FRED I. STULTS LEAVES TOWN SUDDENLY

Fred I. Stults, prominent in fraternal organizations, and agent for the Prudential Insurance Company, left his home early Monday morning without saying good bye to his wife nor child, and has not been heard from since.

His unceremonious disappearance has caused considerable talk about town, but as yet no substantial cause for his action has developed.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heath, of Broadway, were given a surprise party last Saturday night in honor of their birthday. The arrangements were carefully planned by their children and were successfully carried out. The time was spent in social games, and about 11 o'clock all present gathered around the table, which was beautifully decorated, and bountifully laden with refreshments, and regaled the "inner man." The house decorations were very pretty. Mr. and Mrs. Heath received a number of handsome gifts. About 12 o'clock, the guests departed for their homes, wishing that Mr. and Mrs. Heath may enjoy many more happy birthdays.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Casper Boehr and son, Casper; Miss Martha Bosson, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bosson and daughter, Dorothy, of Sayreville; Mrs. Earle Smock, Mrs. Frank Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus M. Hamilton and children, Adda and Harold; Miss Helen Smock, Miss Nellie Fisher, the Misses Bertha and Lydia Heath, and Charles Heath, of this city.

GOOD FISHING SUNDAY.

Several fishing parties which went out from Morgan on Sunday had fairly good luck. Dr. Robinson, Benjie Robinson, William O'Donnell and Arthur Van Ness caught twelve fine weak fish. Gus Wagner and Joe Hauck landed six, and Fred Winkler and Joseph Snyder caught eight. All were good sized and the catches were considered good in comparison with the fishing during the rest of the season.

ORNAMENT FOR VACANT CORNER

The placing of the organ in one corner of the Methodist Episcopal Church, left the opposite corner vacant and the church artist is preparing an ornament for it which he hopes to have in place on Sunday.

Post Cards of local views one cent each. Birthday, Comic and Pennant Post Cards also. Geo. W. Jaques' store.

MANY INSPECT NEW FACTORY

Upon Invitation From E. Kleiner & Co. People Are Given Opportunity to Visit Their New Building and Incidentally Watch the Process of Manufacturing Cigars.

Following the announcement made in last week's Citizen by E. Kleiner & Co., many local people visited their new cigar factory, which is located at the corner of David and Feltus streets.

They were pleasantly received by S. Weitzen, the manager of the local branch, who conducted them through the bright and airy building, explained the different processes of manufacture and presented the men with one of their "La Pannosa" cigars.

The factory, which has just recently been completed, is a large two-story brick structure. It is roomy, well lighted and ventilated, and makes a very pleasant place in which to work. When the building was being put up provision for another story was made and as soon as the business warrants another floor will be added. The large basement is used as a stock room and is piled high with cases of tobacco. This factory is a branch, the main plant being in New York City.

All the cigars turned out from this plant are hand-made and from well-selected stock. At present they employ 110 girls and several men and boys. The weekly output is between 100,000 and 120,000 cigars.

South Amboy Was Well Represented

The meeting of the Sunday School Association at St. John's Church, Seavaren, on Saturday, was a success in every way. South Amboy was well represented, there being twenty teachers present.

The addresses were excellent and so was the lunch.

The next meeting will be in November at Christ Church, New Brunswick.

M. E. CHURCH BEING PAINTED.

The painters are busy painting the wood work on the outside of the Methodist Episcopal Church on John street. The colors are the same as the parsonage and the property will look very nice when the work is completed. The Primary Department room is also being decorated.

MRS. ELIZABETH LEONARD.

Elizabeth, wife of John Leonard, departed this life on Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Downs, of Stockton street, after a lingering illness from infirmities of old age. She had been a resident of this city a long time, and for many years resided on Stevens avenue, near John street. Besides a husband and daughter, two sons, John and Philip, survive her.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock this Saturday morning from St. Mary's Church. Stillwell & Mason will have charge of funeral arrangements.

CHRIST CHURCH NEWS.

This Sunday will be observed as our Autumnal Rally Day in the Sunday school, and also in the church. It is hoped that every scholar will be on hand at the school, and that there will be large congregations in church. Instructions to the candidates for Confirmation is given in the church, every Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

No complaints were made before Police Justice Birmingham in the city the past week.

WAS HONORED GUEST AT NAVY BANQUET

Miss Bessie Wilson, of this city, was among the guests present at a ball and banquet tendered by the officers of the U. S. Battleship Minnesota on Friday night to Captain Clark, who is to retire from the ship for shore duty. The ball was held in Lulu Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, 768 people being present. Miss Wilson had the honor of leading the march, being escorted by Capt. Clark, who were followed as seconds by Chief Yeoman Edwin Hullt escorting Mrs. Clark. Both Miss Wilson and Mrs. Clark were presented with beautiful bouquets of flowers. Miss Wilson wore a gown of pink messaline over blue. Among the speakers at the banquet was Capt. Clark, who expressed his appreciation and thanks for the honor conferred upon him, which was responded to by Chief Yeoman Hullt, president of the committee in charge of the reception, who spoke of the esteem in which the captain was held by officers and sailors of the ship. The event was a great success, and will long be remembered by the hundreds of guests present.

PEOPLE FROM THIS CITY WITNESS AVIATOR'S DEATH.

Many people from this city in attendance at the Inter-State Fair grounds, Trenton, on Thursday, saw Charles F. Walsh, an aviator, dashed to his death from a height of 2,000 feet. Although alive when he struck the earth, the man lived but three minutes.

Walsh, who has been thrilling the fair crowds all week by his daring flights in his Curtiss biplane and races with an automobile, soared skyward for about 2,500 feet, and then, when directly in front of the grand stand, attempted a spiral glide—doubtless the most hazardous of aerial feats. When he had come down perhaps five hundred feet one of the wings of his craft collapsed, and machine and man began somersaulting to earth.

There was a moment of breathless silent horror among the five thousand spectators who saw the accident. Then, as the people realized what had happened, there was a rush for the spot where Walsh fell. Harry B. Brown, of Mineola, L. I., another aviator, found Walsh still breathing, he says, but terribly crushed. An ambulance was summoned and physicians were rushed to the place, but the victim was beyond aid.

His body had scarcely been removed from the wreckage when the mob of men, women and children began fighting desperately for relics of the tragedy, and soon nothing was left of the air craft but the engine and other metal parts.

PRESBYTERIAN ITEMS.

We will hold our Fall rally this coming Sunday, October 6th, beginning with the morning service. Just remember it is a communion service and always brings a rally thought with it. The other services will be special. We want every member present. Will you not make an effort to come? Come and get a blessing.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8 and 9, the Sunday school will hold its First Annual Fair and Supper. By that time the Lecture room will be completed and will be open for inspection. If you are interested in the repairs come and inspect them. The fair and supper will speak for itself. Admission free. Tickets for supper, 25 cents. Supper served from 5 to 10 p. m. Here you will find an opportunity to purchase a useful Christmas present for your friend. This will be the Sunday school fair. The Ladies' Aid Society announced several months ago that they will hold a fair and supper on November 12th and 13th. Remember these dates because something fine is coming.

CHURCH READY TO PAVE STREET

With the City Hall, school grounds and church property on John street strangers are asking why the street is not paved. The fault, however, does not lie with the Methodist Episcopal Church as they circulated a petition, secured more than enough signers, and presented it to Council some years ago but for some reason it was buried. The travel on this street certainly warrants paving of not only sidewalks but road as well.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Education takes place this, Friday, evening, in School No. 1.

M. P. CHURCH NOTES

There is some talk of changing the time of meeting of the Junior C. E. meetings on account of the sessions of the week-day school.

The offering last Sunday evening added to the collections for the annual conference. Would be pleased to receive names and amounts to the sustentation fund.

A surprise was tendered Mrs. Emma Mussick, of Sayreville, when members of the Ladies' Aid Society visited her last Thursday. A social is to be taken there sometime in October.

Next Sunday is the closing one of this conference year. Quarterly meeting in the morning. Let all members make an effort to be present at the Love Feast and Communion service.

The C. E. meeting at 7 o'clock found quite a turnout at the service which was successfully led by Miss Ella Jones, president of the society. The service was conducted and participated in in an educative and interesting way.

A party of ladies of the church, with others of their families, accompanied Mrs. Joseph Martain on a visit to Mother Martin's at Hightstown last Friday. Mother Martin is always a welcome visitor to South Amboy and her son Joseph's home.

Mr. P. A. Stults, teacher of the Young Men's Bible Class, spoke to the school concerning the oyster supper planned for some time ago by his class, and distributed some tickets for October 23. This class is doing good for the parsonage fund as well as the others. Help them.

Services with more than the ordinary interest were held last Sunday, one of them being the review of the quarter's lessons in the Sunday school. Superintendent H. Bloodgood had selected the speakers on certain lessons from among the teachers and all did themselves and the lessons credit with their reviews. The remarks were interspersed with singing.

