TAX BUDGET IS $44,367

Of Which $26,367 is to be Raised by Taxation—Lines of Portia Street Explained by Engineer Josiah Tice According to Perrine Map—Other Business Before Council.

Mayor Welsh, Councilmen Manhattan, O'Connor, Stanton and Stuart; Clerk Fulton, City Solicitor Pearce, Engineer Mason, City Treasurer Perrine, and Street Commissioner Connors were present at regular meeting of the Common Council held on Tuesday evening.

President Manhattan presided. Minutes of previous meeting approved as read.

The clerk read a communication signed by Rev. H. M. P. Pearce and eight others requesting that Main street from Broadway to Stevens avenue be oiled, so as to afford relief of dust nuisance.

On motion of Mr. Stanton, it was received and referred to committee on streets.

The clerk read a communication signed by A. C. Parlsen and others, declaring themselves in favor of the Perrine map, as made in 1835, and petitioning council not to change any lines of Ferris, Louisa and Portia streets that varied from that survey. At this point the chair offered the privilege of the floor to any person who desired to make remarks regarding the lines of Portia street.

John Perrine stated that Rollin Baird had engaged the services of Josiah Tice, of New Brunswick, to prove the lines of his property, and as Mr. Tice was present he could explain such lines.

Mr. Tice then gave a clear, and intelligent statement in regard to the Perrine map, declaring it to be absolutely correct in regard to lines, and the only official map on record. Copy of the original map was explained to Council and others present, and also the Hill map. Mr. Tice explained the errors in the Hill map, and also called attention to an ordinance passed in 1894, establishing the Perrine lines and the Hill grades.

On motion the matter was referred to committee on streets, together with city engineer and solicitor to report at next meeting.

Charles L. Steuerwald, by letter, complained to the Council that when he received permit to tap sewer on Gordon street he understood the lateral connection was to be laid to his fence line. This was not done, and he had to complete connection at his own expense, and thus he thought he was entitled to some rebate.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, the letter was received and referred to committee on sewers.

A communication was received from Independence Engine Company stating that John Mullane had served the necessary time, and was entitled to exemption certificate.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, it was received and referred to committee on fire department.

A communication from Protection Engine Company stated that Charles Compton, Roger Leonard, James Manion, James Green, Patrick Conway, William Bailey, John E. Price, Frank Farrell and Edward Dooling were entitled to exemption certificates.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, the communication was received and request granted.

The Clerk read an invitation to attend the International Municipal Congress and Exposition to be held at Chicago, which was received and referred to committee on miscellaneous business.

The Clerk read a letter from the Cantrell Construction Company requesting that a meeting be arranged between the city engineer and a representative of the company for consultation in regard to the sewer pipe in the bay.

Mr. O'Connor thought the matter to be of great importance, and that the company wanted to prolong the battle until time expired. He suggested that the bonding company be notified that the city will complete the work, and thought the council had waited long enough.

On motion of Mr. O'Connor, the city solicitor was instructed to notify the

CHILD DIES FROM BEING HIT BY STONE

The practice of boys throwing stones should be stopped, even if it becomes necessary to fill the juvenile court with young prisoners.

About two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. John O'Brien, of Parlin, and their two-year-old son were passing First street on Broadway in a wagon when a stone thrown by some boy struck the child on the head. Medical attention was given the infant, but he gradually grew worse and died a few days afterward, the attending physician declaring death was due to the injury.

The case was reported to the police department of this city, but as yet none of the boys who were throwing stones have been apprehended.

BIG INCREASE IN RATABLES

Valuations of Taxable Property in County Go Up Over $3,000,000—South Amboy Shows a Gain of Over $80,000.

The County Board of Equalization of Taxes has announced the ratables of the county for this year, which foot up $62,907,862, an increase over the ratables of last year of $3,307,705. The total ratables last year were $59,788,496.

The figures given out by the board show that this year there has been a decided increase in both real and personal estate taxable over that of last year.

The total valuations for this city are $3,069,638, against $2,989,230 for 1910, which is an increase of $80,408.

The total valuations for New Brunswick this year are $12,591,388, against $11,916,824 last year. The valuations in Perth Amboy are $18,318,936, against $16,901,948 last year.

The figures also show that the valuation in Highland Park, Milltown and South River have been greatly increased. In the Park there has been considerable building done this year, which accounts for the increased valuations. The same reason also explains the increased valuations in other places named above. Throughout the entire county there has been a general increase in valuations, except in Piscataway and Madison townships and Jamesburg borough, due to the state now taxing railroad property formerly taxed by the county. The table showing the amount of property taxable appears in another column.

FEW SNAP SHOTS TAKEN AT MORGAN

Sunday and Labor Day brought many visitors to the beach.

Some of the tenters have pulled up stakes and returned home.

An auto cycle came to grief on Monday, the gasoline tank taking fire. It was left in care of Wood Applegate.

Many fishermen went out from Morgan on Labor Day, and every small boat was engaged early in the morning.

The creek is a busy stream just now, owing to the oyster trade being carried on there. Many floats in which oysters are fattened, are moored about a half mile up the creek.

SET BED ON FIRE.

Mrs. John Nichols, who resides with her grandmother, Mrs. John Fine, of George street, while handling a light on Monday morning in one of the rooms of the house, accidentally set fire to the bed clothes. DUNNE—SMITH.

On Friday morning, September 1, St. Mary's Church was the scene of a quiet and pretty wedding, when Mrs. M. Smith and Patrick Dunne were united in marriage by the Right Rev. Monsignor J. F. Brady. FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED

The body of Mrs. Lena Schultz Iniatzy, wife of Peter Iniatzy, of South River, was found floating in the Raritan River at Sayreville on Thursday morning. It was removed to the morgue of William Morgan at South River.

