaches to the Amboy bridge over the Raritan River, regarding which there is no dispute between the road officials and the owners as to price. In the cases of disputes it was decided to launch condemnation proceedings at once to acquire the desired properties. They are but a few instances of this kind.

One of those that came up at the meeting Tuesday was the question of prices fixed by the Donnell Lumber Company for its three parcels which the commission desires for the bridge approaches and sites.

For these properties the company wants respectively $175,000 and $200,000 or the alternate proposition of $235,000. Chairman Burton stated that he felt these figures were too high and this was concurred in by the other members of the commission. It is expected that steps will be taken now to condemn the necessary land owned by this company.

The commission decided to have a right of way of 110 feet on the north or Perth Amboy approach to the bridge. The roadway will be fifty feet wide and there will be a thirty foot strip on each side of the road. This extra ground will be owned by the State to prevent the erection of any buildings near enough to the bridge itself to create a fire hazard which might wreck the bridge in event of a conflagration.

Jacob L. Hagin of Elizabeth was appointed superintendent of equipment in the highway department at the salary fixed for this position by the Civil Service Commission, $400 a month. Hagin held this position temporarily some months ago.

For the purpose of relieving traffic on Route 1, the State Commission decided to appropriate $20,000 out of the funds, which it will have available at the start of the next fiscal year, for the purpose of reconstructing Elmore avenue in the city of Elizabeth. The new fiscal year of the State starts July 1 next, at which time the money will be available.

The commission also granted the application of the Atlantic county freeholders for payment of the reimbursements funds due that county for the construction of the Absecon or Perth Amboy approach to the Smithville section of Route 4.

Joel Parker Council, No. 69, J. O. U. A. M., and Camp 36, P. O. S. of A., attended in a body, and delegations were present from the Knights of Pythias and Foresters of America. The burial ritual of the J. O. U. A. M. was read at the grave by Lenwood Van Cleat and M. E. Magee. Interment was made in Christ Church cemetery. There were many beautiful floral pieces as tributes of love. The pall bearers were Messrs. Richard Neiltopp, Sr., Walter Smith, Disbrow Johnson, James Briggs, Thomas Howley and Vincent Yanas. E. S. Mason & Son were funeral directors.

GRAIN ELEVATOR IS BURNED

A fire shortly before 2 o'clock Tuesday morning at Spotswood destroyed the grain elevator of the Spotswood Grain Company and several small buildings of the plant. The damage is estimated at $30,000. There was an insurance of $25,000.

A lack of water and fire hose at the start of the blaze was responsible for the great headway of the flames before help came from the Jamesburg motor fire apparatus. The local fire company had just acquired a motor apparatus which had not as yet been equipped with hose.

When the Jamesburg fire engine arrived enough hose was loaned to the local company to permit the use of its engine. The burned elevator was a two-story wooden structure.

FELL INTO SEWER BASIN.

In moving back to let a passenger get off a bus at corner of Broadway and John street about 10 o'clock Saturday evening, William J. Boyce of Prospect street, stepped into the storm sewer basin and was quite badly bruised. Friends with him helped him out of the basin. Mr. Boyce was downtown on an errand and intended to take the bus home. He is still unable to attend to his usual work. Protection should be provided at this basin before others get hurt.

DAVID FURMAN

Funeral services for David W.
Furman, who died at his home on Richmond avenue Tuesday, March 28, 1922, were held from his late residence Saturday, conducted by Rev. William Yates Jones. Interment was at White Lawn cemetery.
Mr. Furman, who had resided in Point Pleasant for the past 42 years, was 71 years of age. He spent his entire life in the service of railroad companies, having been employed by them for more than 52
years. He came from South Amboy and became foreman at the local Round House, which position he held
for more than 42 years.

Mr. Furman was twice married.
He was born in New York city and after leaving school accepted a position at South Amboy. Six years ago he married Mrs. Jennie Mount at Freehold who is proprietress of the Furman House. He had been in failing health for the past four years, following an injury he received at his work in the local railroad yard. Four months ago he was forced to retire from active duty.
About ten days before his death he was removed to Dr. Denniston's hospital where he remained but a week.
His health was fast failing and no
hope was held out for his recovery.
He is survived by his wife, Mrs.
Jennie Furman, two sons, Leonard Furman of Point Pleasant, and Noah Furman of Jersey City, and three step-children, Willard, Henry,
and Margaret Mount.—Freehold

The Use of Glass.

Glass is not altogether a modern requisite. It was used by the Romans
in the time of Tiberius, and the ruins
of Pompeii show windows of glass used before the year 70. In medieval times wonderful effects were created with glass.

TIMELY TIPS FOR GARDENERS

One type of home gardener is still struggling with problems of soil. This is the man who after taking a look at last month's grocery bills has suddenly decided that he must have a backyard garden this year and looks with despair at the smooth block of sod which is to be converted into workable "dirt."

"You should have had that sod plowed under last fall," is all the comfort his neighbors have to offer. Is there any way of making the grass roots decay so that he can get results this summer? He can, if he will plow his ground at least 6 inches deep so that the sod and the thicker roots will not interfere with the working of the first 2 or 3 inches of soil in which the seeds are planted. In the meantime within two or three months the sod should have become decayed. An application of lime will help in the decomposition, but if the sod happens to be clover, the soil will not need lime.

Nitrate of Soda Works Like Magic

There are still some home gardeners who are wondering about nitrate of soda. Should it be used, and if so, to what extent and on what vegetables? Its value lies chiefly in its capacity for increasing plant growth and should be used on vegetables where plant growth is an important factor. As a general rule, it is used as a top dressing and spread around the soil near the stem of the plant. Not more than 200 pounds should be used to the acre, a teaspoonful being sufficient. To use for every tomato plant or plant of that character. Nitrate of soda is also good for trees, and if 2 or 3 pounds are broadcasted on the ground under the ends of the branches where the roots may get hold of it, this fertilizer will be very beneficial to the growth of the tree.

For Quick Growth, Transplant

Transplanting is not merely a system of pulling plants from the hot-beds and putting them into the cold-frames to harden. It is done with the very definite purpose of pruning the root system. When the small plants are lifted out of the seed bed the larger or lateral roots are pulled off, thus forcing the growth of the root hairs of rootlets. Since the closer you get the root system to the base of the plant, the earlier the crop will mature, transplanting is very desirable in forcing such plants as tomatoes, eggplants and peppers.

And now a word about onions, as they are a long-season crop and require from the present time until the middle of August to reach maturity. Onions belong in the richest part of your garden, and whether in sets or seeds, should be planted an inch to an inch and a half apart in the row. As the frost will not hurt them, they can go in at any time now. Plant thinly, for if too crowded, they will not grow to a good size. For a larger bulb, rely on nitrate of soda, using several applications. It is an interesting fact that mature onions grown from sets will not keep in storage as well as mature onions grown from seed.

Are Your Chicks Doing Well?

Are you having trouble with your baby chicks? Many people are this time of the year. But whether you are or not, it will pay you to come to the April meeting of the Middlesex County Poultry Association on Monday evening, April 17, in the Public Library at New Brunswick at 8 o'clock.

Dr. W. C. Thompson, head of the Poultry Department at the New Jersey Agricultural College, will be the speaker of the evening and an opportunity will be offered for any questions or problems that individuals may have to offer.

The Association is made up of both commercial poultrymen and back-yarders and aims to be of real service to the poultry interests of the county. Monthly meetings are held which are always open to the public.

Country Traditions.

In the course of making our Christmas puddings my Sussex cook said to me one day: "My father 'e never will 'ave 'is puddens made afore Christmas day, so mother, she 'aves to get up at 4 o'clock Christmas morning to make 'em." When I asked the reason for this I was told: "Father's mother never would, neither would 'er mother!"—London Post.

Recklessness is a good disease to have when cleaning the attic.

Playing with baby and making him scream with glee may be one of the pleasantest indoor sports we know of, but it can be mighty hard on baby's nerves. Yes, children do have nerves.

Tuberculosis costs more than the entire expense of the Federal Government.

Some people complain that dieting is not permanent unless you keep it up, to which, quoting Billy Sunday, health specialists reply: "Neither is a bath."

Economy is the happy art of changing waste to wealth.

"Why worry?" is a brief way of saying what has been so well expressed by Elbert Hubbard, "Accept the trivial annoyances and small misfits of life as a matter of course, for to give them attention beyond their deserts is to wear the web of your life to the warp."

Habits and health go hand in hand.

Thought is cheaper than fire. Where do you store oily rags when you are through cleaning with them? Do you ever empty hot ashes into wooden barrels? Are your curtains where they can blow into open gas jets?

Some folks make curiosity shops out of their bedrooms, others look upon them as health resorts.

Alcoholic drinks make fat people fatter and thin people thinner and all kinds of people more feeble minded. Gran'ma says, perhaps it's because people are getting more feeble minded that they keep on drinking them.

NEW JERSEY FERTILE

PATENT PAVING FIELD

Public Works, a weekly trade journal of high standard, has been compiling statistics of paving done in 1921 by more than 700 municipalities throughout the country. The most striking feature for Jerseymen in the tables so far published is that this state is credited with having put down more Warrentite-bitulithic than any other state, with the exception of Massachusetts and Texas, and even Massachusetts would have been far behind New Jersey had not a single city indulged in a regular patent paving spree. We laid more Warrentite bitulithic than even the Empire State, despite its wide expanse of territory.

No wonder that the patent paving interests were so active at Trenton during the recent session of the Legislature, when they succeeded in defeating the open specifications bill, for which the Republican party platform stood during last fall's campaign—no wonder, in view of the fact that a $40,000,000 bond issue bill for the paving of highways was scheduled to go through.

In the tables so far printed there were eight states—Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi and New Hampshire—in which not a yard of Warrentite-bitulithic was shown to have been laid last year. There were ten other states in which only one small contract each for this class of patented paving was set forth as carried out.

All of the returns are not yet in, and the figures for paving done by the states on their highway systems are not included; but when the totals are cast up it is more than probable that this state will be far in the lead as a patent pavement patron—at least in proportion to its area and road mileage. This is explainable in part by the fact that many highway building states have either barred patent pavements entirely or have placed laws on the statute books compelling open competition for all paving contracts.—Newark News.