The song service last Sunday evening resolved itself into the monthly service of Christian song. Quite a number were present to enjoy the singing which was of a high order. Many were the expressions of delight and praise for this very helpful service. The pastor conducted the service and gave a history of some of the hymns that were sung. This is a popular service and is looked for at the month's end.

In closing the first year of this present pastorate the pastor wishes to express his gratitude, first to God, next to the members of the church and then to the many friends who have so nobly and at such sacrifice made his stay pleasant and in the provision they have made for the pastor and family in the erection of a beautiful parsonage to which all are welcome. Surely it has been a year far exceeding the expectation of the most optimistic. We trust the past will be an incentive to the future.

After a very interesting devotional service last Thursday evening the annual meeting of the church was held. Mr. Howard Bloodgood was elected chairman and C. H. Berrien secretary. The old board of trustees that has rendered such efficient service the past year were unanimously re-elected for the coming year. J. F. Fulton was re-elected as class leader and H. Bloodgood was elected delegate to the Annual Conference, and C. H. Berrien, alternate. Each and every selection was unanimous. The delegates were properly instructed as to the pulpit supply the coming year.

Burma's Natural Magnet.

There is a huge natural magnet in upper Burma, India, covered with great blocks of iron ore, which travelers notice has a tremendous attraction which renders compasses and watches useless.

SAVED BY HIS WIFE.

She's a wise woman who knows just what to do when her husband's life is in danger, but Mrs. R. J. Flint, Braintree, Vt., is of that kind. "She insisted on my using Dr. King's New Discovery," writes Mr. F., "for a dreadful cough, when I was so weak my friends all thought I had only a short time to live, and it completely cured me." A quick cure for coughs, and colds. It is the most safe and reliable medicine for many throat and lung troubles—grip, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, tonsillitis, hemorrhages. A trial will convince you. 50 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Boy is Run Over by Auto.

Bernard Rosenfield, five years old, of 54 Westfield avenue, Elizabeth, while playing at 11:30 o'clock Monday morning in front of his home, ran out into the street directly in front of an approaching automobile. He was run over and his right thigh was crushed. Two men, occupants of the car, stopped at once, picked up the little fellow, put his parents in the car with him and sped to the nearest hospital. As it was obviously an accident, no arrests were made.

Haines, employed by Andrew Rappenecker, husband of the woman. Mr. Rappenecker is auditor for the firm of Brainard Armstrong & Co., silk manufacturers. ## Official Vote of Middlesex County.

The official returns of the preferential election for United States Senator in Middlesex County, as tabulated at the county clerk's office, New Brunswick, show that William Hughes carried the county by a majority of 1,357 over James Smith, Jr., polling 3,125 to Smith's 1,168. Frank McDermitt had a following in almost every polling place in the county, but his vote was limited to one or two votes in each district, his total number of votes being 127. Though Judge Wescott withdrew from the contest he received 61 votes as a compliment from his admirers in the county. The returns for Congressman show that Congressman Thomas J. Scully, who had no opposition, received 4,365 votes. In the Republican contest for Congressman, Editor B. F. S. Brown received 345 more votes than William W. Ramsay, who was supposed to have the support of the Republican machine. The vote was: Brown, 1,120; Ramsay, 775. The total Democratic vote cast was 5,291 and 384 rejected. The Republican vote was 2,582 and 192 rejected. Thus about seven per cent. of the voters did not properly prepare their ballots.

Death of Rev. Dr. O'Hanlon.

Rev. Dr. Thomas O'Hanlon, retired, died at Ocean Grove, Monday night at his home, in Mt. Hermon Way. He was eighty-one years old, a member of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association, and had been out of the ministry twelve years. He had been ill for some time and was unconscious three days before he died. For more than thirty years Dr. O'Hanlon was president of Pennington Seminary, in which period more than 600 students in the institution were educated to the ministry. He was widely known in the New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Church. When the new alumni gymnasium of Pennington Seminary was opened last May, the entrance porch and steps were dedicated as "the Thomas O'Hanlon Porch and Steps." Dr. O'Hanlon was able to make the journey across the State to attend the exercises. Dr. O'Hanlon was one of the founders of the Summer Bible Class at Ocean Grove, in 1877. He was its leader continuously for more than a quarter of a century, until in 1903, when he went to California for a time. In 1911 he resumed his place as leader. For many years the minister preached what he called a "Wash-Day Sermon," at the annual campmeeting. This sermon was always given on the first Monday of the extra services. At one time Dr. O'Hanlon assailed the United States Constitution as "godless," and declared that the trend of secular education was to exclude God. He said school teachers should pray with their pupils and read the Bible to them. Born in 1831 near Freehold, Dr. O'Hanlon began to study for the ministry when a young man. He entered the New Jersey Conference in 1853, and occupied pulpits in Mt. Zion, Eatontown, Titusville, Milltown, Lambertville and Trenton. He studied in Rutgers and later obtained his degrees in Princeton. Besides his widow, Dr. O'Hanlon is survived by five daughters and three sons. They are: Miss Cassie O'Hanlon, of Ocean Grove; Thomas O'Hanlon, Thornley O'Hanlon, Professor John O'Hanlon, Mrs. Martha Platt and Miss Laura O'Hanlon, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mrs. L. R. Ward, of Jersey City; and Mrs. F. M. Alford, of Hartford, Conn.

Class Sessions Start At Stevens.

Class sessions began at Stevens Institute, Hoboken, on Monday, although the opening ceremonies, including the annual cane rush, were held Friday. In his opening address President Humphries announced that during the coming year, and as long as he holds office, he will not tolerate hazing. He will, however, permit the annual sophomore-freshman rushes. The Stevens scholarship has been equally divided between Henry J. Baack, of Hoboken, and James A. Conlogue, of this city, as they both received the same average in their entrance examinations. George L. Mitchell, '11, has been appointed, temporarily, to take the place of Louis A. Belding, '12, who was made assistant in the department of electrical engineering, but is not able to take up his duties owing to illness.

Old Pleasure Bay House Sold.

Horse Bites off Girl's Finger.

At Trenton on Monday a horse bit off the index finger of a little girl's right hand. The victim, Genevieve S. Pettit, of 134 South Stockton street, was holding some hay close to the horse's mouth, when a boy pushed her hand upward just as the animal's teeth closed on the food, and incidentally, the child's finger.

Wall to Protect Railroad.

A concrete wall several feet high and several feet thick and several hundred yards long is under construction along the tracks of the government railroad leading from Highlands to the Sandy Hook proving grounds. For years past on either side of the tracks there rocks have been placed as protection for the railroad. This method is unsatisfactory, as the rocks are washed away by the sea.

Diver Hurt At Fair May Die.

While making his first 100-foot dive at the Interstate Fair grounds, Trenton, Monday afternoon, William Shaw, of Rochester, N. Y., known as Dada, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured, and besides had a narrow escape from being drowned. The diver is now confined to the McKinley Hospital, suffering from shock and cardiac asthma. The accident was due to Shaw making too straight a dive from the high platform in front of the grandstand. It was the first time he had made a dive of 100 feet and the great distance evidently puzzled him in making his descent.

Holy Name Society to Parade.

Fully five thousand members of the society are expected to participate in the demonstration to be held at Plainfield next Sunday afternoon by the Holy Name societies of Union County and vicinity. ## Happy Father is Jailed.

Paul Bond, of Perth Amboy, was committed to the county jail Tuesday morning on a charge of malicious mischief, preferred by Mrs. Julian Jensen, a neighbor in Herbert street. Bond is the father of a boy less than two days old. His celebration of the addition to the family resumed such proportions that Mrs. Jensen interfered in the interest of the mother and baby.

Large Enrolment at College.

The rebuilt St. Mary's College on the southern slope of the Watchung Mountain at Plainfield, was reopened for the fall and winter term on Tuesday. The enrolment is the largest in the institution's history. These compose the new faculty: Rev. William H. Miller, Latin and Greek; Rev. John A. Baldwin, religion and philosophy; Rev. John Alfred Brewster, history and economics; Mme. Josephine Reville, French and German; Miss Louise Emery Tucker, physiology and education; Morris Stoehr, science; Henry Barker, physical exercise; Dr. J. J. Savitz, English and methods. Dr. Albert B. Meredith, assistant commissioner of education, will be the special lecturer.

Thames Watermen.

The watermen and lightermen of London can trace their occupation back to a very remote past. In a statute of Henry VIII., passed in 1514, for regulating their fares, it is recorded "that it has been a laudable custom and usage time out of mind to use the river in barge or wherry boat." And the annals of the Watermen's company give an interesting account of a dispute as far back as 1293 concerning the charge for the conveyance of passengers from Gravesend to London. The regular fare was one-half penny for each person, but some unscrupulous boatmen charged passengers a penny. So the offenders were taken by the sheriff before the justices of assize, who admonished them and made each waterman give a bond of 40 shillings for future good behavior.—London Graphic.