Mrs. Iniatzy had been missing since Sunday and the fact that her husband did not take any interest in her disappearance, but kept right on at his work led to suspicions of foul play.

Mrs. Schultz, of Bergen Hill, the woman's mother, had kept up a continual search, fearing some wrong had been done her daughter, and made visits to South River daily with hope of obtaining some knowledge of her daughter's whereabouts.

On Wednesday night the husband was arrested on complaint of his brother-in-law, believing that Iniatzy might know something about his wife's disappearance.

Iniatzy, when questioned by Justice of the Peace Ledwon, of South River, who is Polish, said that Sunday morning he and his wife had gone to the St. Mary's Polish Church, where he sings in the choir. That afternoon he and two friends went to a farm near Old Bridge where they spent the afternoon. About supper time he returned to his home.

He found the place locked up. He had no key and he got into the house through a window. He asked a girl who lived next door where his wife was and she replied that she didn't know.

He had made further inquiries about her and had been told that she was last seen standing at Yates' corner awaiting for a trolley car to South Amboy.

It is said that on another occasion he admitted having been with his wife to the moving picture show Sunday night.

County Physician Edgar Carroll, of Dayton, and Coroner John V. Hubbard, of New Brunswick, performed an autopsy Thursday afternoon. After the autopsy they announced that death had been due to drowning, that no marks of violence were found upon the body.

County Detective Ferguson was present and spent some time in South River investigating the case.

The husband is still being held, in spite of the finding of the county physician and coroner. The three officials Thursday afternoon visited the young husband's house in search of evidence which might indicate foul play.

The body of the girl was brought to the home of her parents in this city Thursday afternoon by Undertaker J. J. Scully.

PAVING BLOCKS INVESTIGATED

Property Owners from This City See Streets in New York That Were Laid With Compressed Asphalt Blocks—Had Fine Trip, and Pleased With What They Saw.

Messrs. J. W. Mahoney, P. F. Kenah, Gottlob Straub, A. H. Slover, P. J. Monaghan; Max Kaufman and James Kenah, representing a committee of property owners on Broadway, were guests of the Hastings Pavement Company, of 26 Broad street, New York, on Wednesday, and were entertained in a royal manner.

The committee has made various visits to towns and cities to examine street pavements, and to select, if possible, a suitable material with which to pave Broadway, and valuable information is thus being obtained.

The party left this city on the 8.20 a. m. train for New York, where they were met at Twenty-third street by George L. Luck and Michael Humphreys, representing the Hastings Pavement Company, who had two Packard automobiles in waiting to convey the party through the city in order to show them the block pavement.

At Seventy-second street block pavement was shown that was laid in 1904, and it was found to be in fairly good shape.

A run was then made to Seventy-ninth street, where the three-inch blocks had been laid six years ago on a four-inch concrete foundation. This was on a very steep hill, and the blocks were found to be in good shape.

At Seventy-seventh street and Broadway, the party was shown the pavement that had been in service fifteen years, and laid on four-inch concrete. It had been considerably patched, but was still in serviceable condition.

The next stop for examination of pavement was at Eighty-seventh street. This was laid in 1889 on four-inch concrete, and had been taken up ten years later and relaid. It was in fairly good shape.

Block pavement that was laid on four-inch concrete foundation in 1906 on Seventh avenue, between One Hundred and Eleventh and One Hundred and Forty-fifth streets, was found to be in excellent condition.

They were also shown block pavement laid in 1907 at One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and Cypress avenue on four-inch concrete, covering a space of four blocks. This was in very fine condition.

A very fine piece of pavement that had been down two years was shown at Croton Park, and another section at Croton Park north that had been laid seven years.

At One Hundred and Eighty-second street and Adams Place the party was shown where the street had been torn open to lay electric conduits, after the blocks had been down three years. This proved that the blocks could be taken up and replaced in as good condition as originally laid. This impressed the party as being a fine job.

They were next shown a section of road one and one-half miles long, running from Morris Park to New York and New Haven and Hartford Railroad, Bronx and Pelham Parkway. This had been laid one year and was a splendid road.

After a stop at the Knickerbocker Inn for refreshments, the party were taken up Broadway to the Yonkers city line, and thence to Park Hill Inn on the Hudson, of which John C. Shilling is manager. Here a swell dinner was enjoyed, and nothing was lacking to tempt the "inner-man."

Two miles of block pavement were shown in Yonkers, after which the party was taken to Hastings, where the manufacturing plant of the company was visited. Here the process of manufacture was exhibited, showing the mixing of the ingredients, the making of the bricks, etc. Every brick is submitted to a pressure of 240 tons. To show the durability of the brick they are fastened to a revolving drum, and pieces of loose iron placed therein, and the drum is revolved at a rapid rate.

A return was made by way of Riverside drive to Thirty-third street, where Messrs. Mahoney, Straub, P. F. Kenah, and Slover boarded a P. R. R. train for this city. Messrs. James Kenah, P. J. Monaghan and M. Kaufman, remained in the city and saw "The Pink Lady" as the guests of the company.

While it was a business trip, all found a great deal of pleasure as an adjunct, and declared The Hastings Pavement Company to be hosts of a superior order.

THIRTEEN STRAIGHT FOR THE ATHLETICS

The Athletics registered their thirteenth straight victory on Monday last, when they defeated the strong All Stars by a Garrison finish in the ninth inning.

The game was well played on both sides, the feature being Atkinson's circuit clout over the centre field fence in the fifth inning. It was one of the longest hits ever made on the grounds, and makes the fifth time he pulled the trick in as many consecutive games.