A Friendly Tip.

A young woman tells of dining out and being seated next to the six-year-old daughter of the house. When her mother left the table for a moment the little one leaned toward their guest and said in a low, admonitory tone, "Now, do be careful, 'cause these are our very best table glasses."—Boston Transcript.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY ORPHAN'S COURT

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF Frederick C. Johnson, deceased.—On Petition for the Sale of Lands to Pay Debts.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE.
Margaret Johnson, administratrix of the estate of Frederick C. Johnson, deceased, having exhibited under oath a true account of the personal estate and debts of said intestate, whereby it appears that the personal estate of the said Frederick C. Johnson, deceased, is insufficient to pay his debts and requesting the aid of the court in the premises.

It is thereupon on this 31st day of March, 1922, ordered that all persons interested in the lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of the said Frederick C. Johnson, deceased, appear before this court at the Court House in the City of New Brunswick on the second day of June, 1922, at 10 a. m., to show cause why so much of the said lands, tenements, hereditaments and real estate of the said Frederick C. Johnson, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay his debts.

It is further ordered that this order be published in the South Amboy Citizen, one of the newspapers of this state, for six weeks at least once in each week.

We extend thanks to Hon. D. C. Chase, advisor to the Port Authority, for copy of a pamphlet entitled, "Clearing the Fog from the Port of New York," a primer on the Port Problem and the work of the Port Authority. It contains much valuable information on the Port of New York Authority, and explains the aims of this body in a clear and intelligent manner.

APPLEBY WORKING FOR DEEPER CHANNELS

Congressman T. Frank Appleby is taking great interest in the harbor hereabouts and never loses an opportunity to speak on the advantages of having a deeper channel to the coal piers of this city. He is working hard for a thirty foot channel in Raritan Bay and Staten Island Sound, so that large vessels may enter our harbor in safety. In speaking on the bill, (H. R. 10871) making appropriations for harbor improvements, Mr. Appleby said:

"The appropriation carried by this section will, I hope, take care of, in part at least, the project carried in the rivers and harbors bill recently reported to the House, which is of the greatest possible importance to the industrial development of New Jersey. It is the project known as the New York and New Jersey channels. The improvement proposed is a channel, 30 feet deep, from the main ship channel north of Sandy Hook through Raritan Bay via Seagulls Point and Arthur Kill to Kill Van Kull, with channels north and south of Shooters Island through Kill Van Kull to deep water in upper New York Bay, and a channel, 30 feet deep, to the Pennsylvania Railroad coal piers at South Amboy. Justification for the deepening of the Raritan Bay Channel is found in the present and prospective commerce of South Amboy and Perth Amboy and of Arthur Kill between Perth Amboy, Chrome, Roosevelt, and Carteret, or points above. Carteret is about the same distance from Sandy Hook by either the northerly or southerly entrance to Arthur Kill, but with the same depth in both entrances vessels from points some distance above Carteret would probably use the Raritan Bay entrance rather than the congested waters of Kill Van Kull, upper New York Bay, and the Narrows. The relief of these main channels of New York Harbor is one of the important objects to be attained by the proposed improvement of the channel through Raritan Bay. On Arthur Kill there are many important industries which find the present channel depth insufficient to accommodate the class of vessels that are most economical for their business, and a depth of 30 feet is desired in this channel and also in the channels north and south of Shooters Island. The total commerce of all three waterways under consideration amounts to approximately 40,000,000 tons a year, of which about 26,000,000 tons pertain to Arthur Kill. In view of the steady increase of commerce and the remarkable growth of the industries located along this waterway, it is believed by the Engineering Corps of the War Department that the further improvement of these channels, with a view to securing a depth of 30 feet and a width of 400 feet throughout, should be undertaken without further delay.

"The deepening of this waterway is also a matter of the greatest importance to the shipping interests of this country. It will permit many large plants located along this waterway to load and unload cargoes directly into ocean-going vessels and do away with the enormous delay and expense of lightering, as well as allowing these vessels to load directly their coal and oil fuel. About 60 per cent. of the Arthur Kill traffic is coal from the coal-dock terminals at South Amboy and Port Reading. The Standard Oil Co. now discharges its deep-draft vessels at Bayonne and pumps to its refinery at Bayway, whereas these vessels would go direct to Bayway if they had a channel 30 feet deep. The tonnage in oil at the present time, if my information is correct, is well over 2,000,000 tons annually.

"The magnitude and importance of the commerce of this waterway are well known. Gradually its banks are being occupied by industrial plants of various kinds, and it seems practically certain that traffic will continue to increase. Manufacturing and terminal sites on navigable waters adjacent to New York Harbor and vicinity are becoming scarce, and those unoccupied, with the deepening of this channel, will soon be in demand. It seems to be thoroughly understood that great industrial development on both the New York and New Jersey sides of the improved waterway is certain to follow.

"In view of the steady increase of commerce and the remarkable growth of the industries located along this waterway and its tributaries and the stimulation for a still greater industrial growth the improvement will bring it is therefore thought that ample justification is found for the expenditure of the funds necessary to provide channels of the depth and width recommended by the War Department and that the project should be adopted without delay."

BIG ADVANCES

Most of the big advances have been the work of several generations. The next advances will be the culmination of centuries, says the Dearborn Independent. The human soul has been preparing the material out of which new changes will come—preparing it by suffering, indignation, futile efforts at escape and a yearning hope for a new order in the future. Countless multitudes prepare the material for every advance, but the largest multitude of all has prepared for the next advance, which ought to abolish every thought of individual glory, and cure all childish impatience with the apparent slowness of progress. The short successes that can be gained in a brief time and without difficulty, are not worth much. The tree that lives for centuries has as much rootage underground as it has branches in the air. The work is for all who see it; its benefit is for all who share it; talk of personal glory is impossible, is out of place, in the movement for a better social order.

There doesn't seem to be any medium of exchange in Russia and money will not stand still long enough to be counted. The soviet government is therefore proposing to make the pood of barley the unit of exchange. Barley is a national staple, and just now can be used in any home. It can be used for bread, coffee or beer. A pood of barley is equal to 36 pounds in this country and might be called the new dollar of the soviet. A commission has fixed its exchange value for so many eggs, potatoes, cigarettes, hairpins, collar buttons and the like. Any gentleman contemplating a trip to Russia would do well to carry a few poods of barley in his trunk, says the Los Angeles Times. He will go farther than he would if equipped with a bale of paper rubles. It seems funny that the basis of the home brew in this country should be accepted as money in Russia. But why not?

SATURDAY, APRIL 15, 1922

ST. MARY'S PARISH NOTES

Next Sunday will be Easter Sunday, the feast of the Resurrection of Christ from the dead. The Church in her Liturgy, calls this the day that the Lord has made and invites her children to rejoice and be glad in it. If, however, we would rise with Christ, we must seek the things which are above where Christ is and not those which are upon the earth. It is from a contemplation, then, of those blessings which this day has brought that we are to derive the Easter Joy and Peace which comes alone from God and which the world cannot give, for it cannot know them.

It is a pleasure for us to wish our good people a joyous Easter and to be able to feel that our greetings will find an echo in their hearts. With very few exceptions the Precepts of the Church, regarding the reception of the Sacraments of Penance and of Holy Eucharist, have been fulfilled. The observances of these Precepts are tests of practical Catholicity and it is a great satisfaction in making our annual report to the Right Reverend Bishop to be able to answer the question, "How many have made their Easter Duty?" with "Nearly All."

Our Joy receives no slight increase in being able to announce that the plans for our improvements and the erection of the wing to the school, and the new convent have been carefully inspected and fully approved by our Right Reverend Bishop. Arrangements to begin the work the week after next have been completed.

The Frank Prior Company, Engineers, Architects and Contractors, of Trenton, have been engaged to do the work at the suggestion of the Right Reverend Bishop. As far as possible, however, they will employ local mechanics and laborers and sub-contracts for plumbing, heating, electrical work, roofing and excavating will be open to local firms.

The Sisters will vacate the convent during the Easter holidays and take up their temporary residence, during construction of the new building, at 122 Broadway. The present convent building and the house on the corner of Stevens avenue are for sale to the highest bidder who will remove them immediately. They may be inspected upon previous arrangement at the Rectory.

We are looking forward to a record-breaking Easter collection and are confident that it will be, as we have requested, an offering in gold as a testimonial of gratitude to the Sisters from people who owe them so much and are anxious to give them the best in their power.

Now that Lent is over, the card parties will be held as formerly on Wednesday evenings and will continue during the months of April and May. Next Wednesday, Mrs. Walter Mullen will be in charge.

Our most sanguine expectations were surpassed when Mrs. Eugene Heston and her able committee raised through their card party the sum of $520. We congratulate them most heartily for the example of earnestness and good will that were manifested, and thank all the people who have so patiently co-operated in answering the frequent calls made upon their generosity and hope the object in view will encourage them to continue it for the next few weeks.

DRESS OF PREHISTORIC TIMES

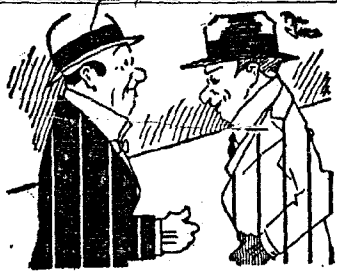

Remarkable Frocks Worn at a Recent Display Staged in the City of London.

Wearing a dress copied from a rock drawing found in Altamira, Spain, Lady Warrenden appeared at a pageant of dress in London, and the most remarkable thing about this costume was that it might have come from a fashionable modiste of today, so near to present-day fashion did it seem, according to the London Daily Graphic.

Lady Warrenden's frock was estimated to represent fashion existent any time between 20,000 and 200,000 years ago. One young lady wore a Spanish dancing frock believed to be a replica of one worn at least 200,000 B. C. Instead of painting her arms and chest, she wore brown tights under a little skirt of buff-colored cloth, covered with real plumage, and feather anklets to match.

The Daily Graphic describes the attire professing to copy that worn by Queen Beadicea (whose statue stands on Westminster bridge, close to the houses of parliament). This embraced a straight, full tunic, in royal blue woven cloth, over a platted tartan skirt, similar in character to those colors still worn by the highlanders. Round the tunic were bands of parti-colored embroidery, while a graceful wrap of dark gray cloth was slung over the shoulders and fastened with a huge circular brooch.