Where He Balked.

"He has broken with her?" "So I have heard." "I hear that he told her he was unworthy of her." "Pshaw; all lovers tell their sweethearts that!" "I know. But she asked him to put it in writing and sign it in the presence of witnesses."—Atlanta Constitution.

Good Advice.

"The man I marry," she said, "must think I am the only girl in the world." "Don't worry about that," her married friend replied. "He will think it, all right. Just put in your time trying to find out how to make him keep on thinking it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Nonsense of Love

It Is the Babyhood of Married Life

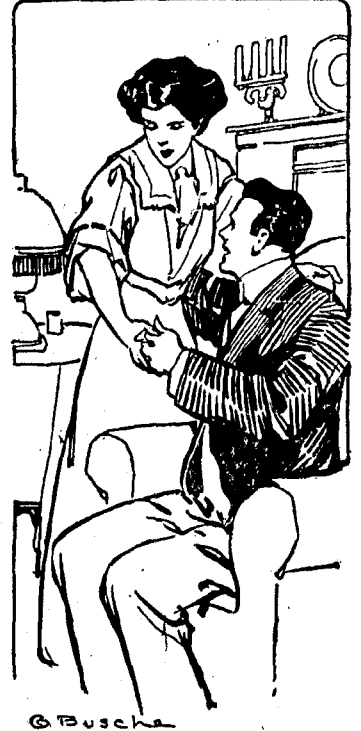

By EDITH CARTRIGHT

They had lived in neighboring places from childhood. She was high strung, he self composed. Notwithstanding her propensity to explode easily they got on very well till they became engaged; then she began to doubt whether she loved him well enough to marry him. Though he was not an impassioned lover, he seemed so well satisfied with the prospect of possessing her that she did not trouble herself in the slightest about his love for her. She was all the while thinking about herself. Her idea of love was that it was a condition which changed one's nature completely, just as it has been claimed a severe fever will give one a new system—whatever that means. Therefore she was continually looking for this newborn something called love. At one time she would think she felt it, at another time doubted that she did and still another was sure that she did not.

Her lover did not trouble himself as to how he felt. She and he had been companionable for years, and he considered it very natural that they should continue their intimacy by entering into the bonds of matrimony. He had been used to giving her a free rein and as soon as they became engaged found her much more skittish than she had been before. Nevertheless her doubts, as she called them, caused him some anxiety lest she work herself up to a condition in which she would do something foolish. She might break the engagement, at least temporarily; the fact would become known, and their affairs would be discussed by others.

What he feared at last came to pass. One day she sent for him, and when he appeared she said to him:

"You know, Will, I have often told you that there was a question in my mind as to whether I love you well enough to marry you. For a week I have been subjecting my feelings to a rigid examination.

"What kind of a process is that?" he interrupted.

"Why, I have been looking within myself with a view to determining—"

"How do you look within yourself? Do you use some kind of a glass?"

"How absurd! I have simply thought about you with a view to determining by my feelings whether—"

"I see—whether you want to marry me or not."

"Just so."

"Well, go on."

His matter of fact way of receiving the important information she intended to impart did not please her. Nevertheless she controlled an impulse to say something spiteful. His coolness only caused her to make the announcement more decidedly.

"After a great deal of thought and testing my feelings in various ways I have come to the conclusion that the interest I have in you is merely friendship. It is not genuine love."

"I don't quite understand. You will aid me to do so by telling me what you consider love to be—I mean love between the sexes."

"What I consider love to be?" she repeated thoughtfully. "Why, love is a spiritual condition whereby we are drawn forcibly to another person."

"Affects the heart?"

"Certainly! It pertains exclusively to the heart."

"Appeals to the soul?"

"Of course. It is between two souls."

"Affects our sympathies?"

"It is entirely a matter of sympathy."

"How about the liver?"

She gave him one look of concentrated scorn and swept out of the room. He waited awhile for her to return, but since she did not he took up a book and began to read. When the shock of his brutality, as she considered it, had worn off it occurred to her that she had better return and finish his dismissal. Coming into the room, retaining the severe look she had worn when she left it, she said:

"If anything was needed to convince me that you and I are entirely unfitted for each other it was the discovery that you have no sentiment whatever, and I do not believe you are capable of feeling what I consider love to be. No one in love would have reduced it to an absurdity."

"Perhaps you are right," he replied, laying down the book. "I'm inclined to be matter of fact. I don't think I have any more sentiment in me than a jellyfish. At any rate I must make the best of what you have told me. The only thing that remains for us to do is to settle the manner of our announcing to the world that we have made a mistake."

"That you have made a mistake, you mean?"

"Yes, I am perfectly content to continue to be friends. It was you who began the matter of placing our relationship on another basis."

"Will you kindly explain how it could have got on to another basis except through me? I was not aware that girls offered love and marriage."

"I didn't send for you to explain things, but to make an announcement."

"Very well. Will you make another announcement to the world that you have broken our engagement?"

"I suppose it will be my part to do so."

"When?"

She thought a moment before replying to this, then answered by a question:

"Are you in a hurry?"

"Not at all, but I don't see how we are to conduct ourselves before our friends and acquaintances in the meanwhile. We can't act like an engaged couple when we're not engaged."

"When would you prefer to have me announce the break between us?"

"I think it had better be done at once. We are to dine tomorrow evening at my aunt's, she having kindly shown her approval of our engagement by the invitation. It will be not only embarrassing to partake of her bounty under the circumstances, but we'll not be treating her fairly. Even if she knows that we are disengaged we had better not dine together with her as parted lovers."

At this the lady was much disconcerted. She made no reply. She was thinking hard.

"I don't see," she said presently, "how we can be parted lovers when there has never been any love on your side."

"Well, I like that! I thought you sent for me to tell me that there is none on your side."

"You are very illogical, or, rather, you descend to sophistry. Haven't you proved that you are incapable of love by speaking of it contemptuously?"

"It seems to me we are getting off the subject. It is for us to determine what we shall do about the announcement of the break between us."

"Well?"

"Owing to my aunt's invitation, it seems to me that she at least should be told at once."

"You are in a terrible hurry."

"Not at all. I simply desire to avoid embarrassment, besides treating my aunt badly."

"Well, since you have ceased to love me—"

"Nonsense!"

"Do you mean that you feel for me that—"

"Sentimental nonsense you call love? Of course I do. Lovers are nothing but children when the fit is on them. But it doesn't last. Many a girl has lost a good husband and made an old maid of herself by examining her feelings as you have done. Such feelings are too volatile to stand such tests, and they are after all simply preliminary. Everything is a development or decay. Love is sometimes suddenly born, but it has its babyhood, its childhood, its youth. If it lives through the diseases common to these it passes on to the main part of its life, marriage, which taken altogether is an entirely different love from that which in the beginning seems to be all of it. The love of a couple who have lived long together does not appeal to the imagination as the love of young lovers."

"For heaven's sake don't get back to what it appeals to, or you will again show that brutality which so horrified me. Indeed, when I think of it, I've a mind to—"

"Don't."

He drew her to him and put an arm around her waist.

"After all," he said, "perhaps we'd better not say anything to my aunt or any one else about a break—we might regret it."

"There's no need to speak of it if you're sure of yourself."

"How sure of myself?"

"That you love me well enough to marry me."

"Why I thought you were the one who doubted yourself?"

"Not at all. It was this way: I couldn't understand how so matter of fact a man could love anybody. I couldn't love you if you didn't love me, could I?"

"Why, of course you couldn't."

There was that stillness which comes between two lovers when they feel too deep for utterance, though it was broken by certain sounds produced by a contact of lips.

"Are you sure you won't have a relapse as to your feelings?" he asked.

"Yes. Are you sure you won't have more of them?"

"I haven't had one yet."

"Neither have I—I only thought I had."

"Tell me you love me."

"I have told you so a thousand times."

"Well, tell me ten thousand times."

PROMINENT SPEAKERS TO TOUR JERSEY FOR WILSON

Efforts such as have not been made in years by the Democratic party will be made within the month until election day to insure success for the candidates for Representative in Congress and to obtain control of the next State Senate. This was announced Thursday when the Democratic nominees for Congress gathered at the headquarters of the State Democratic committee, at Trenton, for a conference.

Besides the nominees there were present State Chairman Edward E. Grosscup, United States Senator Jas. E. Martine and Judge William Hughes, candidate to succeed United States Senator Frank O. Briggs. Mr. Grosscup made an announcement that he had arranged with the National Democratic committee to bring into New Jersey the most notable Democratic orators in the country.

These will include Governor Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, candidate for Vice-President; Speaker Champ Clark, House Leader Oscar W. Underwood, and Governor William N. Mann, of Virginia, with others promised. Mr. Underwood will spend three days in the State.