The Athletics came in for the last half of the ninth with a four run lead to overcome, the score being 9 to 5 in favor of the Stars. Did they do it? Listen!

Higgins, the first man up, singled to centre, Stratton followed with a single to right, Borlund dropped one in the same place and the bases were loaded. Coakley hit through Cantlon scoring Higgins and Stratton, and the pitching wonder of the silk league showed signals of distress when Hackett met one on the trade mark and drove it out for a triple, tallying Borlund and Coakley and tying the score. Atkinson whiffed but Keating hitting for Molly singled to centre scoring Hackett with the winning count and sending the fans home with a good appetite for dinner.

Monster Banquets.

At the wedding feast of Richard, brother of Henry III., there were no fewer than 30,000 dishes, and scarcely less imposing must have been the banquet given on the occasion of the enthronement of Archbishop Neville in the fifteenth century, for mention is made, among other comestibles, of 8,000 dishes of jelly, 2,000 hot custards, 400 swans, 6 wild bulls and 100 pigs. At the noted feasts of the gay and hospitable Prince Hal a favorite dish was what the "epicurean cooks" called "pondorage." It was a savory jumble of partridge, pork and the yolks of eggs boiled first and afterward baked in batter. But the most hospitable entertainer on record was surely Richard II. Ten thousand of his subjects were daily bid to the banquet. In order to enter adequately for such a vast assembly of guests never were there less than 28 oxen supplied, 800 sheep, besides innumerable fowls and choice game. These were handed over each morning at daybreak to the 2,000 cooks employed in the king's kitchen, and the prodigious preparations for this huge medieval banquet began.—London Globe.

Parrots in a Fire.

In all likelihood no fireman on duty is going to stand around with his hand in his pockets long enough to read the warning, nevertheless it is printed in large type above the bird fancier's desk:

"In case of fire, save the parrots last. They are best able to take care of themselves."

"Looks like hard luck for the parrots," remarked a visitor.

"I have no grudge against them," said the bird man. "I am only trying to protect the smaller and more delicate birds. When a fire starts in a bird store most persons who join the rescue party make a grab for the parrots. First aid should be extended to the canaries. They and other small birds are mighty soon overcome by the smoke. The parrot is no phoenix, but unless he is actually reduced to ashes he can put up a pretty stiff fight against a fire and can hold his own until the rescuers make a second invasion."—New York Sun.

The Menu Card in its First Form.

In its old fashioned form the menu was usually written large on cards of such imposing dimensions that room for one only could be found at each end of the board. In the medieval dinner this aid to selection must have been an absolute necessity, for the medieval dinner was a mine of surprises. It was divided into courses, as are our own dainty meals; but, whereas nowadays the dinner has a general idea that fish will follow soup and that entrée is succeeded by relve and can conceivably generally the sort of demand that each course will make upon his appetite and digestion, there was no possible arguing as to what was going to happen at an early English dinner, and close study fails to reveal the existence of any principle of arrangement.

Have You Neuritis?

This seems to be a neuritis age. Almost every woman you meet is holding her arm and telling of the pain it gives her.

It is small comfort that we bring these pains on ourselves by our way of living. What we want to know is how to get rid of our discomfort.

The surest time to do this is at the first twinges. Neglected neuritis is acute agony that may not yield to remedies through long years. The first thing to be done is to go easy. Stop rushing, let up on your round of engagements, cut out bridge, even the care of your children for part of each day—anything to give you a long rest.

Live more in the open air, but do not make the mistake of overexercising. Your nerves need rest, not excitement.

Eat simple food, for dyspepsia is bad on nerves, and neuritis is a disease of the nerve centers.

Stop worrying. Learn to let things slide and cultivate optimism.

Take daily massage. If you cannot afford it get some one in your family or one of your maids to rub the arm from the shoulder down in circular sweeping motions. Use a little cold cream or cocoa butter to avoid friction.

Electrical treatment is excellent for neuritis, but should only be taken under advice of a physician. In cases of bad pain it is the only thing that will relieve it.

When the pain becomes acute the arm should be kept very warm. In cold weather this is done by wrapping it in cotton wadding. In summer a light knitted shawl of wool will be found soothing. Do not let your neuritis run on too long without consulting a doctor. There may be some serious cause that only treatment will cure. As the doctor will doubtless insist upon complete rest, it is well to forestall him by taking a partial rest now.

As cold or damp weather generally aggravates neuritis, be careful about chilling when overheated and do not sit in a draft on a rainy day.

Which Is Which?

Above a certain cafe there are two rooms, the one being occupied by a women's "sewing circle," the other being the dining room of the cafe. Outside the cafe hangs the sign, "Grill-room upstairs."

The German proprietor of the cafe is still wondering why the president of the sewing circle denounces the sign as libelous and demands its removal.—Judge.

NEW JERSEY NEWS CONDENSED.

Items of Interest From all Parts of the State as Gleaned From Our Exchanges Briefly Paragraphed.

Hotel Damaged by Fire.

The Hotel Monmouth at Rumson, was partially destroyed by fire Saturday. The blaze was started by the explosion of a tank of gasoline which was part of a new lighting system installed in the hostelry. As to what caused the blow-up the hotel proprietor, John Farrell, does not know. The tank was located on the ground floor. With a report like a cannon shot the tank blew up and burning liquid was spattered about the place so that in a few minutes the dining-rooms and kitchen were being swept by the flames. Despite the efforts of the firemen, the fire ate its way through the ceiling and communicated to bedrooms and the bathrooms on the second floor. The loss is fully covered by insurance. A guest lost two pet canaries which were said to be remarkable singers.

His Inheritance Long Delayed.