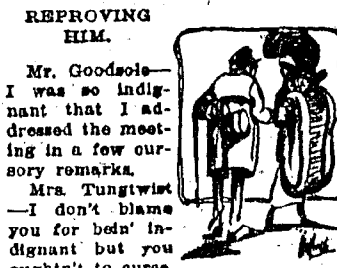

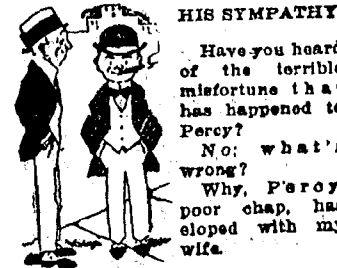

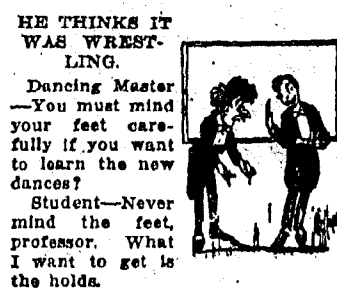

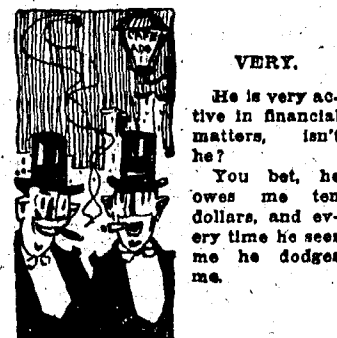

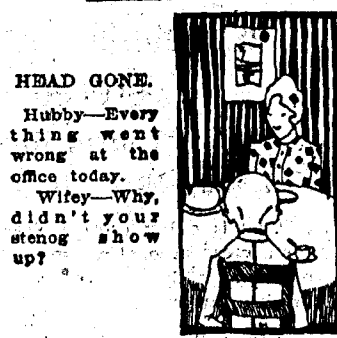

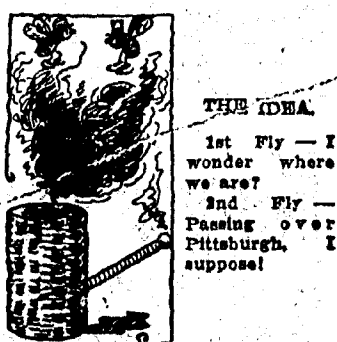

A breach of promise suit is a poor substitute for a wedding coat.

BURNT INTO HIS MEMORY.
"What time did the clock say when you got home last night?"
"I don't remember what the clock said, but I'll never forget what my wife said."

UNDERSEA HUMOR.
"Our new baby weighs two pounds."
"How did you weigh him?"
"On my scales!"

The Value of Experience

NOT infrequently the funeral director is called upon to suggest or decide the style of casket to be used.

In this as in other details of the funeral arrangement the judgment of the experienced mortician is important and oftentimes saves the family embarrassment.

The style and character of the burial receptacle should be expressive of the habits and tastes of the person for whom it is intended.

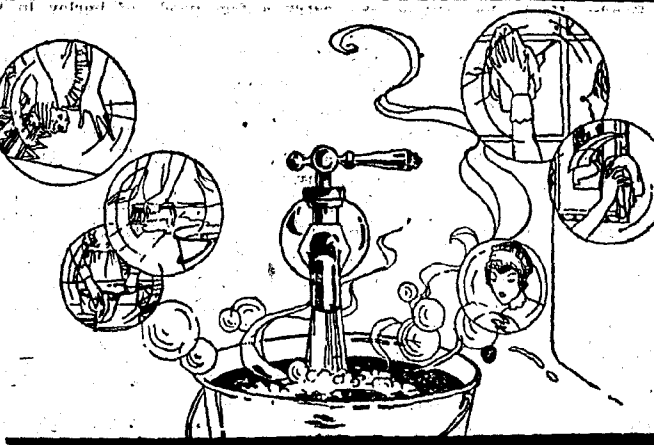

Not only the casket but the furnishings—the handles and plate and interior linings should harmonize with that environment in which the departed moved and had his being.

GET LINE ON HIS CHARACTER

New Fad Among the Girls is to Have Man Friend's Handwriting Read by Graphologist.

The latest fad of the girls is to have the handwriting of their favorite man friend read by a graphologist. Neat little packets of masculine notes, curiously enough readdressed in a feminine hand, have been received by handwriting experts, who will tell you character from a few characteristic lines. The inmost secrets of the character tendencies of the unsuspecting man upon whom you are wondering whether to center your affections or not are disclosed to you through this novel means.

"It's so exciting that I simply can't wait till I get a note from every man I meet," confessed one debutante. "One letter will do in a pinch, but most handwriting fortune tellers prefer to have several, written at long intervals apart, submitted as samples. But, goodness me! nowadays friendships don't always last that long. There are only two things dangerous to the game—one is that the man may get suspicious and stop writing, or, worst of all, he may get his own letters back from the graphologist by mistake. For this reason always be sure to remove all traces of name and address from your original letter."—Chicago Journal.

Oh, So That's It!

We are shortly promised stockings that will button up, and this recalls the old query: "Why is it that a woman always buttons her clothes up in the reverse fashion from a man?" If it were a fact that all women were left handed, and consequently found it easier to do things in this way, it would be understandable. But they are not.

A mere Male thing offers me this explanation: "Probably, it is because all women are imitative. They intend in future to oust men from the earth entirely. Wherefore they stand in front of the glass, and endeavor to create in it a reflection as much like a man as possible. But looking glasses always show things reversed, and woman, not being able to realize this, always does things backward." So that's that!—London Opinion.

Might Say "Human Nature."

When we read Thackeray's remark in his note on happiness: "And if Eve had been perfectly happy would she have listened to the tempter?" we begin to doubt his understanding of the feminine nature.—Boston Transcript.

RECALLING "GOOD OLD DAYS"

Seriously, Were They Really So Very Much Better as Most Elderly People Think?

The vanity of age is a curious thing. As we approach fifty most of us who have survived plagues, pestilence and famine, wars, panics and the other perils that flesh is heir to begin to hark back to the good old times when everything was different. Because things were different we foster the delusion that everything was better. We expect youngsters to listen with rapt attention to our reminiscences. I confess that I myself find it necessary to fight constantly a tendency to corner some hapless youngster and describe to him the old statehouse, or the Union station as it used to be in the good old times before the tracks were elevated and the mortality list lowered. Or, in a mood of condescension, I speak of that glorious year when our town figured in the schedules of the National league.

Baseball, I intimate, reached perihelion in that year of wonder. When I speak of Kelly and Clarkson and other giants of those days and their visit to our capital, or recall Jack Glasscock as the most efficient and captivating shortstop the diamond has ever known, he merely smiles sadly; and if you continue he may be driven to ask you what you think of Babe Ruth and some other luminaries of the degenerate present. There have been great men since Agamemnon, and we needn't imagine that the youth of today are not aware of the fact. Sufficient unto the day are the heroes thereof.—Harper's Magazine.

ANATOLE FRANCE AND INGRES

Great Author, as a Youth, Glad of Opportunity to Be of Service to Venerable Man.

Ingres lived 200 feet away from my home, on the Quai Voltaire. I knew him by sight. He was more than eighty years old. Age, which is a disaster for ordinary mortals, is an apotheosis for men of genius.

I was in the Theater du Chatelet on the night when "The Magic Flute" was sung for the first time by Christine Nilsson. I had an orchestra seat. Long before the curtain rose the theater was full. I saw M. Ingres coming toward me. It was he, his head like a bull, his eyes still black and piercing, his short stature, his powerful gait. It was known that he loved music. I realized that having the entree to the theater he had come in and was vainly looking for a seat. I was about to offer him mine; he did not give me the chance.

"Young man," he said, "give me your place; I am M. Ingres."

I rose, radiant. The venerable old man had done me the honor of choosing me to give up my place to M. Ingres.—Anatole France, in the Dial.

Milk Bottle Thermometer.

A North Woodward housewife, who lives in a house boasting a back porch, says she can always tell how cold it is by the length of the cone of frozen milk in the neck of the bottle she finds on her back porch every morning. By comparison with a nearby thermometer, she says, she finds that at about 20 above the cap of the bottle is barely melted and the contents frozen about two inches down. At 14 above she found the cap shoved up about two inches and the milk solid some three inches down. Seven above is good for a projection of "solid" milk some four or five inches above the bottle neck and the contents semi-solid throughout. The bottle of milk thermometer is reliable only for above-zero temperature, as lower temperatures must be judged by the curvature of the frozen neck of cream.—Detroit News.

"Maxim Gorky" a Pseudonym.

"Maxim Gorky," who was reported to be on his way to England on a visit to H. G. Wells, but is still held up by the Bolshevik authorities on the frontier, is Alexei Pyeshkof, the poet and chronicler of the pariahs and vagabonds of Russian society.

"Gorky" means "bitter." The full name, "Maxim Gorky," may, perhaps, be read to mean the "bitterest of the bitter." The pseudonym effectively symbolizes Pyeshkof's attitude toward life, for his fiction is the distilled essence of the disappointed.

He was not at first a Bolshevik, and he seems only to have joined the Bolshevik ranks under pressure. Given his choice between low diet and high office he preferred the latter, which is one, happily, that does not require him to take any active part in the perpetration of atrocities.—Living Age.

Halt's Scrapping Roosters.

Roosters that crow day and night and never seem to recognize the difference between day and night were recently described by William Almon Wolf in Colliers. Mr. Wolf visited Halt while he was serving as a sergeant in the marine corps reserve. "When it comes to cock fighting in Halt," he writes, "the rooster plays a very important role. Sunday afternoon is the great time for that, and all day Sunday you may see sporting Haitians going about with a gamecock or two under their arms. There are two rings in Port au Prince; thousands of men gather there every Sunday afternoon and bet on their favorites. Haitian cock fighting is not a very brutal affair; the birds aren't spurred. It is the custom for the owner of the losing rooster to cry quits before much damage is done."