The conference was called by Mr. Grosscup with the idea of making preliminary arrangements for the times and places that the invaders will fire their political ammunition. All that can be done will be done to have New Jersey represented in the next House by a solid delegation of twelve Democrats.

Emphasis is being laid upon the campaign in behalf of the six Senatorial candidates in the hope of placing the Senate in Democratic control. The special object is to have a Democrat as President of the Senate, so that a member of his own party will take the place of Governor Wilson if the latter should be elected President—an expectation in which Mr. Grosscup and the other Democratic leaders seem to be fully confident.

If the Senate is in Democratic control when the Legislature convenes, Governor Wilson will be able to resign as State Executive immediately or shortly after the upper house organizes. If the Republicans should continue in control of the Senate, the Governor, if elected President, may remain in his present position until March 3, the day before his inauguration at Washington.

To secure control of the upper chamber, the Democrats will have to elect four out of the six Senators to be chosen. The new Senators are to come from Sussex, Hunterdon, Middlesex, Passaic, Burlington, and Cape May counties. The first three were represented by the Democrats last winter, and the latter by Republicans.

The Democratic leaders believe they will be able to retain the three they have held heretofore, and hope is strong that they will be able to get the other three on account of the emigration of Republicans into the Progressive party. The Progressives will have candidates in all the counties, and they expect to receive a large vote.

Two Good Reasons.
"So you want me to raise your salary?" said the stern employer. "Can you give me but two good reasons even why I should do so?"
"Yes, sir," answered the meek employee sadly—"twins!"

A POSSIBLE BASEBALL FEAT.

Pitcher Might Strike Out Fifty-four Men in One Game.

So frequently has the question "Is it possible for a pitcher to be credited with more than three strikeouts in an inning?" been addressed to the sporting editor that an extended calculation was recently made as to the number of strikeouts a pitcher could score in a game and shut out the opposing team. This was suggested by a note that appeared reading, "What is the largest number of strikeouts with which a pitcher can be credited in any game of nine innings and at the same time score a shutout?" The answer was "Fifty-four," which answer is correct. To this a superannuated alleged expert, a man who made himself deaf knocking others, came back to this effect:

"Since we have followed baseball we have yet to see the time when a pitcher can strike out 'fifty-four' players. Twenty-seven strikeouts are as much as 'a' pitcher can do in any game of baseball in this country. At least we have not heard of any ruling which changes the number of outs required for one inning from three to six."

Here's the explanation: It will have to be admitted that twenty-seven put-outs are all that are legally required to retire an opponent in nine innings, but that isn't the proposition. Under the scoring rules that obtain in these modern days of baseball, a pitcher is credited with a strikeout even if the catcher misses the third strike.

In other words, errors by the catcher could fill the bases, while at the same time the pitcher would be credited with a strikeout against each batter. By retiring three other batters on strikes, with the catcher squeezing the ball real hard in each instance, the pitcher would be credited with six strikeouts to the inning. Six times nine is said to make fifty-four.—New York World.

"SONG OF THE SHIRT."

It Was the Most Popular Thing Tom Hood Ever Wrote.

During his last illness Tom Hood in an idle moment made an imaginative sketch of his own tombstone. He drew himself reclining at full length on a thick slab of stone, on the edge of which in large capitals he wrote, "He Sang the 'Song of the Shirt.'" This was the only inscription, and, as he himself has said, Tom Hood needs no other.

How much he felt and prided himself upon the song by which he became known and loved by millions is shown by this and the following fact: "If I were ennobled these are the arms I should adopt," said he one day, showing a rough vignette to a friend. The sketch contained a very beautiful and pathetic idea. It represented a heart pierced by a needle threaded with silver tears, and beneath was the motto he had inscribed on the imaginary tombstone.

"The Song of the Shirt" appeared in the Christmas number of the fifth volume of Punch. It was unsigned, but every paper in the land quoted it, and it speedily became the talk of the day. Hood himself did not think it very remarkable, but Mrs. Hood had said to him as she folded it for press: "Now, mind, Hood, mark my words, this will tell wonderfully. It is one of the best things you ever did."

Mrs. Hood was right. The song was translated into French, German and Italian. It was printed on cheap cotton handkerchiefs and parodied times without number.

Fishing For Fish.

Many people there are who delight in just fishing for fish. Such a one was John Quincy Adams. The story was told by one of his clients, whose case was to be tried on a certain morning, that he could not get his counsel to leave his fishing boat except long enough to write a note to the judge which read: "Dear Judge—For the sake of old Izaak Walton please continue my case until Friday. The smelt are biting, and I can't leave." And the judge, having read the note, announced to the court, "Mr. Adams is detained on important business."—Christian Herald.

Rude Awakening.

"You're looking mighty sour. What's the matter? Honey-moon over?"
"I guess so."
"How'd that happen?"
"Oh, we were drifting along down life's enchanted stream, as the poet tells about, and just as I was thinking I should like to drift on and on with her forever she up and told me that she had got to have some money."—Houston Post.

Insulted Him.

Mrs. Highupp—John, I was never so angry in my life as this afternoon, when that lecturer at our club deliberately insulted you. Mr. Highupp—Insulted me? Mrs. Highupp—Yes; he referred to the railroad of which you are president as a common carrier.—New York Times.

An Obstacle.

"I hear Storsky's daughter is going to marry a nobleman."
"No, she is not. Her father had him investigated by a surety company and on their report refused to invest in him, as there was a defect in his title."—Baltimore American.

The Reason.

Gibbs—Stout people, they say, are rarely guilty of meanness or crime. Dibbs—Well, you see, it's so difficult for them to stoop to anything low.—Boston Transcript.

The Magic of a Siphon.
When a pipe shaped like the inverted letter U, in which the arms are of equal length, is filled with water and each end of the pipe is put into a separate vessel full of water "the downward pull," or weight, of the liquid in each of the two arms will balance the other, and if the water is at the same level in the two vessels it will remain at that level in both vessels. But if the level of the water in one vessel is lower than in the other, since the two vessels are connected with a pipe full of water, the water will run down from the higher level to the lower. This constitutes what is called a siphon. A siphon itself has no more magic about it than a pencil has when it falls or than any other similar phenomenon in nature, yet some of the siphon's manifestations seem to be not only magical, but almost incredible.—St. Nicholas.

Forgery in Ancient Greece.

Dactyl is Greek for finger, and from this the word dactylography, to apply to a knowledge of finger rings, has been accepted, though evidently a misfit. Rings as signets hark back to ancient Egypt, from which country they probably came to Greece. Solon, the Greek lawgiver, who died 558 years before the Christian era, enacted a law that no engraver or cutter of signet rings should keep by him the impression of any ring he had cut. As these rings were used to sign documents of various kinds, this law was intended to prevent fraud and forgery.

Constable Patrick McCabe is very busy these days looking up delinquents on personal taxes. Notwithstanding only a part of the curb and flag have been laid on David street, the improvement is already noticeable, and is being favorably commented upon. Now if the property owners could see their way to have the street paved, they would bring such results as would please them forever afterwards, and at the same time have a most attractive street. Property values would be greatly enhanced thereby.

The breaking of a cable at coal dumper No. 1, Thursday afternoon caused the chute to drop on the barge D. Wright, which was being loaded. The combing of the boat was considerably damaged. It is stated that the captain of the vessel was knocked overboard. The attendant in the house on the chute was considerably shaken up. Fortunately the chute was very low at the time, which lessened the force of the fall.

CONSULS IN THE MAKING.

How Applications Are Made and the Examinations That Follow.

Consuls are appointed by the president, with the advice and consent of the senate. A candidate desiring appointment to the consular service makes application for such appointment through the secretary of state on a form furnished by the state department. From among these applicants the president designates to take an examination those candidates who seem properly qualified for the service and who are not from states which already have more than their share of appointments in the service, each state, so far as possible, being allowed appointments proportioned on the basis of population.

Naturally if the service needs men and but few candidates present themselves from states that are underrepresented some candidates from states overrepresented must also be designated for the examination. In making these designations politics is given no consideration, the service being now upon a strictly nonpartisan basis.

Then when the set time arrives the candidate presents himself at Washington and takes a written examination in international, maritime and commercial law, political and commercial geography, arithmetic, modern languages, French, German or Spanish; the natural, industrial and commercial resources and commerce of the United States, political economy, American history, government and institutions, and the modern history (since 1850) of Europe, South America and the far east.

To determine a candidate's business ability, alertness, general contemporary information and natural fitness for the service, including moral, mental and physical qualifications, character, address and general education and good command of English, he then takes an oral examination. All those candidates who receive a total mark of 80 per cent are then pronounced qualified for appointment, and their names go on the list of eligibles from which future appointments are made. —Robert D. Heintz in Leslie's.