George L. Chetwood, of Elizabeth, will have to become a grand-father before the really valued at $50,000 left by his father, Dr. George B. Chetwood, will become his. That decision was made Saturday by Vice Chancellor Stevens. The decision was given in a suit begun by Chetwood and his mother, Mrs. Blanche Chetwood, to fix the title to the property which was left to George L. Chetwood and a sister. The sister died, unmarried, after she was 21. She left no will, so her interest in her father's estate went to her brother. The issue raised was as to whether George L. Chetwood acquires an indefeasible estate in fee simple in the real estate, subject to the widow's right to a life interest in one-third of it.

Quits Railroad as He Promised.

The story of a man quitting railroading at the dying request of his chum, and in middle life turning his hand to other employment, came out Sunday, when it was found that Steats F. Brown, of Trenton, a trainman of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had gone to auto repairing. He is a mechanic. When pressed for an explanation, as he was in line for promotion with the railroad company, Brown said that his chum, Nell E. Welch, slipped from the top of a car one night near Jamesburg, and he (Brown) saw him mangled, and held his head while he died. Just before he expired Welch asked Brown, for the sake of their old friendship, to instantly give up railroading, and Brown promised, and kept his word. Brown says that after that promise he felt he could not ride on a train for years.

Farmer Killed by Train.

John Naughton, a Port Monmouth farmer, thirty-five years old, was killed by an excursion train at Port Monmouth, at 7 o'clock Sunday night. He had been to a store and was on his way home. When crossing the track he stepped in front of a train. Both his legs were cut off and he was hurled about ten feet. The engineer did not see the accident and Naughton was not found until twenty minutes later, when his wife, thinking something must have happened him, started out to look for him. She found his body in a ditch alongside the track. The train was telegraphed for and it came to Port Monmouth and took the man to the Long Branch Hospital. He died fifteen minutes after reaching the hospital. In addition to his wife he leaves four children.

Mother and Child Killed.

Becoming confused when she saw a freight approaching on the Lehigh Valley Railroad bridge over the Delaware River, which she had just started to cross on her way to Easton, Mrs. William Leiser, of Phillipsburg, and her five-year-old son were struck and hurled off the structure Saturday. Both were killed. The woman fell into the canal basin seventy feet below and her son struck the bank. The latter was killed instantly. Mrs. Leiser was taken from the water by several men who witnessed the accident. She died a few minutes later.

Three Men Drowned.

Three members of a pleasure party were drowned when the launch Alice of Roebling, was run down by barges in tow of the Philadelphia tug Hartford on the Delaware river Saturday night at Florence Heights. The men who were drowned, all residents of Roebling, are George Ledger, thirty-four years old, boss machinist; Charles Becht, forty years old, a wire operator, and August Benz, thirty-eight years old, a machinist. Five members of the party were rescued by campers after they had been thrown from their boat and washed under the barges. They were H. DeWitt French, Julius Kish, Steve Kertl, Louis Jammer and Mike Liptak.

The launch, which was owned by Kish, left Burlington to return to Roebling early in the evening. Opposite Florence the engine stopped. Kish was attempting to crank it and Benz was steering when the tug passed. Just then the engine started and before Benz could veer away the launch crashed bow first into the leading barge. Benz was thrown out and his skull was crushed against the bow of the barge. Becht and Ledger are said to have been asleep in the boat at the time of the crash.

Hurt Fatally When Auto Overturns.

Charles Stansfield, of Burlington, was hurt fatally Saturday when his automobile was overturned in the Columbia Pike Speedway. He turned out for another automobile and his machine skidded. Stansfield's leg and several ribs were broken and he suffered internal injuries. He was taken to the County Hospital.

To Double Track Trolley.

The Jersey Central Traction Company has begun work on double tracking its right of way the entire length of the Field farm, now known as Minnesink Park in Middletown Township, near Red Bank. At present work is confined to that portion of the farm which is being developed, but by July 15th of next year the road will be double tracked all the way from the beginning of the Field farm on the south to Headden's Corner on the east. This will facilitate the handling of special cars for the Monmouth County Fair, which will be held on the Field farm next year. The Minnesink Park Company gives a ten-foot strip to the trolley company and in return the trolley company is to remove all wooden poles and substitute iron ones, and is also to bring the grade of the tracks down to the grade of the Middletown Turnpike and the boulevard to be laid out along the entire front of the Field farm. There will then be two fine highways, with a double trolley track in the center.

Widow Walks at Altar in Vain.

The home of Mrs. J. Eliza Stevenson, of Millville, was arrayed for a wedding. The guests invited to the marriage ceremony had assembled. The minister had arrived. A specially embossed wedding certificate had been drawn up. But there was no bridegroom. Mrs. Stevenson, who is a comely widow of some means, had supposed that she was to become the wife of John Frisby, of Vineland.

Blow Out Gas; Found Dead.

A man who registered as "John Shost, Fairbanks, Alaska," was found dead Monday in his room in the Arlington Hotel, Montgomery and Greene streets, Jersey City. In his pockets was $385.21 in American and $35 in Canadian money, and a card of Mrs. Fannie Goldberg, 20 West Eleventh street, Manhattan. There was an odor of gas in his room and one of the jets was wide open. The supposition is that Shost blew out the gas. His body was removed to the morgue.

Woman Dies on Train.

After hurrying to catch a passenger train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at High Bridge, Mrs. James Reilly, aged 60 years, of 275 Stevens avenue, Jersey City, died of heart failure just before the train reached Somerville Monday evening.

Crab Net Caught by Engine Kills Man.