K. G. E. TO CONDUCT A

STATE WIDE CAMPAIGN

At the annual session of the Grand Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, of the State of New Jersey, held at Trenton, September 18th, it was unanimously voted to conduct a state wide campaign for increased membership during the month of November.

The direction of the campaign was placed in the hands of the National Extension Department. The Directors of the Department, Joseph Reinhard, Jr., and J. R. Bordman will give personal supervision to the campaign. Headquarters for the drive have been opened at 56 Park Place, Newark, N. J., and an initial fund of $1,000 has been raised by the Grand Castle for the launching of the campaign.

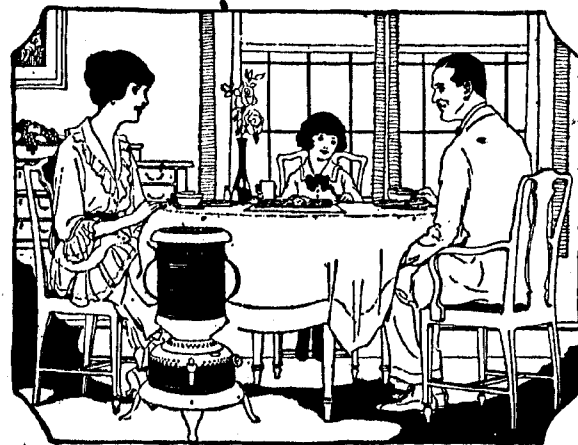

There are now 60 Castles of the Order covering the entire state with a membership of over 6,000. The slogan of the campaign is, "5,000 KNIGHTS in 30 DAYS." Initial plans for the drive are already in the hands of local Castles and much enthusiasm has been aroused.

A notable feature of the campaign will be the emphasis which will be placed on the social service program of the Order. In addition to the benevolent features common to all fraternal organizations, the Knights of the Golden Eagle will promote in every Castle a citizenship training program, educational activities of a practical character, social and recreational features, and definite attention to the business interests and employment needs of its members.

The actual work of the campaign starts October 17th with a series of meetings in every one of the eighteen districts into which the state jurisdiction of the Order has been divided. The campaign proper will begin November 1st.

The State Highway Commission is placing a four foot binder on the concrete road along the Pennsylvania right of way from Bridge street to the Pennsylvania crossing bridge.

TAYLOR-GREEN MEMORIAL

CLASS HOLDS RALLY

The Taylor-Green Memorial class of the First Baptist Church held a rally in the social rooms of the church, Thursday evening. Mrs. W. J. Edwards welcomed the large number present, giving a short history and setting forth the aim of the class. Its class president, Mrs. Edwards, urged all to join the class and enjoy the activities that were being planned for the future. The committee, headed by Mrs. R. E. Dill, had arranged a fine musical program which was enjoyed by all. After the musical program the company adjourned to the Sunday school room, where games were played and a bountiful luncheon was served.

An excellent spirit was manifested and everybody had a good time, not a single incident occurring to mar the enjoyment of the evening.

The class is eagerly awaiting the plans of the committee for the next social evening. The officers of the class are:

Teacher—Rev. George W. McCombe.

President—Mrs. W. J. Edwards.

Vice-President—Mr. John Falk.

Secretary—Miss Jennie Cole.

Treasurer—Mrs. George Buckelew.

The class meets every Sabbath morning at 10 o'clock for study and discussion. Any adult man or woman, is welcome to join.

SEASON OPENS OCTOBER 16 FOR DUCKS AND GESE

With the wild fowl season opening Monday, October 16, New Jersey gunners can anticipate a Fall and Winter of excellent sport on the bays and rivers of the state, as all reports agree that the increase in wild ducks and geese, which began with the elimination of Spring shooting under Federal laws, is still more marked this year. Large flocks of black ducks and the vanguard of other wild fowl already are making their appearance along the coast and inland streams.

Game which may be hunted during this open season includes wild ducks (except wood ducks), wild geese, coot, gallinules and Wilson or Jack snipe. Wood ducks are protected during the entire year. The wild fowl season continues to January 31.

The game laws fix the following daily bag limit on wild fowl and shore birds: twenty-five in all of ducks (except wood ducks and Elder ducks) eight geese, eight brant,
twenty-five Wilson or Jack snipe, twenty-five in all of rails (except sora) including marsh or mud hen,
coots and gallinules; twenty sora,
fifteen in all of black-bellied and golden plovers and greater or lesser yellow-legs.

Arrangements have been made by the State Fish and Game Commission whereby sportsmen can procure from State Wardens, the special woodcock hunting license required under a new law for those who would hunt woodcock before
the opening of the upland game
season or between October 1 and November 10. This special license, costing $2 in addition to the regular hunting license, may be procured also from the office of the commission at Trenton.

The game laws limit upland hunting, during the above periods, to woodcock. As there is no other excuse for carrying a gun in the fields or woods during this period,
an upland hunter without a special woodcock license makes himself
liable to arrest. A heavy penalty of $100 for each violation applies to the killing of other protected game during this period. Six woodcock is the daily bag limit a hunter
may take. Reports from numerous parts of the State indicate that early flights of the birds are on and
a prospect for excellent sport.

The French court has formally decided that Alexander Dumas pere was
for all practical purposes the author of the works that bear his name and in the writing of which Auguste
Maquet assisted as a paid collaborator.
We wish some court could now make a similar ruling that would put an end to the Shakespeare-Bacon nulsance.

As much as we believe in education,

have been out of consideration for
the lowly mule's lack of school advantages in its youth.

Mailing 200,000 Checks to Stockholders of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

200,000 CHECKS IN ONE MAILING

Payment to Telephone Stockholders Totals Millions of Dollars.

The parent company of the Bell System, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has the largest number of stockholders of any corporation in America, comments the Telephone Review, and for the recent dividend payment mailed 200,000
checks. These checks filled 50 sacks and filled the large motor truck which rolled away from the telephone headquarters at 105 Broadway on its way to the Post Office.

Millions of dollars were represented
in these checks which covered the April 1st dividend payments on American Telephone & Telegraph stock.
They went to customer and employee stockholders in every state in the Union, some to foreign countries, 80,000 went to people of the Bell System and several went to Australia on the other side of the world.

Twenty years ago the dividend
checks could be carried to the Post Office in two or three ordinary mail
pouches.

To record the individual stock holdings of a fifth of a million investors,

write the checks and mail them is a gigantic task, and they go to the Post Office by the truckload. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. may well be called America's greatest investment democracy, for it furnishes a striking example of real customer
ownership of an important public utility. Of the 200,000 stockholders
more than 185,000 own less than 100 shares each. Nearly 100,000 persons held less than 25 shares each and almost 70,000 five shares or less.

The average number of shares held ten years ago was 87. At the time of the April first payment it was 28. Over nine per cent of the stock is held in investment trusts, while more than half of the stockholders are women.

The funds provided by this large body of stockholders in all parts of the country have been used and are being used for building and extension of the telephone plant in every part of the United States, thus increasing the facilities for the users of the 13,380,000 telephones owned or connecting with the Bell system.

Building a Church in a Day.

Rome was not built in a day, but then Rome was very much behind the times! On the outskirts of Chicago
a feat that would have astonished the Romans has been performed, and it sounds a little startling even to our ears. A contract was signed on a Friday for the building of a church. The document stipulated that the church should be ready for dedication on the Sunday following. Just one day was left for the putting up of a building
which was to hold about three thousand people! At dawn on the Saturday morning the workmen started, and
at seven o'clock that evening the men were putting in windows, doors, and electric light. No floor was laid, but by midnight all else was done and the dedication services were held the following day. This feat had a parallel in Pontiac county, Que., about forty years ago.

KITTENS ALL "CAME BACK"

Man Tried to Lose Them, but Kind-hearted Woman Spoiled His Carefully Laid Plans.

A Jackson county farmer recently decided that his household possessed four nonessential cats. His children, however, did not agree with him; at least they would not consent to any fatal form of riddance. Finally a compromise was reached whereby the superfluous cats were to be banished—
taken far from home and left to look out for themselves. The children, however, insisted upon a conditional banishment. They demanded that the cats be placed where they could find a new home without too discouraging a search.

So the next time the farmer had occasion to go to Kansas City the excess cats were sacked and loaded into the family "liver." About five miles from home he observed a favorable looking house. The most favorable feature at the moment was an apparently temporary absence of human occupants. The farmer preferred to make an unostentatious presentation.

The string which bound the mouth of the sack was quickly untied. Just before the slowly moving car came opposite the house the farmer lifted the sack and, leaning over the farther
side of the car, poured the contents
of the sack out upon the highway.
Then he "stepped on the gas."

Returning home that afternoon the farmer was seized with a feeling of misgiving as he neared the scene of parting. He saw a woman signal him to stop and he could think of no
good excuse for ignoring the signal.
Simulating extreme perplexity he stopped the car. The woman approached and deposited a sack in the tonneau.

"You lost your cats this morning,
mister. I happened to be looking out the window when they tumbled from your car. They were a little wild, but we gathered them all up—four of
'em."

"Thank you," mumbled the owner of the cats as he drove on. He wondered how many grinning faces were watching him from the house.—Kansas City

A recent report of a delay of eleven years between the mailing and delivery of a letter in America provoked little more than a smile, because it was so obviously the result of a trifling mistake and the whole affair did not amount to anything in reality. Far more serious, really, is the report that a Manchester (N. H.) war veteran has just received a packet of thirty-five letters sent to him while he was in France between June and December, 1919, because this indicates a state of affairs existing during the war that was truly deplorable, and of only too frequent occurrence, says the Christian Science Monitor. Nor is the gravity of the situation in any way mitigated
by the assurance that, while the envelopes of the letters were soiled, the contents were uninjured.

"Take one coast with another," said
an old sailor, "coasts are pretty much the same. You get bad bits and easy bits, that's all." Which is just what those of us who are wise, say about life. The chief difference between people is not that they have different experiences, but that they look at those experiences differently, writes Thomas Dreier in Forbes Magazine. Some men take with laughs of joy what other men take with tears. Some men are strengthened by the same kind of adventures that kills others. We create the world in which we live by the thinking we do. Inasmuch as it is so easy, why should we not create a pleasant world for ourselves and those associated with us?