WEEKLY LETTER TO FARMERS.

(By F. R. Stevens, Agriculturist, Lehigh Valley Railroad.)

The bulk of the produce news in the daily papers last week dealt with the high price of beef, and retail dealers all over the United States have been quoting the price which they pay for beef on the hoof, in comparison with the prices paid three and five years ago. The increase is something to set a man thinking. The dealers say that the high price is due to the scarcity of live cattle, and in this I am inclined to think they are right.

Free range in West has practically disappeared. It is true that there are some Government ranges, but even there the Government charges the rangers a fixed price per year on each head of cattle. This, together with the fact that much of the land formerly used as range is now used for farming land, lessens materially the amount of beef that can be grown in the West. Add to this the fact that the consumption of beef both at home and abroad, has materially increased, and we can see some reason for the increase in price.

The East can help in this situation much more than it has. We have plenty of land here that will grow one hundred bushels of corn to the acre, land which, with fair improvements, may be purchased for from twenty to thirty dollars an acre. This land, as a rule, is good producing land lying back from the railroad farther than the average dairy farmer wants to go, but it is entirely suitable for beef stock. Besides corn it will grow oats, sorghum, soy beans and vetch. With some manure, it will grow good clover. It is, as a rule, a little more hilly than the land in the West which is now devoted to the growing of fodder for cows, but the difference in freight rates between the East and the West will be more than the difference of the expense of working the land.

During the past year I have seen some indications of a tendency to run the beef stock. One or two herds of distinctively beef type cattle have appeared. I have seen some beef Shorthorns and some Angus. If we are going to raise beef stock in the East we should certainly start with some of the distinctively beef breeds—with the one exception that we should put a little fat on some of those robber cows in the dairies and let them go, if possible, for ten cents a pound. I think you will find that you will have more success in getting fat on these cows than you have had in getting milk from them.

RAILROAD EMPLOYMENT
HEALTHIER AND SAFER

Employment on the Pennsylvania Railroad has become increasingly healthy and safe in the past ten years. This is shown in morbidity, mortality and casualty statistics which the Pennsylvania sent on Monday to Colonel W. C. Gorgas, Chief Sanitary Engineer of the Panama Canal Zone.

The number of accidents per annum per thousand Pennsylvania Railroad employees has decreased from 11 in 1902 to 8.3 in 1911. Accidental deaths per thousand employees decreased from 4.8 to 1.9—more than sixty per cent. This table gives the statistics since 1902:

Year	Disability	Deaths
1902	11	4.8
1905	9.5	4.4
1908	9.1	1.8
1911	8.3	1.8

The number of cases of illness among Pennsylvania Railroad employees was 35.4 per 1,000 employees in 1902, and in 1911 it had dropped to 29.2. Deaths from sickness were 8.5 per 1,000 employees in 1902 and 7.5 in 1911. During the intervening years there was a steady decrease in the number of cases per 1,000 employees.

Pennsylvania Railroad officers point to the above statistics as reflecting the long years of service of its employees. It has more than 2,000 active employees who have been on the railroad's pay roll more than forty years, and over 1,500 men who served 40 years or more and are now receiving pensions from the Company.

The records of the railroads show that it has more than 4,000 active employees between the ages of sixty and seventy years. There are on the pay roll or pension list of the Pennsylvania Railroad nearly 500 men who have been with the road over fifty years.

OVER A PRECIPICE.

Nerve Racking Experience of a Hunter in the Tyrol.

BETWEEN HEAVEN AND EARTH.

Perils the Daring Adventurer Braved to Rob a Golden Eagle's Nest of its Young, and the Anxious Hours He Spent Dangling in Terror in Mid Air.

An Englishman who was spending his vacation in the Tyrol learned that a pair of golden eagles were ravaging the valleys of poultry and small game and found that they had their aerie on a certain mountainside. Being of an adventurous disposition he obtained the services of several woodcutters and started out before dawn determined to capture the young eagle that was believed to be in the nest.

When the party ascended the mountain and looked over the edge of the perpendicular cliff they could see a ledge about 100 feet below them. One of the party remained at the top while the others lowered themselves to the ledge by means of a rope.

Here they fastened a fifty fathom half inch rope to the stump of a tree, fixed a block of wood against the edge of the cliff for the rope to run over, fastened an iron hook in the crevice of the rocks and prepared to lower the Englishman to the aerie, which they could now see far below.

A stout leather belt was fastened round his waist, with an iron ring in front, through which the rope passed. To the end of the rope a strong piece of wood was knotted, and the Englishman sent himself astride it.

With a rifle on his back, a revolver in his pocket, a big knife in his belt and a long pole in his hands he was ready to start. Five men took hold of the rope, while two others lay flat upon the rocks, rifles in hand, looking over the edge of the cliff. If the old birds should attack the intruder his life would probably depend upon those two rifles.

The descent lasted ten or fifteen minutes. Then the Englishman found himself self opposite the eagles' ledge. He jerked the signal line. He was ten or twelve feet from the ledge, but with the hooked end of his long pole he was able to draw himself in and presently was gazing cautiously over the edge of the nest, which, to his surprise, contained not one eaglet, but two.

One of them, not without a lively struggle, he put into the canvas bag he had brought for the purpose. The other he finally managed to secure by running a noose over its feet. He tied the bag to the signal cord, arranged himself upon his wooden seat, took the second bird in his left hand and gave the signal. The men on the ledge above, contrary to instructions, gave a vigorous pull that wrenched the pole from his hands and sent him away from the cliff at a frightful pace. The return swing was likely to dash him against the rock with deadly force.

There was but one thing to do, and the Englishman had the presence of mind to do it. He tilted the upper part of his body backward and his legs forward and struck the rock with his feet, with no worse result than a paralyzed feeling in his legs and a twitching sensation in his back and loins.

Just then a dark object flashed by him. It passed in such close proximity that the man felt the rush of air produced by its flight. At first he supposed it to be a falling stone, but presently he perceived that instead of being drawn upward he was quite stationary.

One hour passed, then two, and still he hung motionless at the end of the rope. He could of course form no idea of what had happened. The strange situation finally got upon his nerves. He imagined that he had been abandoned and must swing there till he lost his hold and fell to his death or until the parent eagles should return and pluck out his eyes. To add to his misfortunes, a sharp thunderstorm came on that wet him to the skin and nearly blinded him with lightning.

At last, when he had hung thus between heaven and earth for more than three hours, he felt a tug upon the rope and in fifteen minutes was at the top with his two prizes.

Then he found that the falling object was the block on which the rope had run. It had had to be replaced, lest the rope should be cut by the sharp edge of the rock, and the long delay had been caused by the necessity of sending the one man at the top down to the base of the mountain to cut a small tree and make a second block.

Buying Tea in Shanghai.

An American tourist, in pricing tea in a Chinese store in Shanghai, was surprised to find that he could purchase five pounds of a certain kind of tea for $2, but that if he bought ten pounds the price would be $5. The American argued with the Chinaman that such an arrangement was ridiculous, but the proprietor of the store insisted that logic was on his side. "More buy, more rich. More rich, more can pay," he explained.

Woman's World

Dr. Elliot's Granddaughter Will Learn to Cook Before Marrying.

MISS RUTH ELLIOT.

Ruth Elliot, granddaughter of President Emeritus Charles W. Elliot of Harvard, who is soon to marry Roger Pierce, Dr. Elliot's private secretary, declares that "no woman, no matter how comfortably situated financially, should ever think of marrying before she has learned the art of cooking and the proper way in which to administer a household."

Miss Elliot, whose romance developed during a tour with Dr. Elliot around the world, said:

"I have not set a date for our wedding, as I intend to become an accomplished housewife first."

"Before Mr. Pierce and I are married I shall study cooking and housekeeping in an endeavor to perfect myself as highly as possible in these great essentials of a happy married life."

"We will live in Milton, and I am interested at present in planning my home, for my home will mean everything to me. I am going to learn the art of homemaking. I always admire a young woman who knows how to cook and care for the home. The great trouble today is that too many young women are totally ignorant of the art of housekeeping."

THE NEW HATPINS.

Gone Are the Large Effects in Bizarre Styles.

From the extremely large hatpins of the past season there has been a gradual return to those of more convenient shapes and sizes. Both the long, narrow pins and the broad, flat pins have been entirely deposed by the pins of moderate size and modified form.

Hatpins with heads quite round, disk shaped or of small ovals and pear shapes are in highest favor, and many beautiful new designs and combinations of materials are to be seen in the fashionable jewelry shops.

Here is one of heavy gold in that rich, old gold color, set with fiery green tourmalines that dance and sparkle in the light. Another is set with a stud of pink coral that is almost covered by the inclosing gold, the stone showing through the openwork pattern of the metal.

Lovely pins there are in silver too. One of these holds a piece of turquoise matrix that is of remarkable beauty, and another has a most distinctive note in its deep toned lapis lazuli.