Oscar Sandbein, a well-known resident of Spa Springs, Woodbridge township, was instantly killed by a Pennsylvania train from New York to Long Branch, while he was crossing the tracks on Monday. The man had cleared the track, but the crab net he was carrying was caught by the engine, tossing him against the first car and back against the iron guard rail separating the east and westbound trains, breaking his neck and crushing his skull. No stop was made by the train, the engineer being unaware that his train had killed a man.

Killed by Own Engine.

William Murphy, an engineer, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, whose home was in 19 West Twenty-sixth street, Bayonne, was killed by his own engine Monday morning. He slipped and fell from the cab under the wheels. Both legs were cut off. Murphy died in the Bayonne Hospital.

Eight Killed by Autos During August.

Eight persons were killed by automobiles in New Jersey highways in August and four by runaways, according to figures compiled by Colonel Edward S. Cornell, secretary of the National Highway Protective Association of East Orange. In July eleven persons were killed by automobiles, eight by trolley cars, six at grade crossings and one by a wagon. In the three months ended August 31 last automobiles killed 29 and injured 244; trolleys killed 11 and hurt 88; wagons killed 8 and injured 14. Neither bicycles nor motorcycles were responsible for a single death, but the former machines injured 4 and the latter vehicles 3.

CORPS OF ROGUES

French Foreign Legion a Unique
Military Body.

CRIMINALS FILL ITS RANKS.

It Gathers Recruits From the Social Outcasts of All Grades of All Other Countries—Iron Discipline and Brutal Punishments.

The French Foreign Legion is unique. There is no other military organization like it on earth. It was first raised in 1831 for service in the then newly conquered colony of Algeria. The officers are French officers, of course, but the ranks are made up of outcasts of all social ranks of all other countries. It is understood that recruits are simply seeking refuge from the arm of the civil law. The corps has done excellent work against the Arabs and is always placed in the forefront of the fight.

The Foreign Legion exists but to march. To this one end its whole training is devoted. To fall out on the march is the one unpardonable sin in a legionnaire. The system of marches is brutal. No matter what the distance, it has to be completed in one stage. Forty miles, fifty, sixty—no matter—it is done straight off the heel, with, of course, brief halts for rest. But there is no general halt until the whole distance is completed.
If a legionnaire faints on the march he is tied to a baggage cart which rolls on. He then either has to march or he is dragged along. "Seeing this done for the first time, I thought it brutal; but later I learned to understand the reason for it," said one who had served in its ranks.

The legionnaire who struggles in the desert is lost. Hundreds of men have died a dreadful death in this way. The Arab women pounce upon them, lying helpless in the sand, and, with shrieks of diabolical delight, proceed to torture and mutilate them, before killing them outright.

A legionnaire's pay is only a half-penny a day. True, wine in Algeria costs only a penny a quart, and tobacco
three pence to fourpence a pound.
But—a halfpenny a day!

His rations, too, are of the scantiest.
Two meals a day only are served—breakfast at 10 o'clock in the morning and supper at 4 in the afternoon.
Each meal is exactly alike, consisting of a thick soup made up of meat and vegetables, with bread, and every other day a small quantity of wine.

The discipline is ruthless in its severity; the punishments are cruel in the extreme. For grave offenses, like desertion, insubordination or striking a superior officer, death is frequently inflicted, or, failing that, the offender is sent to serve in the penal battalion on the edge of the Sahara desert. This nearly always means a slow and painful death in place of a quick and comparatively painless one.

Minor offenses are punished with from twenty to a hundred days in prison or with "cellule," which is solitary confinement in the dark plus starvation. I have seen strong, robust men so reduced after doing thirty days cellule that they have hardly been able to stand, yet they had to resume their ordinary duties nevertheless.

Not long since two other dreadful forms of punishment were in vogue—the "silo" and the "crapaudine." The silo was just a deep hole in the ground shaped like a funnel, into which the victim was cast. He was given no blanket or other protection from the weather.

The sun beat upon him by day; the cold night mists penetrated to the marrow of his bones. He could not lie down, for the bottom of the silo sloped to a point. He just crouched, a huddled heap, until not infrequently death mercifully relieved him from his sufferings.

The crapaudine consisted in trussing
a man as a fowl is trussed, his hands and feet being tied together on his back in such a manner that they formed a sort of semicircle.

This resulted in such frightful cramps that the pain sometimes drove men mad. Both the silo and the crapaudine, however, have now been abolished. But in the field and on the march an offender is still punished by being "spreadeagled" and bound to four stakes driven into the ground.

To escape from these tortures men mutilate themselves, usually by cutting off one or more fingers, or they will purposely make themselves ill.
One favorite trick is to take a drink
from the sewers under the Arab prison. This loathsome draft almost invariably brings on an attack of typhoid of a peculiarly malignant type.

Others, more enterprising, try to desert, but they rarely succeed. Mostly they meet with dreadful deaths at the hands of the wild Arabs of the desert. The only class of recruits who are treated with special favor are those who have previously been officers in some other army. These are usually made corporals on enlistment and afterward sergeants. But even under the most favorable conditions life in the legion is the life of a dog.

In Its Due Order.
Dr. Thirdly was dividing up his sermon into its appropriate heads one Sunday morning, when a member of the congregation shouted frantically:
"Meat, meat! Give us meat!"
"Well," said Dr. Thirdly promptly,
"hold on, then, till I've done carving."

A Dangerous Discovery

Made at the Rockefeller Institute For Scientific Discovery and at Once Suppressed

By F. A. MITCHEL
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Two physicians devoted to the experimental branch of their profession sat in the Rockefeller Institute, from which emanate most of the new ideas we receive, discussing a problem in transfusion. They were Dr. Pendleton, who has begun the work of replacing knee and elbow joints that have become useless with those of other persons, and Dr. Sisson, the prince of bacteriologists.