The coal that lies unmined in the ground is enough to last only 200
years, under present wasteful methods of mining. So says Percy Tetlow, director of the Ohio state department of industrial relations. The geological survey, on the other hand, says that the unmined coal reserves of America are about 5,000,000,000,000
tons or enough to last more than 8,000
years unless we begin burning coal
twice as fast as in the last five years.
The most striking characteristic about experts is that no two of them seem to agree. Somewhere there exists an "expert" who can prove almost anything.

"Who reads Dickens now?" asks an editorial writer. We can't call their names, but those who love real joy do not pass Dickens up, says the Houston Post. The Dickens reader has a circle of friends who remain faithful
through every vicissitude of life down
to the final slumber.

Men as a whole are better dressed
than women, but there is no reason for their being so. If there is anything more than anything else afflicting American women it is the inclination to overdecorate themselves. Simplicity is the test of a well-dressed
man or woman.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Hudson Theatre

You may call on Noah Webster,
You may search the tomes of fame,

You may write a line of adjectives,
Until your arm is lame.
But after all is said and done,
The line to have and hold
Is just outside the window

Where the seats are being sold.
That's the line that spells Opinion,

That's the line that tells the tale
More convincing and sincere
Than if you wrote a bale

Of dictation, phrase and piffle,
It wouldn't change a bit
The line-up at the window,
When the show's a laughing hit.

Just a trifle dashed off in a mood of exuberance after seeing George M. Cohan's production,
"So This is London!" for the 50th time at the Hudson theatre. Incidentally, the boys in the box office tell me that the line at the window never breaks and the sale
of seats eight weeks in advance
indicates capacity audiences for a long time to come.

It was a happy moment when
Mr. Cohan picked this international comedy success to occupy the Hudson theatre for the season of 1922-
23. Happy, too, was George M.'s selection of the international cast
that visualizes Arthur Goodrich's continuously laughable play, for
"So This is London!" is just that,
and if you could but see the smiling faces and listen to the words
of praise uttered by the audiences
as they leave the theatre you would perhaps forgive the writer the above "jingle" and the words that follow. But it's all the gospel truth.

"So this is London!" is the biggest, laughing hit this or any other country has known in years.

Morisco Theatre

It is no new thing for the so-called theatrical wisecracks to be wrong. In fact, it is generally admitted that there is no business in the world quite so uncertain as
that of the theatre.

Fresh proof of this is being offered weekly at the Morisco Theatre,
New York, where Avery Hopwood's
great laughing hit, "Why Men Leave Home," is playing to capacity audiences and setting the pace
for all the dramatic plays on Broadway.

"Why Men Leave Home," is produced by Wagenhals and Kemper.
They were the producers of "The Bat," undoubtedly the biggest money making play New York has ever seen. "Why Men Leave Home," as has already been noted, was written by Avery Hopwood. Mr. Hop-wood was co-author of "The Bat."

"Why Men Leave Home" is being presented at the Morisco Theatre. The same theatre housed
"The Bat."

Now theatrical sharps—showmen
who had long observed the way things went along Broadway, predicted that no play would come along in twenty years to equal the success of "The Bat." They made their prediction in good faith and with all kindly intent. But it seems they are wrong.

In the first place "Why Men Leave Home" has followed in the footsteps of its predecessor, step by step. It started off with a rush.
It played to capacity on its second night. It has played to almost exactly the same gross business on each of the first four weeks of its engagement as did the marvel play
ahead of it. Moreover, Wagenhals and Kemper, possibly bowing a bit
to superstition, will send the second company of "Why Men Leave Home" to Chicago on New Year's Eve, just as they did with their other great hit and they also have already arranged for its presentation
in London to follow right after
"The Bat" concludes its engagement at St. James' Theatre, which will probably be within the coming year, inasmuch as "The Bat"
has already been there for a year
now.

So, "Why Men Leave Home" has
repeated. It does happen after all.

RED CROSS WINNING
IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now
Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How it accepted the task revealed to it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War,
and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report.
Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid
and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectually the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better nourished citizenry.

The task of the Red Cross Public Health nurse in the 1,240 nursing services now operating throughout the country instructing their communities
in health essentials and disease prevention is demonstrating the possibilities of human betterment and the great benefits of enlightenment.

During the last year 313 new public health nursing services were established by Red Cross Chapters, and several hundred services so convincingly proved their effectiveness that they were taken over by public authorities. In order to promote this work $30,000 was allotted to provide women to prepare themselves for public nursing. The home visits made by the 1,240 nurses
aggregated nearly 1,500,000 visits to schools numbered 140,000, and in six months 1,250,000 school children were inspected by these nurses and where defects were found advised examination by physicians. In rural communities this service has made a very marked advance and has won thousands of converts to approved methods
of disease prevention.

In home hygiene and care of the sick instruction, which fits the student in methods of proper care where illness is not so serious as to require professional service, the Red Cross conducted 3,884 classes during the last year,
enrolled 2,350 instructors, 98,448 students and issued 42,658 certificates.

On June 30, 1922, nutrition service
embraced 1,199 classes, with a total of 27,523 children and 2,589 enrolled dieti-tians. Seventy-eight food selection classes graduated 733 who received Red Cross certificates. In general health activities Red Cross Chapters maintained 377 health centers, serving as many communities, provided 38,751
health lectures for large audiences everywhere, while clinics numbered over 10,000.

Red Cross Gains
Strength in All
Foreign Fields

In insular possessions of the United States and in foreign lands the American Red Cross scored heavy gains during the last year, passing the previous membership high mark of 1918
by 4,281 and advancing the figure to 153,408. The Philippines take the lead, gaining nearly 100 per cent, now having 115,917 members. In Europe
the 1921 Roll Call enrolled 11,125,
with the Constantinople Chapter reporting 605, a gain of 33 members.
China was 1,782 members, a gain of 596; the Little Virgin Islands have 1,000, while the Dominican Republic with 2,927 advanced from its previous high mark by 1,423 new members.
Haiti, organized in 1920, now has nearly 1,000 enrolled. Mexico reports 354, a gain of 327 in one year. The American Red Cross has spread its membership over some 70 foreign lands and its Junior membership outside of the United States is close to 700,000.

Red Cross Water
First Aid Makes
Life-Saving Gain

More than 325 Chapters engaged in life saving or water first aid last year
with the result that the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps has set a new high mark for enrollment and the number of qualified life savers developed. The influence of "learn to swim week" in many localities is reducing the water fatalities through instruction and the wider dissemination of resuscitation methods demonstrated by the Red Cross representatives. Excellent work has been done in teaching
a large part of the American population how to take care of itself in the water. Growing appreciation for this Red Cross Life-Saving Service is shown by the compulsory instruction
adopted in many cities for members of the police and fire departments in the proper pressure method of resuscitation.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

All good things come to him who waits, but the chap who won't advertise waits longest.

Men and men both have schemes around the corn crib. Why spend time, energy and money to raise grain for a rat cafeteria?

A farmer's ally is the chemist who stands between him and unknown

lous dealers.

Potatoes are plentiful enough this year, so there will be no excuse for

are so liable to get diseased.

The flowers that bloom in the muscle and perspiration intelligently expended in the fall.

Autumn is the season of harvest

Jersey Separates Start Right

The Jersey Separates of Brooklyn, opened their season against the Rockaway Aces, whom they defeated by the score of 48-38. The home club lead at half-time 21-10. As soon as the second period began,
the Separates' sharpshooters got going and did not stop until they held a commanding lead, running
up the score until it stood 30-21.
For the balance of the half they were content to hold their lead.
Jerry Sullivan and Gorry Schmelke
were the high scorers of the Aces,
all of their baskets being scored
from the center of the court.
Banks was high scorer for the Separates and was greatly assisted by Pete Egger's work at center and the team work of the whole club
who played in mid-season form.

Sincere Kindness of Feeling

TO THE family there is nothing so sacred as that shrine which the spirit, the personality, has gone.

There is no work of art, no piece of furniture, no
heirloom in the home so precious as that lifeless form.

By the law of association it has become endeared
to the family and to groups of neighbors and friends,
so that now they "sigh for the touch of a vanished
hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

Sympathy is a quality that should be fostered by every funeral director. Brusqueness of speech should be assiduously avoided.

To be able to show sincere kindness of feeling toward one who suffers is a most helpful and beneficent
quality of human nature.

NEW JERSEY FIRST STATE

TO AID SMYRNA REFUGEES

Newark, October 10.—President Harding's appeal for funds for the relief of the tens of thousands of Smyrna refugees finds the machinery for the campaign well set up in this state. New Jersey was the first state to come to the aid of the women and children driven out of Smyrna by the Turks. A Smyrna Emergency Relief committee was formed three weeks ago with former Judge Harry V. Osborne as state chairman. A goal of $250,000 was set and already nearly $50,000 has been contributed through the splendid co-operation of the municipalities.

The money was cabled from day to day to the relief workers at Smyrna where it was used to transport the refugees and feed them. With the President in his nationwide appeal calling upon the most prominent welfare organizations to assist it is expected that the work of raising funds in New Jersey will be speeded.

Will H. Hays, former Postmaster General, heads the national committee to raise the money. The actual relief will be administered by the Near East Relief and the American Red Cross. The following organizations are co-operating in raising the funds: Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A.; the Federal Council of Churches, the Knights of Columbus, the American Relief Administration and the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee.

"A recognized and most appealing emergency exists in the Near East," said the President in his statement. "After full conference it is unanimously agreed that the Near East Relief and the American Red Cross, two governmentally recognized agencies, are logical instrumentalities through which this relief may be extended and it is a manifest duty that they should take care of the situation. It has been decided that these two organizations will take care of the situation jointly. In a campaign of most cordial co-operation they will command facilities for most efficient ministrations."

Judge Osborne will continue as state chairman of the money-raising committee and now that he is to have the co-operation of the other organizations, mentioned in President Harding's appeal, has extended the campaign in the state. "We will stick on the job until we get the rest of that $250,000," said the state chairman.

Senator William N. Runyon is chairman of the Near East Relief, a position he has held for five years. He is deeply interested in the Smyrna situation but is taking no active part in the appeal for funds because of his political activity, not wishing to have his part in the relief work misunderstood. Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Newark, is state treasurer and Julian Zelchenko is state director of the campaign.