INSTRUCTIVE SCRAPBOOKS.

These Can Be of Infinite Use at Practically No Cost.

Make or buy a book either with detachable or permanent pages. Of course the detachable are the best.

Divide the book into sections such as art, persons, places, inventions, nature, etc.

Do not buy the pictures, but cut them from old magazines that are to be thrown out. In a very short time you will have one of the most interesting collections of great paintings, pictures of great people, etc., that will not only amuse you and your young friends, but your grownup friends and relatives.

The writer collected this kind of scrapbook when a child and now it is still one of the most interesting and instructive books in her library.

Photographing Baby.

The latest idea is to photograph the baby in the arms of all the devoted members of the family and grandparents, the aunts and even those uncles who dare to handle the tiny newcomer.

A photographer says that the sale of cameras and photographic materials goes up in the summer enormously, not only in view of the holiday season, but because the babies and little children on the shore and in the gardens, squares and parks offer such a charming and irresistible subject to the amateur.

Housewife Suggestion.

After peeling pears or peaches or any large fruit you will find they will not look smooth, having ridges. The way to remove these ridges is to take a "wife and rub the fruit. Your fruit will then look very well.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1912.

The slogan of the New Jersey Democrats at the Baltimore convention of "Let's nominate a winner," which was followed by the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, may well be applied to Congressman William Hughes' campaign for United States Senator. Ever since "Billy," as he is most generally known, started the State ten years ago by carrying the Passaic district in the face of a normal Republican majority of 5,000, he has been capturing honor after honor, until it would seem that he simply can't be headed off for anything.

And, indeed, that first victory of his was one that might well have inspired the idea that "Billy" was unbeatable. The Republicans of his district had nominated Colonel William Barbour, able and very popular, considering the fact that he was a millionaire two or three times over. The Democrats of the Passaic district in that year of 1902 didn't imagine they had the ghost of a chance against the colonel, and when "Billy" Hughes admitted that he would like to have the nomination there was a good deal of smiling, of the pitying kind.

Some of the party even inquired "Who is Hughes?" and had to be informed that he was a lawyer of about thirty or so, who had made some progress in the courts and might have made more if he hadn't dropped his studies to respond to the nation's call for troops in 1898. Another interesting fact was that he was a self-educated man and had actually started in life working by the day in the textile mills of this same Colonel Barbour, whose election to Congress was asserted to be such a thoroughly foregone conclusion.

It may have been that the Democrats who were managing affairs of that district ten years ago were a little amused at the idea of running "Billy" against his old boss, and figured that as long as the young man wanted the nomination he might as well have it as anybody else. Anyway they put him up.

He became more interesting as the campaign progressed. In the first place he wouldn't put any money into the campaign. There was enough of that on the other side, he said. Besides he didn't have enough to make any impression even if he had wished to make that kind of a campaign. A certain Ed. Lawrence was running the Paterson Guardian and one Robert Bremner was doing the same with the Passaic Herald, and between them they managed to give a good deal of publicity to the Hughes idea and stirred the district up to a considerable extent. When it was all over the count showed "Billy" just about 3,800 votes ahead of Colonel Barbour.

In saying that "Billy" is about the same as unbeatable, the fact is not lost sight of that he was nosed out for re-election in 1904 when the Roosevelt landslide occurred. But that was just the rule proving exception. Most beaten candidates quit, either from preference, or from necessity, but this one went right back in 1906 because he was a good scrapper and got elected again. When he returned to Washington, Congress recognized that New Jersey had developed a real big man.

In 1908 Taft carried Hughes' district by over 11,000. The Congressman was re-elected by 1,600, and in 1910 the margin was 4,800, though Vivian Lewis defeated Woodrow Wilson, there.

Then it was that Hughes got his biggest chance to show what was in him. The House was Democratic for the first time in sixteen years. The Democrats had pledged themselves to so change the rules of the House as to take away the arbitrary power of the Speaker that had become a national scandal. But when they got to Washington they realized that this was an easier thing to say than to do. There were some anxious times among the leaders of the House until "Billy" Hughes came along with his suggestion.

"Let the House elect a Ways and Means Committee," said he. "And then let this committee choose the other committees."

And this was the plan adopted, that has made the House once more a real representative body. And "Billy" Hughes was made one of the first members of the new Ways and Means Committee that he devised, and has been a power there. He has grown tremendously—he is one of the big men of the capital. "He came in here on a brake-beam and now he is a member of the Ways and Means Committee," is the way one of his colleagues put it some time ago.

Coming to the present issue: "Why should this man be advanced to the United States Senate?" His friends say it is because the higher body needs men like Hughes who have shown their independence and progressiveness in the lower one. That he has introduced, worked for and voted for, legislation of most advanced type in his present position, which the Senate has smothered. His work has been for the uplifting of humanity, and the Senate citadel must be stormed before the final results are secured.

The record of the Congressman has been consistently one in favor of everything that tended to better labor conditions.

In 1908 an Employers' Liability Bill came up before the Sixtieth Congress. This bill was favored by organized labor throughout the land. Mr. Hughes, believing it to be the best bill that the Republicans in both Houses of Congress would stand for, gave it his earnest support in the House, and on April 6, 1908, voted in favor of the bill.

Labor Disputes.

At the last session of the Congress a bill was introduced for compulsory investigation of labor disputes. This measure brought forth a storm of protest from labor organizations. The Democrats in the House, then in minority, with the assistance of Republicans who feared to face their constituents if supporting the measure, succeeded in defeating this bill which would have proven a step toward compulsory arbitration. Mr. Hughes was recorded as voting against the bill.

Prosecution of Unions.

On June 2, 1910, the Contingent Deficiency Appropriation Bill was before the House for consideration. That bill contained an appropriation for the prosecution of anti-trust violations. The House of Representatives adopted the following amendment offered by Mr. Hughes:

"Provided further, That no part of this money shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours or bettering the condition of labor, or for any act done in furtherance, thereof not in itself unlawful."

The bill was passed by the House with this proviso or amendment.

Reaching the Senate, it was reported out of committee without the Hughes amendment. Senator Briggs' vote was recorded against the adoption of the amendment when the Senate voted to sustain the action of the committee to eliminate it. After passing the Senate the bill went to conference. The House had instructed its conferees to disagree with the Senate. These instructions were an endorsement of its former action in favor of the Hughes amendment as originally added to the bill. Again Mr. Hughes voted in favor thereof. After two days' deliberation the conferees reported back that they could reach no agreement with the conferees from the Senate.

A motion was promptly made by one of the enemies of labor and carried by this Republican House of Representatives to eliminate the Hughes amendment from the bill. Thus the House, at the critical moment, reversed itself and agreed to the Senate's demands. And upon this proposition Mr. Hughes voted in the negative. This vote of reversal was the determining factor in which the Republican House of Representatives placed itself on record as being opposed to any organization or individual making an organized effort to increase wages, to reduce hours or to better the condition of labor, organized or unorganized, without running the risk of criminal prosecution under the Anti-Trust Law.

Eight-Hour Law.

For many years there had been upon the statute books a law for an eight-hour day on work done by the government. Mr. Hughes, at the last session of Congress, introduced an eight-hour bill in the House, limiting the hours of employment to eight hours on work done for the government, as well as upon work done by the government. He fought hard and persistently to bring about the triumph of this much-desired legislation, and succeeded in so doing, the bill now being a law. This bill directly affects contractors and sub-contractors engaged on government work. This act alone will reduce the hours of labor of hundreds of thousands of workmen directly or indirectly employed by or for the government, giving greater opportunity for rest, recreation and mental development to those affected by it.

Anti-Injunction Legislation.
At the last session of Congress an anti-injunction bill was introduced which had the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor, limiting the issuance of injunctions. Congressman Hughes voted to bring this bill upon special rule to expedite its enactment and at the final passage voted in favor thereof.

Another labor measure that received the support of Congressman Hughes was that known as the "Clayton Contempt Bill," regulating the procedure of courts in direct and indirect contempt. It provides for a trial by jury.

Department of Labor.

Labor is to be represented in the President's Cabinet hereafter as the result of the Department of Labor bill enacted into law by the last Congress. The Secretary of Labor will have the power of mediation in trade disputes and the right to appoint conciliators in such cases when in his judgment it is wise to do so, and while his good offices may be used for the purpose of bringing the contending parties together, he shall have no power to enforce his own views upon either of them. This bill also received the hearty support of Mr. Hughes.

Children's Bureau.

Another important measure that received his vote was the Children's Bureau bill, to promote the welfare of children and to devise means whereby the necessities of the parents cannot be used to retard the development of our children.

Industrial Relations.