"It is time," said Dr. Pendleton,
"that we made some great step in transfusion. I don't mean in the process, but in the results attained. Away back, in 1666 in London the blood of a dog was let into another dog, the blood of the latter being let out on the opposite side. What have we done since? Nothing more than transfuse blood for the purpose of temporarily maintaining life. Now, if one animal had been a bulldog, another a spaniel, and it had been noted and recorded that the recipient dog's disposition had been turned from fierceness to gentleness a great point would have been gained."

"That's a good idea of yours, doctor," replied Dr. Sisson. "I wonder that it has never been advanced before. Yet we must remember it is only recently that we have in this institution the means for developing such original ideas."

"Then let us begin the development of this one."

"Not in this case to operate with guinea pigs. We can do better with human beings. Suppose we take a soldier of an especially bloodthirsty nature and give him the blood of a mild, soft spoken curate."

"A good suggestion. But I think I have a better one. By transfusing the blood between the sexes I think we shall get more pronounced results."
"Eureka!" exclaimed Dr. Pendleton enthusiastically, and, reaching out his hand, he grasped that of his coworker.
The two investigators found a man who was willing to submit to the transfusion process, he having been long afflicted with impoverishment of blood. An attempt to give him blood from but one woman was not attempted. A small quantity from each of a number was put into his veins, and without injury to either the subject or those who gave up a portion of their vital fluid.

George Wattles was the man who was operated upon. The operators simply told him that his blood had been replaced by that of other human beings. He saw for himself that they were women, but it did not occur to him that this might have any especial effect upon him. He was in love with a very charming girl, but her parents would not permit her to marry him on account of his poor health. Indeed, one of the reasons for his submitting to the transfusion was that he might recover his health and marry.

He was discharged from the institute, but not to remain away continuously. Every alternate day he must return and be under the observation of the doctors.

The first person Mr. Wattles went to see after his discharge was Miss Charlotte Sanger. He had advised her of the day and hour of his coming, and she was waiting for him impatiently.
What was her surprise to see him come into the room with that skip by which actors on the stage attempt to personate young men, but which instead reminds us of boyish girls.

"Oh, Lottie, dear," he exclaimed, putting out both hands and kissing her on each cheek, then looking at her with his head cocked sideways on his shoulders, "you can't imagine how nice
I feel. I'm just too well for anything."
Miss Sanger frowned. What had come over her lover?

"The doctors," continued her fiancee,
"were awfully lovely to me—one of them was ever so handsome—and did not hurt me even a little teeny weeny bit."

Miss Sanger looked at Mr. Wattles in astonishment.
"Why, Lottie, dear," he exclaimed, with a pout, "how cold you are! Don't you love me any more?"
"I haven't changed, George."

"Then what does it mean? You don't pet me a bit."

He tossed his head, and she saw a tear sparkle in his eye.

"Sit down, George, and tell me about the operation."

She led him to a sofa; he drew her arm around his waist and, snuggling
up to her, began:

"Dr. Pendleton—he's the handsome one—made all the preparations; then Dr. Sisson—I didn't like him, he's so cross—brought in a girl!"

"A girl?"

"Yes. She was about eighteen years old, strong and healthy."

"And the blood of this girl now flows
in your veins?"

"Some of it. They opened a vein in me and a vein in the girl, and as the blood came into me I felt so funny.
Do you know, I wished Dr. Pendleton, the handsome one, would kiss me?"

"Oh, you did!"

"Yes. But the next day they gave me some blood from an older woman.
I didn't feel so nice when her blood was running into me. Somehow I felt as if things were going wrong all the while, and do you know what I wanted to do?"

"No. What?"

"I wanted to spank the baby."

Miss Sanger said nothing for some time. When she did she asked:

"Do you mean, George, that the doctors infused into you only the blood of women?"

"That's all. There was no man's blood."

Miss Sanger sat rigid. The expression on her face was not pleasant to look upon.

"I think you're real mean to me,"
said Mr. Wattles. "After being away from you so long and going through so much I expected you'd be nice to me. Instead I think you're horrid.
So there!"

He arose and bounced out of the room. In the hall he waited for her to call him back. But she didn't, and he reluctantly went away.

He did not return to her that day,
and the next he returned to the institute for observation. When he went again to see his ladylove, hoping to make up what he considered a trifling misunderstanding, he found that she had left the city.

"Well, I declare!" he exclaimed,
quite startled.

But somehow he didn't miss her.
On the days he did not report at the institute he went to the shops, looked over the pretty things displayed there and was always found where there were special inducements offered. He petted all the children he passed and asked their mothers if they were nursed or brought up on the bottle and if the latter what food was used. The news of the day failed to interest him, and whenever he was found reading the newspapers it was noticed that he was studying the advertisements.

One day the two doctors who had operated on him were discussing the results of their experiment.

"Well, doctor," said Pendleton, "what do you think?"

"Until yesterday," replied Sisson,
"my only conclusions were that the transfusion of blood of the female into the male conduces to effeminacy. But something occurred yesterday afternoon which leads me to think that woman's blood transfused into a man may produce feminine perceptive faculties in man."

"What is the incident that has led you to this scientific conclusion?"

"Well, yesterday afternoon while passing down the street I heard the sound of drums, followed by the inspiring strains of music. Waiting to learn the cause, presently I saw a procession coming, attended by the usual crowd. As it drew nearer I observed that the participants were women. At their head, holding aloft a banner with the words 'Votes for Women' on it, marched our subject, Mr. Wattles."

The doctor paused, while his collaborer in the field of science sat in deep thought. Finally he said:

"And your inference is?"

"That the transfusion of woman's blood into man has for its resultant—"

"Surely no deteriorating effect, doctor!"