Word has been received that Pope Benedict XI has appropriated 550,000 lire for the Smyrna refugees. The Joint Distribution Committee of the Jewish charities has already appropriated $25,000 so that the relief work is on a non-sectarian basis.

It is of interest to New Jersey to know that the S. S. Sausages, which was used to carry the cargo of food sent by the school children of this state to the orphans of Armenia this summer, has again been chartered by the Near East Relief. It sailed this week from Philadelphia loaded with flour and clothing for the Smyrna refugees.

Horse Rode on Cowcatcher.

A tall story was brought into New Westminister, B. C., by the crew of an electric railway train, Fraser Valley branch. They said that as they waited at the "Y" for a westbound C. N. R. freight to get on to the bridge they saw a horse jump off the cowcatcher of the C. N. R. locomotive. It ran down the B. C. electric railway track toward their train, halted until the C. N. R. train went past, then turned and galloped back to the south shore; stumbled once on the ties, then regained its footing and vanished. The story goes on to say that the freight had run through a band of horses at Hope and this one had been riding on the cowcatcher for several miles.

Red-Beaked Sparrows Pets.

A dab of rouge on the beak makes all the difference in the world in the value of sparrows. Without it the bird must forage for food and be rated as a low caste resident of any feathered community. But when its bill is a high shade of vermilion, a lipstick red that won't come off, a sparrow is a house pet so desirable that 4,000 of them have just been imported.

They are Java sparrows, but they are just sparrows, in size and in twitter, usually slaty gray in color. Occasionally they are pure white.

EDWARDS SCORED FOR INCAPACITY

Frelinghuysen in Address Before Republican State Convention Tells of Pledges Kept.

REVIVE NATION'S PROSPERITY

Senatorial Candidate Recounts Administration's Services to Disabled Soldiers, Agriculture, Labor and Business—Governor's Defiance of Constitution Criticized.

Trenton, N. J.—United States Senator Frelinghuysen, recently renominated as candidate to succeed himself in the Senate, addressed the Republican State Convention here last Tuesday. Senator Frelinghuysen recounted the issues upon which President Harding had been elected and the way in which the national administration and the Republican party had kept their pledges. He denounced Governor Edwards for his political appointments, his apathy in the coal situation in the state, the road scandals and the Governor's announced hostility to the Eighteenth Amendment.

Senator Frelinghuysen said, in part: "The war actually and theoretically at an end, the President and Congress gave special attention to the veterans who had been injured or in any way disabled and to the families of those who unfortunately had been lost. To centralize the various organizations that had been established for such purposes, the Veterans' Bureau was created. The amounts appropriated already exceed two billion dollars and during the present year at least half a billion dollars will be expended."

"Two years ago we were still in a technical state of war and the rumor was persistent that owing to the rivalry in the Pacific and our possession of the Philippine Islands we would sooner or later be in actual war. The President called a Disarmament Conference. The treaty between Japan and Great Britain was brought to an end. The use of poisonous gases in warfare was prohibited, the use of submarines was limited; rivalry in the construction of warships was banished."

"Two years ago the country was in the throes of great depression. The number of unemployed was close to five millions. The taxes were such as to discourage capital. The whole public was irritated by the taxes imposed on transportation and on many articles of daily use. The annual expenditures were simply enormous. The debt was staggering. Business was at a standstill. Rates of interest were almost prohibitive. Even the Government bonds had declined below par. The Republican party has not yet been in control two years. Liberty bonds have fully recovered and some are actually above par. The discount rate the Federal Reserve bank is now but 4 1/2 per cent. Taxes on incomes below $5,000 a year have been lightened. Business has revived. Unemployment has ceased. Our country is prosperous."

"A budget was provided for and a man of great fearlessness was placed in charge. The expenditures during the first year of the Harding administration were about $1,750,000,000 less than during the last year of the Democratic administration. The debt instead of increasing, actually commenced to decrease. $1,014,000,000 has been paid off."

"The average wage in the United States for ordinary labor is $4. Prior to the war in England it was $1.05. Today in England it is $2.00. In Italy prior to the war it was $1.00. Today it is 65 cents. In Germany before the war it was $1.40. Today it is 43 cents. In other words, wages in the United States today, owing to the confusion and disorder in Europe resulting from the war, and owing particularly to the depreciation in the value of European money, range from two to ten times what they are in Europe."

"The Republican party to protect the working men, prepared a new tariff. In the interests of New Jersey I did what I could to protect our industries. I responded to the call of labor. To make certain that our labor would always be protected I introduced a measure so that at all times the difference in the cost of production here and abroad could be ascertained and protection given to home manufacture. While my ideas have not been carried out in full, still to the President has been given power in that direction. I look for the day when we will have a scientific tariff and if re-elected I will make every effort to insure one."

"Two years ago the farmers were greatly discouraged. They faced ruin. To revive the pursuit of agriculture it was absolutely necessary to make certain that the farmers would receive credit. By an act of Congress ways and means were devised whereby agriculture could receive credits. Agriculture has revived. The farmer is now prosperous, the future encouraging."

"Governor Edwards by his appointments, by his inaction in the coal crisis, by his silent contempt of the charges about the excessive cost of road building and in many other cases has shown himself indifferent to the true welfare of the public. Sworn to support the Constitution of the United States, he has openly proclaimed his hostility to the Eighteenth Amendment. As a Senator of the United States he would have to swear without mental reservations to bear true faith to the Constitution and yet he dares to seek office and to promise the public that if elected he will advocate repudiation, and nullification of part of the Constitution. He knows well that he cannot make lawful what Congress cannot make lawful and that the Constitution makes unlawful."

WRITER PICTURES DAY WITHOUT TELEPHONE SERVICE IN BIG CITY

A Humorist on the Staff of The Telephone Review, the Employees' Magazine of the New York Telephone Company, Tries to Imagine What Conditions in a Large City Would Be if There Should Occur a Telephoneless Day.

It was telephoneless day. Why or how doesn't matter. But we can assume that it was something like the meatless, wheatless, heatless kind during war days and the seatless variety reported on some street car lines.

For twenty-four hours the voice with the smile is stilled and crepe shrouds the instrument that serves as the mouthpiece of the world.

The hero of our story is Mr. Nophone, who on arising forgot that it was to be telephoneless day. Breakfast eaten, he went out and paced the curbing near his home waiting for a street car. None was in sight. He scanned the horizon for the usually ubiquitous taxi, but his psychic wireless registered the code "A. N. D." which, being translated means "Absolutely nothing doing."

As a last resort Mr. Nophone dropped into the corner drug store to call his favorite taxicabist, but was informed by the clerk that there would be no tinkle in the colobax for him. When the car finally came along it was so over-burdened by persons traveling where ordinarily they would have telephoned that Mr. Nophone could not get on. So he set out to goose-step to his office. Some time later, panting, puffing, buffeted about by the whirling, swirling, batless and countless mobs of the downtown section, he pulled up at the building which is home to him in the daytime.

Elevators Overloaded

The lobby was filled with humanity, standing on its toes and on its neighbors. The business of the day, which ordinarily would have gone over the telephone wires, placed its burden upon human messengers, who rushed frantically about trying to equal the speed of spoken words over the wire.

Men fought and women fainted; and when there was nothing else to do the crowd surged upon the telephone office to ask, "how long, Oh Manager, how long?"

It was nearly noon before Mr. Nophone tramped his way up nine flights of stairs to his office, where he found his crew short by two. They lived in the suburbs, had been overcome by the heat and could not telephone in.

"Call up an employment agency and tell them to send over a couple, quick," Mr. N. commanded to Miss Tizzafish, chief of staff. "This is telephoneless day," she said sternly, punctuating the sentence between each word.

"Well, then, send for a messenger." Little did he reck that every messenger within a radius of 30 miles was then hot-footing around town with enough engagements ahead to make "Way Down East" look like a one night failure.

Mr. Nophone's fiery thoughts were interrupted by the strain of martial music, sifting up to his windows from the din of the street below. Looking down, his eyes focused on what seemed to be a large life and drum corps, a replica of the Spirit of '76 tableau.

In reality it was a battalion of Western Union messengers. The battalion filled the streets for blocks, ready to go over the top on a cost-plus basis. Traffic cops opened the right of way and the pedestrians maintained it—anything to get the old town back into communication with itself again. Soon these modern Mercenaries were absorbed in the wild throng which clamored for a foothold on the sidewalk.

Worse and More of It

Our hero already had taken more exercise than in the past ten years, and as early afternoon approached, Mr. Nophone was both tired and hungry. It cost him thirty minutes to get out into the street and it cost him a whole lot more in temper and peace of mind to get to his lunching place. But lunch was impossible. The early birds had been busy. All that was left for Mr. Nophone was to munch a chocolate bar as he had seen men do in the street car ads. His Palm Beach Suit looked as if it had been slept in, while his usually well laundered collar hung about his shoulders in permanent waves and ripples.

By treading on 679 pairs of feet and having his clothes almost torn from him, Mr. Nophone managed to get back to his office, where he was greeted by Miss Tizzafish in a way that boded ill.

"How about that quotation on Ford for that taxicab man in Venice?" she asked ominously.

"Oh, gosh!" ejaculated Mr. Nophone, "Call him up!"

"This is telephoneless day—and besides they wanted the figures by noon. You've lost the order!"

"Dummit," grunted Mr. N.

"You said it," commented Miss T.

It was all up. Mr. N. left his office in disgust. Wormlike, he wended his weary way westward. All was more or less serene until he reached home. The corners of his wife's mouth were turned down. This also boded ill.

"Ezekiel!" When she gurgled the hidden secret of his baptismal name he knew something was about to break.

"Yes, my dear"—meekly.

"Ezekiel, did you get the theatre tickets?"

"What tickets, darling?"

And Mrs. N. proceeded to explain that four friends were coming to dinner and that they were going to the play, post eatem.

Nophone pleaded ignorance.

"Ezekiel, I tried to telephone you, and it's not my fault if it is telephoneless day. You should have known enough to get them, anyhow!"

Weeps.