He also introduced a bill to create a Commission on Industrial Relations, for the purpose of investigating into labor conditions in this country and abroad, also to investigate the entire subject of industrial relations between employer and employee, with a view to ascertain the best method of dealing with industrial disputes, so as to protect the rights of all persons directly or indirectly interested. The bill became a law.

Bureau of Mines.

The loss of life among workmen employed in the mines of our country is tremendous. A bill introduced in the last session of Congress to widen the scope of the recently established Bureau of Mines so that it may be better able to develop methods of preventing accidents in mines and have greater efficiency in rescue work when accidents occur, received the support and vote of Congressman William Hughes.

Dredge Workers' Law.

Congress overcame a recent decision of the Supreme Court in which it was held that men employed on dredgers in our rivers and harbors were not laborers or mechanics, but seamen and did not come within the scope of the eight-hour law, by enacting the dredge workers' eight-hour bill into law. Mr. Hughes also voted for this measure.

Phosphorus Tax.

Another commendable bill introduced by Mr. Hughes was the one placing a prohibitive tax upon the importation of white phosphorus, used in the manufacture of matches. This bill was designed to prevent its use, because it had been demonstrated that the use of white phosphorus was the cause of a loathsome disease among match workers, known as "phossy jaw." Owing to the persistent work of Mr. Hughes this bill is now a law.

RAILROAD ADOPTS NEW BAGGAGE CHECK.

A new baggage check, embodying a number of unique features which are expected to lessen the number of errors and complaints, has just been placed in service by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The duplicate portion of the new check is provided with spaces in which are printed a number of the principal "bad order" conditions in which baggage is frequently received for checking. A check, on being delivered to a passenger, will be perforated to show whether the piece of baggage is a trunk, suit case or valise, fibre case, or tool chest. Another perforation will show the condition in which it is received, whether the bottom, side, top or end is broken, lock or handle broken, hinges loose, old or worn or whether the piece of baggage is open. In this way the duplicate check will contain a full description of the condition of the baggage when received for shipment.

The number on the tag portion of the check is placed at the bottom, while on the duplicate portion it is printed at the top, so that the two can readily be matched when making delivery of baggage.

It is expected that with the use of this new form of check the liability of mismatching numbers will be minimized, the delivery of baggage expedited, and the number of claims greatly reduced.

MARRIED.

SEB—ELLISON—On September 15, 1912, at the Methodist Episcopal Parsonage, by the Rev. C. S. Miller, Miss Blanche S. Ellison, of Keyport, to Mr. John F. Selb, of South Amboy.

WORLD'S THRILLS FOR TRENTON FAIR

Management Has Secured Attractions From All the Nations of the Earth.

From an amusement viewpoint the Trenton Fair this year should outshine any of the preceding twenty-four years of its history, because such a dazzling wealth of world famous entertainers and dare devils has been assembled as only occurs in a lifetime.

However, this was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Fair, and Secretary Margerum and the directors determined that the patrons should participate in the celebration of the happy event. The only way for the patrons to participate was to let them enjoy themselves as never before, hence the extraordinary list of amusement attractions. The horse racing and the motorcycle death gambles have been referred to as making up a big portion of the program for the week, but aside from this is the galaxy of sensations, thrills, novelties, laugh getters and wonders.

Heading the list is Charles F. Walsh, the marvelous Curtiss aviator, who is unafraid to sup with death in mid air. Walsh is, without question the king of air men of today. He does tricks in the air that no other atmosphere navigator has ever dared to attempt. He will make two flights every day—at 2:15 and at 4:15. His list of thrills includes the spiral glide, long dip, turkey trot, dropping bombs on an outlined battlefield and alighting on a given spot.

CHARLES F. WALSH.

(Daring Curtiss aviator, who will do dips, glides, turkey trot and race an automobile at the Trenton Fair this month.)

Hutchinson, the peerless balloonist, will make twelve flights of it—twelve parachute cutaways after one balloon ascension. It is simply shaking hands with death.

Arthur C. Holden, well named "Daredevil" Holden, in a backward dive into a small tank. Words cannot describe it—it must be seen.

Fourcher, who does a bicycle leap for life similar to that of Schreyers. Trenton Fair patrons remember Schreyer. They will have reason to recall Fourcher months after witnessing his wonderful act.

Daddo, the diver. This fearless athlete will make a dive from a platform 100 feet from the ground. This is the first time a plunge has been made from such a dizzy height, and, as usual, the Trenton Fair offers the world's record breaker.

Bubler, the auto fender, who permits an automobile, full of passengers, run over his body without harm to himself. Sounds impossible but it is true.

The Curzon Sisters, direct from the Crystal Palace, London. These beautiful young ladies hang by their teeth from a great height and do a sensational whirling act. Recent stars of the New York Hippodrome.

The Eleven Whirlwind Tumbling Arabs. Best act of the kind ever introduced.

Samurai and his four Japanese wonder workers in Jujitsu demonstrations. An act of rare novelty.

The three tumbling Toms on the high tables. You'll gasp, and then you'll laugh until your sides ache.

Philly horses. Perhaps the most remarkable horse act that Trenton Fair patrons have ever looked at.

Balloon ascensions every day by amateur parachute jumpers.

Welch and his catapault running hounds. An act familiar and popular with all fair goers. Rarely interesting and highly exciting.

Miss Dora W. Knight and her nationally famous trotting stallion, Isaac B., and her trotting Shetland pony. The Shetland is only forty inches high, but he trots a half mile in less than two minutes.

Sato in representations of Abraham Lincoln and of Captain Smith of the ill fated Titanic.

There will be a score of attractions on the Midway, which will be a miniature Coney Island, and Winkler's Second Regiment band will play each day a program of the latest and most popular music, including the biggest hits from the operas of last season as well as popular song, march and waltz numbers.

Reasons Why Democrats Should Support Hughes At the Primary

(Extracts from Record of Congressman Hughes.)

1. April 6, 1908.—Employers' Liability bill, affecting employees on railroads engaged in interstate commerce. This bill was favored by Labor and it passed the House with but one dissenting vote.

Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "aye."

2. December 12, 1908.—Compulsory Investigation of Labor Disputes. This bill was opposed by Labor because it was considered a step towards compulsory arbitration. It failed to pass the House.

Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "nay."

3. On June 2nd, 1910, the House, while in Committee of the Whole, adopted the following amendment by Mr. Hughes:

"Provided, further, That no part of this money shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization of individual for entering into combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours or bettering the condition of Labor, or for any act done in furtherance thereof NOT IN ITSELF UNLAWFUL."

On June 9, 1910, this proviso was stricken from the bill when it was reported to the Senate by the Appropriation Committee. On a record vote of 34 "yeas," 16 "nays," and 42 "not voting," the Senate sustained the action of the appropriation committee.

On June 21, 1910, a motion was made in the House to instruct the conferees to insist upon disagreeing with the Senate. The motion carried by a vote of 154 "yeas" to 105 "nays," 12 answering "present," and 119 "not voting." This record vote in the House was an endorsement of its former action in favor of the Hughes amendment when it was added to the bill while the House was in Committee of the Whole.

Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "aye" or in favor of retaining the proviso.

On June 23, 1910, the conferees reported to the House a disagreement on this proviso and recommended "that the House recede and concur," which meant that the House agree with the Senate and eliminate the Hughes proviso from the bill. The motion carried by a vote of 138 "yeas" to 130 "nays," 16 answering "present," and 105 "not voting." By this vote the House of Representatives repudiated its former actions taken on June 2 and June 21st, when it adopted the Hughes amendment and instructed its conferees to retain it in the bill. This last vote was the determining factor in which the House of Representatives placed itself on record as being opposed to any organization or individual making an organized effort to increase wages, to reduce hours, or to better condition of Labor—organized or unorganized—without running the risk of criminal prosecution under the provisions of the Anti-Trust Law.

Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "nay," or in favor of retaining it.

4. On March 23, 1912, the bill introduced by Congressman Hughes placing a prohibitive tax upon the importation of white phosphorus came up in the House. This bill was designed to prevent the use of white phosphorus in the match-making industry. It had been demonstrated that the use of white phosphorus was the cause of a most loathsome disease among the match workers known as "phossy jaw." The bill was passed by the House and Senate, and is now a law.

5. On May 13, 1912, Popular election of United States Senators. Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "yea," or in favor of this measure.

6. On May 14, 1912.—The Clayton Injunction bill, H. R. 23635, acceptable to the American Federation of Labor; limiting the issuance of injunctions, came up in the House. On the special rule to have this bill taken up, Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "yea," and on the final passage of the bill he is again recorded as voting "yea," or in favor of the bill.

7. On July 17, 1912.—The Clayton Contempt Bill, which has been urged by Labor and which regulates the procedure of courts in direct and indirect contempt, came up in the House. This bill passed the House by a vote of 233 "yeas," 18 "nays," 11 answering "present," and 127 "not voting," on which Representative Hughes is recorded as voting "yea," or in favor of this bill.