"Not at all. On the contrary, it gives the man an insight into those yearn-ings women have for their rights."

The two men sat silently thinking for some time, when Dr. Pendleton said:

"Doctor, I propose that the records of this experiment be burned."

"Why so?" asked Sisson.

"If published they will be a terrible blow to the male sex."

"In what respect, doctor? Explain yourself."

"I will do so by asking you a question. Suppose Mrs. Sisson should hear that the infusion of woman's blood in you would give you a clearer perception of her rights?"

"Great heavens, doctor, she would make a Wattles of me at once!"

"And Mrs. Pendleton would do the same by me."

"So would every married woman by her husband."

"And every girl by her lover."

"This is a dangerous scientific truth
we have developed."

"Dangerous? The human male stands on a volcano!"

"Wattles reports tomorrow. What had we better do with him?"

"Kill him!"

"No, no. Such an act would give the antivivisectionists a handle that would be ruinous to scientific investigation."

"I have it," said Dr. Pendleton. "We will transfuse sufficient woman's blood into him to kill every manly instinct.
Then he will not be an example of what you have 'developed.'"

"You have hit the nail on the head, doctor."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1911.

The changing of the Morgan road so as to avoid dangerous curves and grade crossings is meeting with favor by the Board of Freeholders. The trolley and railroad companies that would also be benefited by the change have promised to pay a good share of the expense, and the county would have to pay but little. It is to be hoped that the project will be carried through, as the safety of the public demands it.

The property owners on Portia street will insist that the lines of that street shall not be changed from the lines as laid down by John Perrine, surveyor, in 1835. Should the council decide that the lines as made by the city engineer shall be established, there will be objections, and possibly a law suit that will entail expense both upon the city and the property owners. Law suits are expensive, and should be avoided wherever possible.

WANT MOTOR LAWS CHANGED.

The Newark Motor Club will take an active interest in the effort to be made at the next session of the Legislature to have the Motor Vehicle law changed so non-residents may come into the State free for a limited period. The details of the campaign are to be left to a joint committee of the State Association of Automobile Clubs and the Newark club. De Witt C. Reynolds, vice president of the Newark organization, says the unfriendly attitude of New Jersey toward non-residents is the cause of much embarrassment to Jersey automobile owners when touring in other States. They are, he says, ashamed to say they live in New Jersey, and often, when they cross the borders of the State, remove their numbers.

"It also means," he adds, "a big financial loss to this State, as the autoists who would otherwise tour here keep away. It has become so bad that the metropolitan touring bureaus have laid out a route that avoids the State altogether."

"One large bureau in New York had such a heavy demand for a route from Western points to New England that they would avoid New Jersey that it printed a map with the desired information. The fact that organizations all over the State have passed condemnatory resolutions is evidence that the public at large is waking up to the importance of this question from an economic standpoint, and I believe the pressure that will be brought to bear on recalcitrant legislators will be so heavy that the passage of reasonable legislation is assured this winter."

GOVERNOR MAY SPEAK
IN MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

A report from Trenton says that if the plans which are now being formulated by Governor Wilson and his advisers are carried out, the coming campaign in New Jersey will at least equal, if not surpass, the one of a year ago, when Governor Wilson successfully stumped every county in the State.

The governor, according to some of his close friends, is preparing to give up the month of October to a speaking tour, which will include every county in the State. The governor, so it is said, intends to appeal to the people to select a Democratic legislature, on the ground that it is necessary for him to have the members of his party in control of the lawmakers so that he can carry out the promises he has made. Every county will be visited by the governor, from Sussex to Cape May.

Not alone do the plans of the governor call for an aggressive election campaign but, it is understood, the governor is also going to have a prominent part in the primary campaign, too. At least, so far as Hudson and Essex counties are concerned, for his close friends say that he has already made up his mind, to stump Essex county before the primary and appeal to the Democrats to nominate the Wilson candidates for the assembly in preference to the candidates placed in the field by the machine.

In Hudson, too, Governor Wilson is very interested, and he is said to have promised those assemblymen who stood by him last winter and are seeking re-nomination that would go to Hudson and make speeches in their behalf before any day.

Walter Emanuel is accounted the drollest man in literary circles. Once he was calling on an editor and rose abruptly.

"I must not," he remarked, "occupy more of the time of a busy man."

"Not at all," exclaimed the editor. "I am always pleased."

Placidly came the rejoinder, "I was referring to myself."—London M. A. P.

FORMER SHERIFF WOOLEY DEAD.

Former Sheriff Matthias Wooley, for years a Monmouth County Republican leader, died at his home at Long Branch Wednesday morning from chronic stomach trouble, in his 74th year. He had been failing in health for the past year, but did not take to his bed until Thursday of last week.

Mr. Wooley was the son of Montilion Wooley, and was born at Oakhurst. He was postmaster of Long Branch for twenty-one years and served as treasurer of the Board of Education. While serving as a member of the City Council in 1893 he was elected Sheriff by the Republican party of Monmouth.

After his retirement from the Sheriff's office he served two terms as member of the Monmouth County Board of Freeholders, retiring from office the first of the present year.

Mr. Wooley was active in the Methodist Church. He was an official member of the Simpson Memorial Methodist Church and one of its founders. He was twice married and three children and a widow survive.

The funeral services will be held in the Simpson M. E. Church, Long Branch, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

LAWYERS CLEARED
OF MANSLAUGHTER

The grand jury failed to find any indictment against John O. Wilson and Harvey F. Carr, the Camden lawyers who had been charged with manslaughter for the killing of Charles Clifford, a colored man, on the Plainfield-Metuchen road on July 10 last. Judge Booram moved that the $3,000 bail which the lawyers had given the day of the accident, when they were formally charged with manslaughter, be discharged. Judge Daly granted the motion.