Hours passed—

Night—

Bed—

As he sank into the sleep that comes only to the weary, Mr. Nophone sighed heavily into the pillow:

"Oh, bell, where is thy ring?"

'Twas the end of an imperfect day.

TELEPHONE WORKERS FOIL ROBBERS

Quick Action by Night Operators Saves Valuable Merchandise.

At 4 o'clock, one morning not so long ago, Miss Florence Fillingham, night operator of The New York Telephone Company, Wilson, N. Y., received an excited call from L. W. Smith, proprietor of a local clothing and dry goods store. He cried he had been awakened by the ringing of the burglar alarm connected with his store. Miss Fillingham immediately notified the chief operator, Mrs. Irene Crawford, and they called Deputy Sheriffs Fred A. Bigalow and Charles H. Crawford, the latter being the local telephone wire chief. These two were soon on the road, and arrived while the burglars were still at work.

The three burglars ran out of the store, firing as they came. The Deputy returned the fire, wounding one man, the other two escaping.

In commending the telephone workers in this emergency Arthur D. Dobbs, Town Clerk of Wilson, writes:

"If it had not been for the prompt and accurate action of Mrs. Crawford and Miss Fillingham, it is likely that the desperadoes would have gotten away with the goods. At the time of such a crisis this fine work on the part of your employees here, I believe, should have special recognition. I therefore take the liberty of writing you to tell you of these facts and to assure you of the excellent quality of the telephone service here."

TELEPHONE CREATES NEW PROFESSION FOR MODERN GIRL

Miss Rose Mitchell, of New York City, has created a new profession, says The Telephone Review. She is a telephone secretary to business and professional people, who for one reason or another are unable to take their own telephone messages during the day, or who wish calls made for them. To take messages and make appointments for these people, and tell them at the end of the day who has tried to get in touch with them and what appointments have been arranged—this is the job she has laid out for herself. Miss Mitchell became tired of being public stenographer in large hotels, and cast around for a more interesting field of action. One day she noticed the almost incessant ringing of the telephone of a neighbor who was out. Then and there the idea for the new profession was born. "I kept thinking what a pity it was for all that time and effort to be wasted and nerves upset by that unanswered telephone," she said. "I went to my neighbor and told her I would be very glad to take her telephone messages during the day. She accepted so eagerly that I wondered if there weren't a lot of men and women who would like to know who was calling them when they were away, and what they had to say. And I found out that there were."

"Suburban customers telephone me in the morning to arrange their appointments for the day if they are coming to town. I call up the hairdressers or the manicurist or the dentist, as the case may be, make an appointment for Mrs. Blank, and notify any of her friends she is to meet."

A pleasant business-like, feminine voice inquires what message to give Mr. X or Mrs. Blank, and when the calling party hangs up the receiver, he or she has a feeling that the message will be delivered promptly and in the way desired.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1922

The laxity with which some State Boards do business has just come to light, through the searching of the proceedings of the former State Highway commission. It now appears that the commission spent nearly $75,000 on property to which the State had not acquired title, nor did they have even a scratch of a pen to show that this property owned by the Pennsylvania railroad would ever become the State's property. It is almost unbelievable that such a state of affairs should exist with such a prominent body as the State Highway commission. The whole matter was exposed when the company demanded $18,000 for building two bridges over this road. About 12 years or more ago the Pennsylvania Railroad Company built a passenger station almost at Perth Amboy and no way to get to it. Without permission the company closed Main street, in the middle of the night, the only route to the former station. In order to accommodate traffic the company tore down a lot of houses to the west of Main street and built a gravel road thereon. Bridges under the railroad to allow travel to get to the station had to be built, there was no other way out of it. The company then tried to get the city to take over the road in exchange for closing the "Hole-in-the-wall," but as the officials would not present an agreement in writing, only verbal announcements from employees of the company being given, the council dropped the matter. Then the county was appealed to that the Board of Freeholders take this road. Still nothing was done. Then came the Good Samaritan, the State Highway Commission, and swallows the overtures of the company, and spends $75,000 in improving the roadway for the exclusive benefit of the company, without any title to the property, and the company still owns the property. Surely some shameful piece of work, that the former Highway Commission should be condemned for.

The contribution which high grade, long established fraternal organizations make to community life is beyond estimate. The benefits which they pay in sickness and in death have helped to lift many burdens from sorrowing and impoverished homes. Their brotherhood offers real comradeships which are invaluable. There is no question that the Knights of the Golden Eagle, which in February, 1923, will celebrate its golden anniversary, belongs to this class of fraternal orders. During the month of November it will conduct in the sixty Castles which the Order has in New Jersey a campaign to increase its membership and its prestige and influence locally and throughout the state. We wish it abundant success.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company may say to State Highway Commission, "pay up or get off our property." And what would become of all that $75,000 spent on this private right-of-way?

COLUMBUS EVE DANCE

(Communicated)

It is never too late. Who would have imagined that after four hundred and thirty years, the Italian flag was unfurled over this beautiful land of charity and love, and the mother of the world, where the poor find refuge and justice.

Who would have believed that on the coast of the Raritan bay in this young and beautiful city of ours, a descendant of the great navigator of Genoa was to be represented by Miss Margaret Nicorvo, and Mr. Michael J. Stanton in the grand march of the dance given by the Italo-American citizens, on the eve of the day on which Columbus said, "I'll give to the world a new world."

A number of the officials of the city were present and also the officials of the coming year. The well-known violin virtuoso, Master Joseph De Marco, accompanied by C. Livingston Peck at the piano, played several selections, one of which was the Intermezzo of the Cavalier Rusticano and others of the grand opera pieces.

The hall was beautifully decorated in the varying colors of the flag of both nations. Old Glory was placed conspicuously about the walls. The colors of the Italian flag hung in the centre of a great dome. The hall was well crowded and was a warm welcome to all and the evening was enjoyed by all who were there. All were sorry to hear the strains of "Home Sweet Home."

BASKETBALL FANS WILL

BE AT PERTH TO-NIGHT

South Amboy basketball fans will be on hand in full force at the auditorium in Perth Amboy this Saturday night when "Rufie" Allen and his crack Perth Amboy Five trots out on the court in their new basketball "duds" to give battle to the Danbury Separates, of New York City.

A touch of basketball sentiment; memories of the good old days in the K. of P. Hall in South Amboy, will keep local fans lined up with the Perth Amboy Five this year. South Amboy has no basketball court that will permit the playing of professional games, so it is very natural that local followers of the sport will go to Perth Amboy to root for the team that includes three boys who once wore Riverside livery. "Rufie" Allen, beloved by all South Amboy sportsmen; "Iank" Thomas, one of the boys who "broke in" with the Rivies and then wrote his name in big letters in professional basketball, and "Blackie" Regan, one of the fastest men who ever graced a Middlesex County Court, have all carried at one time or another splinters from the old K. of P. Hall floor.

No team in Middlesex ever had the loyal following that the old "Rivies" earned; no team ever went through harder battles than the Rivies—clean, hard-fought battles that aroused the fighting spirit of fans and players alike; battles that are still retained in the memory of all local rooters.

Along with Allen, Thomas, and Regan will be found "Pete" Hanson, formerly of the Auditorium Five, Charlie Sher, former Tottenville Big Five, Beauvais Post and Perth Amboy Y. M. H. A. star; and Harry Davis, of the Harmony Club, New York.

Strictly professional rules will apply, and there will be an impartial referee. Best music for dancing will be furnished before and after the game.

Daniel Bunting, Sr., has purchased a Chevrolet coupe from Brigg's garage. He expects to find recreation from the tolls of the bench, by short trips in this vicinity. May Daniel get much comfort and pleasure out of his purchase is the wish of the Citizen.

STRICKER RESIGNS AS

SILZER'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER

According to a demand very generally voiced by Democrats throughout Middlesex county, Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricker resigned Tuesday morning as campaign manager for ex-Judge George S. Silzer of Metuchen, who is seeking election as Governor of New Jersey on the Democratic ticket. The resignation of Mr. Stricker has been expected and was a popular one, as the Democrats of Middlesex were rapidly pulling away from the Silzer banner.

The resignation statement of Mr. Stricker reads as follows:

"I am this day tendering my resignation as campaign manager for George S. Silzer, Democratic candidate for Governor. This is done in justice to him, as since the Hall-Mills murder I have devoted all of my time, thought and energy in assisting the Somerset prosecutor and his staff in trying to bring about the conviction of the person or persons responsible for it. Under the circumstances I have been unable to give any service to the campaign."

"Although this crime, from all the evidence available, was committed in another county, still in the circumstances my duty as I see it is to give in the future as I have in the past, my undivided attention to this case as if the murder had taken place within my jurisdiction."

"I am taking this course fully realizing that my official duty is paramount to any personal desire on my part to render service to a man who has been my friend, associate and confidant for a period extending over the past twenty-five years."

C. D. OF A. CARD PARTY

The regular weekly card party given by the C. D. of A. will be held Monday night in K. of C. rooms. Those who will serve on the committee are as follows: Miss Fabiola Burke, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Mrs. M. Coan, Miss, Catherine Cleary, Miss Rose Credico, Miss Julia Delaney, Miss Annie Duggan, Miss Dorothy Dwyer, Mrs. Catherine Everitt, and Mrs. Margaret Fleming.

The winners at last week's card party were: Pinochle—James McDonnell, Sr., James McDonnell, Jr., Euchre—Timothy Duggan, Mrs. James McDonnell. Five Hundred—Mrs. Travaskiss, Mame Nickerson, Irene Melner. Bridge—Mrs. Frank Gordon.

The Pastime Dramatic Club is making preparations for a monster Halloween Masque dance at Victorian Hall, Sayreville, on Tuesday evening, October 31. Prizes for best dressed lady and homeliest attired man. Admission only 50 cents.

When a sufferer is sick, due to displacement of spinal bones, causing pressure on spinal nerves, there is no means known to restore that displacement to proper mechanical alignment except chiropractic spinal adjustments. Medicine does not move spinal bones. Proper diet has no effect in changing spinal alignment. Exercise is stimulating and beneficial, but it does not make the mental impulses that travel spinal nerve lines hop around a spinal displacement. All that will restore a spinal joint to its proper position is the scientific and relaxing adjustments of the skilled chiropractor. You can have a spinal analysis made and then you will know for yourself whether the condition of your spine is responsible in any degree for the ailments from which you are suffering. When the spinal alignment is the cause of an ailment the condition does not improve, but becomes more and more fixed or chronic. The quicker you get chiropractic spinal adjustments the better it will be.

PRESBYTERIAN PARAGRAPHS

To all those who attended our evangelistic services, let us urge you to conserve all the benefits derived from these meetings in the weeks and months before us. A plain gospel, lovingly delivered, must inevitably have the blessing upon it of our God to the hearts receptive to the message. Let us follow the Blind Evangelist with our prayers.

Next Sabbath morning, ten o'clock, the Sabbath School convenes as usual. The morning preaching service follows at 11 o'clock, at which time we observe the Communion of the Lord's supper; and the short theme for our meditation will be "Religion or Superstition."

At the evening service, 7:30 p. m., we will consider the subject: "What Is It To Be Born Again?"

DUCKS FLY TO CONGRESSMAN APPLEBY'S YARD FOR CLEANSING FROM OIL

Washington, D. C., October 10, 1922—The dictionary defines oil to be a greasy or unctuous liquid of vegetable or animal origin, insoluble in water; but the good people along the Jersey coast do not have to go to the dictionary to be told anything of this smeary enemy. They find it on their bathing suits and in their hair; sticking in greasy masses to the bottoms of their launches and sailing boats, covering the surface of their inlets and harbors; and behold, it sticketh closer than a brother. How recklessly they once used these phrases: "Use oil freely in the journey of life, as it eliminates friction," and "Pour oil upon the troubled waters!" Congressman T. Frank Appleby of the third Congressional district says: "No, stop pouring oil, for it makes no end of trouble upon the waters, and threatens to destroy our fisheries and bathing resorts, for New Jersey is the bathtub of the nation, and people will cease patronizing our coast resorts if this evil is not averted." So the good Congressman's Anti-Pollution bill is being keenly watched by the whole United States, and its success will be applauded by millions of people. Even the animals are keen for its success. The fish say: "This smeary tar and oil will soon exterminate all my flimsy relatives." The ducks are even more sagacious. Recently two Canadian web-footed water-fowl were speeding to Florida for the winter. Suddenly, they did a nose dive and volplaned into the yard of the Congressman's home at Asbury Park. Investigation proved their wings were so encrusted with oil from the smeary waters that their flight was impeded. The kind-hearted youngest son of the Congressman washed their wings and they went on their way rejoicing. These ducks know the Appleby's were foes of oil, and they had the God-given instinct to fly directly to the home of their anti-oil Congressman for relief from their distress. Talk about a wise old owl, he isn't in it compared with ducks, is he?

TOWN FIGHTING TERMITES PEST

White Ants From Tropics Threaten Destruction to Houses in Clinton, Ill.

HONEYCOMB CEMENT BLOCKS

Campaign of Extermination, in Which State University is Assisting, is Being Vigorously Pushed—Insects Are Plague in Africa.

Bloomington, Ill.—The millions of white ants, known as termites, whose powerful mandibles honeycomb even cement blocks, threatens destruction to houses in Clinton, are extremely rare in the United States. The insects were first noticed in the home of C. T. Sprague. Later they were found in myriads in the new home of C. F. Weld, just completed at a cost of $15,000 and one of the finest in the town. Other residences are also overrun with the pests and it has become necessary to organize a campaign of extermination.

Prof. J. W. Finley of the biological department of the university of Illinois was appealed to and has been engaged in applying various chemicals which were believed to be fatal and probably effective in destroying the entire community of unwelcome marauders. A mixture of carbosoda and other ingredients was applied to all sections of the houses affected. Weatherboarding was ripped off, hardwood floors removed and walls opened in order to reach the nests of the insects. Great quantities of creosote were applied and this mixture liberally sprinkled over the premises, in the cellar and every other place likely to be the retreat of the neoplosters, as the termite ant is scientifically known.

Are a Plague in Africa.

The scientists are loath to believe that these ants have become numerous and destructive in this country. They have been a plague in Africa and other tropical countries. Various types build mounds ten to twenty feet in height which serve as homes, many chambered and with winding galleries leading to nurseries and storehouses for food.

When attacking houses, they soon reduce the thickest timbers to a mere shell. In the case of the houses in Clinton the oak floors were honeycombed as completely as the softest pine. Skeptics who scoffed at the report that the ants were able to bore their way through the cement-block foundation had to admit, after an inspection, that the reports were true.

It is presumed that the ants migrated from swamp land or timbered sections adjacent to the city. It was not previously known that the insects existed in any considerable quantity, nor was their destructiveness ever reported in the past. They appear to have moved in one vast army and take possession of certain houses, overrunning every portion and forcing the occupants to seek shelter with neighbors.

Owing to the fecundity of the pests it is feared that they will produce myriads of new colonies unless the campaign of extermination is entirely successful. For this reason every effort is being made to dispatch the last of the visitants, and the application of the creosote and other destroying agencies will not be spared. In fact, creosote is being purchased by the barrel and is being liberally applied to all portions of the houses affected by the insect visitors. If this is not entirely effective, sulphurous gas and chlorine may be utilized.

In Five Classes.

According to the scientists, the termites are divided into five classes—males, females, workers, neuters and soldiers. The workers, neuters and soldiers appear to be imperfectly developed females. The males and perfect females have four wings which are long and nearly equal and which are frequently suddenly cast off before the termination of their life, but the greater part of the community consists of wingless workers. The soldiers are larger than the neuters and have very large mandibles, which they are always ready to use upon any assault. In tropical countries they are said to be useful in destroying decaying animal or vegetable matter. It is said that they even attack and destroy large animals when pressed by hunger and when their natural food is scarce.

Experts at the university confess that they have no record of the termites in any considerable number in the United States until the case at Clinton was called to their attention. The black ant has long been numerous in central Illinois, but so far as known this is the first instance where the termite of the tropics appeared in menacing numbers or have inflicted such heavy loss.

RED CROSS HEALS WOUNDS OF WAR

25,000 Disabled Ex-Service Men in Hospitals After Four Years of Peace.

CHAPTERS' FIELD OF SERVICE

Every Veteran Needing Help Gets Individual Attention of Sympathetic Workers.

When on November 11 the world halts to observe the fourth anniversary of Armistice Day, and the American Red Cross inaugurates its Annual Roll Call for the enrollment of the 1923 membership, the people of the United States may well pause to think of the unparalleled contribution to the cause of peace made by our Army and Navy in the World War. The glory of it is a common tradition; but the wounds of war remain. They are not healed in a day, in a year, nor in four years. And on Armistice Day there will be under treatment in Government hospitals over 25,000 ex-service men, broken physically by wounds, exposure, nervous strain and exhaustion incident to their service in the war.

The Government without stint is undertaking to furnish these disabled men with the compensation and medical care to which they are entitled, yet their special care is a duty of the Red Cross. Why? Because the Government cannot handle the cases of ex-service men individually; it must handle these men in bulk under a standardized policy. The Government has neither the authority, the funds or the equipment for working out the problem of the individual man. There is where the American Red Cross finds its greatest field for service, aiding through its very active Chapters in reaching the disabled man with immediate practical help, assisting his family while his claim is emerging from the process of adjustment, furnishing articles of comfort, funds to tide over the difficult periods, the friendly touch of personal encouragement, helpful recreation and worry-dispelling amusement. It is the warm hand of sympathy and understanding which the American Red Cross extends to the majority of these disabled ex-service men, some of them friendless in the whirl of life, thousands of them with wives and children dependent upon them, and hundreds of them frequently helpless in the face of grim necessity.

2,679 Chapters Aiding Veterans

In this work, upon whose accomplishment the American Red Cross is urged a record-breaking enrollment in the Roll Call which opens on Armistice Day and closes with Thanksgiving Day, 2,679 Chapters in all parts of the country are engaged. This is 350 more than were working for ex-service men last year when approximately $10,000,000 was expended by the National Organization and the Chapters working together in harmonious unity.

For the current fiscal year National Headquarters appropriated $3,030,692.90, an increase of $365,560.84 over the amount spent for the work among ex-service men in the year ended June 30 last. Since it is estimated that the Chapters will expend close to $7,000,000 from their own funds, the grand total of Red Cross expenditures for this single work is expected again to reach the $10,000,000 mark by June 30, 1923.

Hospital and District Office Work

During the fiscal year a total of over 1,000 persons, paid and volunteer, has been engaged in Red Cross duty in hospitals or district offices of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau. An average of 8,000 new cases requires definite and particular attention each month. The demand for Chapter-made articles for hospital patients is constant.

During last year Service Claims and Information Service at National Headquarters handled 37,200 compensation and insurance claims, 24,580 allotment and allowance cases, and 9,700 miscellaneous claims. Since February, 1919, it has disposed of 64,174 allotment checks payable to veterans which the Post Office Department reported undeliverable.

The Chapter is the unit of the Red Cross organization which is accessible to every disabled veteran or his family. Between July 1, 1921, and June 30, 1922, the Chapters had reported 1,605,079 instances of service to ex-service men and their dependents, at a cost estimated from reports now at hand of more than $5,940,000.

The basis of this far-reaching work of the Red Cross is the individual needs of the disabled veteran to the end that he may obtain his rights under the law, that his especial wants may be immediately supplied, that his own and his family's situation may be rendered happy and cheerful, and that their outlook for the future may visualize incentives for independent and fruitful effort.

Spread Christmas Joy Abroad
More than 100,000 Christmas boxes for the children of Central Europe were packed by the Junior Red Cross last year. The spread of Christmas joy through these boxes will be largely increased this year because of the plans already under way.

An allegorical concept of the Red Cross as a peace-time ideal is employed by the American Red Cross in a new and striking poster for its Annual Red Cross Roll Call. Spread out before the heroic size figure is the outline of the United States with a Red Cross superimposed upon it while around its borders are sketched scenes depicting the chief activities of the Red Cross today—service to disabled veterans of the World War, disaster relief and promotion of the public health. The poster is the work of Lawrence Wilbur, a New York artist and will be displayed throughout the country during the enrollment of the Red Cross membership for 1923.