The grand jury, it is understood, gave much attention to the case, Clifford, it will be remembered, was walking in the roadway on July 10 when the lawyers, who were on their way from Summit to Camden, came along in Mr. Wilson's car. They claimed that the colored man became confused and jumped in front of their car. On the other hand it has been claimed that the chauffeur became confused and lost control of the car and plunged into the man. Clifford was instantly killed and the auto was dented.

The men at once retained Senator Silzer to look after their interests. It is probable that a civil suit will grow out of the killing of the colored man.

CLAIM LOSS OF $300,000

YEARLY ON AMBOY DIVISION.

On Tuesday at the hearing before the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners the railroads of the State continued their claim that the increase in passenger rates, which were suspended by the state board, were only part of a general movement to comply with the Interstate Commerce law. The roads represented at the hearing were the Pennsylvania, New Jersey Central, Erie, Philadelphia & Reading, Atlantic City and New York, Susquehanna & Western.

Several witnesses were examined by counsel for the companies to substantiate the claim that the new tariffs were merely adopted to comply with the federal law. It was claimed that in some instances the new schedules showed reductions. The new rates have been suspended by the state board until October 1, pending the final determination of the question. No decision was reached on Tuesday.

According to statements made by counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the railroad company loses upward of $300,000 yearly on the passenger traffic of the Amboy division of its road. A schedule of the receipts and expenses was read and it showed the losses.

R. J. DeLong, the division ticket agent of the road, was on the stand and he declared that to points from Trenton there was a general reduction, but on the Amboy division rates were pretty generally increased. When asked as to how the average of the new rate compared with the average under the old system, Mr. DeLong said that it remained about the same, approximately two cents per mile.

True flower scents are obtained in three ways—first, by spreading fresh blossoms upon glass thickly smeared with pure grease, letting them stand in the sun and as they wilt replacing them until the grease is as fragrant as the flowers; second, by repeatedly infusing fresh petals in oil, and, third, by infusing them in ether, which is then distilled to a dry solid.

Total to be raised by taxation, $26,367

The treasurer's report was read and showed balances as follows: City account, $34,861.26; Water account, $679.80.

Mr. O'Connor requested that the city clerk, city treasurer and street committee meet and go over bills charged to street account, and ascertain what amount should be taken therefrom and charged to sewer account. The clerk promised that he would attend to the matter.

Mr. Pearce suggested that the committee on streets meet with city engineer and solicitor at such time as was agreeable to the said committee, and take up the matter of paying Broadway. It was so agreed.

Mr. Pearce reported that the Board of Utilities Commissioners had, extended the time to September 22, for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to file objections to the removal of fence at foot of Main street. He said he would be present with witnesses.

Mr. Stuart stated he did not believe half of the dogs in the city were licensed, and did not consider it just for some to pay licenses and others not, and thought some action should be taken to compel all to pay license for their dogs. The dog warden had a list of a number of people who owned dogs, and thought some arrangements should be made with him in regard to compelling all owners of dogs to obtain licenses.

Mr. Stanton considered all should comply with the ordinance.

After some further discussion, on motion of Mr. Stuart, it was decided that the committee on licenses meet with the city solicitor after the meeting and make arrangements.

Mr. Stanton spoke of the excessive speed of automobiles and trolley cars on Stevens avenue, making it dangerous to children going to school. He thought the law in regard to speed should be enforced.

President Manhattan said the police should get on their job and arrest some one and that would stop the excessive speed.

Mr. O'Connor asked the solicitor if the council could pass an ordinance compelling all gas, water and sewer pipes be laid on Broadway, before pavement was laid.

Mr. Pearce stated it could not be done.

"Occasionally," remarked the visiting Londoner, "I see in some American paper a supposititious colloquy referring to an aeroplane line to Mars. Do you know, that strikes me as being exceedingly funny. Evidently the writer is ignorant of the fact that our atmosphere does not extend upward more than fifty or a hundred miles and becomes more and more tenuous as it nears the limit. He does not seem to know that the air is absolutely necessary in flying an aeroplane. It is highly probable that no aviator ever will ascend to a higher elevation than ten or fifteen miles even if he can endure the excessive cold he will encounter at that altitude. The idea of sailing an aeroplane through the impenetrable ether is ineffectually absurd."—Chicago Tribune.

MAY UNITE TWO RAILROAD DIVISIONS.

Alterations which are being made in the offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Trenton, have been followed by a report that the railroad is about to consolidate under one management the Belvidere division running from Trenton to Manunka Chunk and the old Camden and Amboy Railroad, running diagonally across the State from Camden to South Amboy.

According to the report current here the change is contemplated with the double view of economy in management and the equalization of the trackage in the different divisions of the system. If the plans go through there will be one superintendent for the new division, which will have its headquarters in Trenton. At present the Belvidere headquarters are in Trenton, and those of the Camden and Amboy in Camden.

DEATH OF JOHN SHIMKO.

John Shimko, of Henry street, died about midnight on Wednesday last, aged 33 years. He is survived by a widow and four children. The funeral will take place from the Sacred Heart Church at 8.30 this Saturday morning. J. J. Scully will be funeral director.

Why Do We Bathe?

Because, it is natural. It makes us feel good. Friction brings the blood to the surface of the skin. Oxygen gets into the blood. We tone the system—cleanse the pores—rest the tired nerves.

Modern bathing facilities once a luxury are available today not for two or three hundred dollars but for Six Dollars And One-Half.

Quite reasonable; isn't it? The Allen Portable Bath Apparatus only does all that.

A postal will do—just say, I want the Allen and I'll be on the job.