Mr. Hughes is also the author of the Eight Hour Bill which was introduced and passed at this session of Congress. It is for the purpose of compelling contractors and sub-contractors on government work to establish an eight hour work day.

He also introduced a bill to create a Commission on Industrial Relations, for the purpose of investigating into labor conditions in this country and abroad. This bill has passed both branches of Congress and signed by the President.

WILLIAM HUGHES.

William Hughes, of Paterson, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, is both popular and progressive. The fact that he has been four times elected to Congress from the strongly Republican Sixth District is sufficient evidence of his popularity, and his record in the House, together with his earnest support of Governor Wilson, proves his progressiveness.

The opinion was formerly held by many people who did not know him that there was a good deal of the demagogue about Hughes. This opinion was founded upon the fact that in his campaigns he has made special appeal to the laboring men for support and has been the persistent and effective advocate of labor measures in Congress. It would be strange if Mr. Hughes's sympathies were not with the wage earners, and he has unusual claims upon their sympathies in return. He is one of them. When only ten years old he went to work in a silk mill, and for years thereafter worked at the loom, in his spare moments gathering the education that has fitted him for playing a part in the broader sphere of human activity. His efforts in behalf of labor legislation were born of the knowledge that he then acquired of labor and its needs, and the measures with which his name has been identified have been both conservative and constructive. There is nothing of the wild-eyed agitator about Mr. Hughes. His ideas are both sane and practical.

Even while a member of the minority in the House, Mr. Hughes had claimed and won recognition for force and ability, and when the Democrats came into power he was at once awarded a place among the leaders. He was foremost in insisting that the party promise to curb the power of the Speaker should be carried out, and he was author of the plan finally adopted taking from the Speaker the power of appointing committees. This reform in House procedure, his eight-hour bill and his bill for the appointment of an industrial commission, are his most widely known achievements, but they do not comprehend by a good deal the sum of his activities.

There is every reason to believe that Mr. Hughes is in complete accord with Governor Wilson's progressive views and that if elected United States Senator he would very effectively strengthen the progressive forces in that stronghold of privilege and standpatism. It is doubtful if two men could be found more diametrically opposite in their ideas and sympathies than are Mr. Hughes and Senator Briggs, whom he hopes to succeed. The difference is both temperamental and fundamental.—Newark News.

Benj. F. S. Brown of Matawan, who is a candidate for the nomination of Representative of Congress from this district on the Republican ticket this fall, has something to say in our business columns to the Republicans of the district. He is being opposed for the nomination by W. W. Ramsay of Keansburg, who says he has the backing of the party leaders of the three counties and that after the primary Mr. Brown will not know he is running. The latter in his announcement in this issue tell the voters that he has not solicited the support of the Machine, but is asking the Republicans who are not under the control of the party leaders to vote for him at the primary, believing that if they will take the trouble to go to the polls that day and cast their ballots for him he will unquestionably receive a majority of the votes cast. Of Mr. Brown's Republicanism and Progressiveness there can be no question. Anyone who has read his newspapers—the Matawan Journal and Keyport Weekly—for several years past knows just where he stands on public questions and also that he is not controlled by the party leaders in his county.

THE TELEPHONE AND THE WATER FRONT.

A very interesting symposium under the general heading "The Telephone and the Water Front" appears in the current issue of the New York Telephone Review.

The contributors are Captain George Linn, assistant manager of the marine department of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company; Commodore Frederick B. Dalzell, president of the national board of steam navigation, and A. F. Aldridge, yachting reporter of the New York Sun.

There is also an article, "Telephones on Steamships," which is a "report of progress" toward making every steamship a "center of the system."

These articles are remarkable for the contrasts which they draw between past and modern methods, due to the introduction of the telephone. In each case the writer has been personal and reminiscent, and the articles of interest.

NEW JERSEY NEWS CONDENSED.

Items of Interest From all Parts of the State as Gleaned From Our Exchanges Briefly Paragraphed.

Trio Killed By Electric Train.

Two men and a boy were killed at Malaga, twenty miles south of Camden, late Sunday night, when a Pennsylvania Railroad electric train struck a moving van in which the three were taking a load of furniture from Vineland to Philadelphia. The driver and owner of the van was Joseph Caplin. The other two victims have not yet been identified. The accident occurred during a heavy rain storm. Two horses attached to the van were killed and the first car of the electric train was so badly damaged that it had to be sidetracked.

Freight Wreck Near Cranbury.

Traffic was tied up on the Camden and Amboy division of the P. R. R. for several hours Saturday evening when a freight train known as A 9 was wrecked between Cranbury Station and Hightstown. The wreck was caused by a broken beam on one of the cars becoming loose so that it dropped down and caught in the ties, causing several cars to jump the track and pile up in a heap. The Bordentown and Jamesburg wrecking crews succeeded in clearing the track so that traffic was resumed early Sunday morning.

Boy Suffocated When Cave Topples In.

Eight-year-old Antone Mikalajack was suffocated by a fall of sand in a pit near his home on Harrington street, Perth Amboy, Saturday afternoon. Playmates set up a cry and Benjamin Myers and Jacob Lamp dug out the boy's body only to find that he was dead. Young Mikalajack and other boys were playing in the sand pit and they had dug into the bank to make a "cave" in which to play at Indians. When the overhanging sand fell two other boys were caught with Young Mikalajack, but they managed to free themselves without help. Mikalajack's death was due to suffocation. Acting Coroner J. M. Pettit, of Metuchen, gave a permit for the removal of the body. Young Mikalajack's father is Antone J. Mikalajack, meat inspector of the board of health of Perth Amboy.

Oliver Kelly Placed on Committee.

The Democratic campaign in New Jersey is now under the chairmanship of General Dennis F. Collins. Besides General Collins, the members of the new campaign committee to take charge of the state fight, are Secretary of State D. S. Crater; State Senator George C. Low, of Ocean; Dan Fellows Platt, of Bergen, and Oliver Kelly, of Middlesex. Edward E. Grosscup, chairman of the state committee, is forced to spend practically all of his time at national headquarters in New York, and accordingly could not be on the scene of the New Jersey campaign as much as required for the campaign chairman. The makeup of the committee is notable for the presence of Oliver Kelly, of Middlesex, on it. This is Mr. Kelly's re-entry into politics to a great extent as he dropped out of sight following the Smith-Wilson break. He is the one man on the committee who has been listed hitherto as a loyal ally of the Smith-Nugent forces.

Panama Machinery May Be Used.

According to reports from Trenton negotiations have been begun for the transportation of the machinery used in the building of the Panama Canal to Bordentown to use next year in the construction of the New Jersey Ship Canal that is to extend from South Amboy to Bordentown. The commission, composed of Mayor Frederick Donnelly, of Trenton; Walter Wood, of Camden; James M. Reilly, of Newark; Charles A. McCormick, of New Brunswick, and W. M. Jacobus, of Rutherford, Saturday made a tour of inspection of the preliminary work on the big ditch which has been begun. William F. Griffith, of Morristown, a United States government engineer, is at the head of the detail making the survey and Spencer Weart, of Middlebury, is the assistant engineer looking into the matter of titles. These two officials and Ivan H. Wise, formerly commander of Fort Monroe and a member of the Atlantic Deep Waterways Association, are also with the commissioners. The commission confidently expects that the next river and harbor bill passed by Congress will carry a sufficient amount to warrant the breaking of ground. The engineers say that the time necessary to complete the canal would be four years. New Jersey is to furnish the right of way for the canal by the purchase of from 500 to 1000 feet each side of the ditch to be held as factory sites and to be leased under state jurisdiction. The plans submitted provide for railroad connections the entire length of the canal.

Child Dies From Eating Heads of Matches.

Hazel, the little two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDowell, of Cranbury Station, died on Saturday morning after having been ill several days from the result of eating the heads off of several matches. On Thursday afternoon previous, while Mrs. McDowell was busy with her household duties, the little one went upstairs and entered the room of a boarder, where she found a box of matches. The child evidently thought the bright end of the matches was candy, as she ate the heads off of thirty-two of them. A short time afterwards she went down stairs and complained to her mother of feeling sick at her stomach. Upon investigation Mrs. McDowell found out what the child had been doing and immediately summoned Dr. Symmes of Cranbury. Dr. Franklin, of Hightstown, was also called later. The doctors did everything they could for her but it proved of no avail and after suffering until Saturday morning the child passed away. The little one was a particularly bright child for her age and a great pet of the neighbors.

Patching up Injured Man.

Medical skill is now expected to save the life of Russell Earl, of Hightstown, who a fortnight ago fell through an elevator shaft at a rug factory, sustaining injuries which were then believed to be fatal, compound fractures of both upper and lower jaws and his nose. A portion of the lower jaw was entirely destroyed and has been replaced by a plate. A hole in his skull beside one ear, and a score of deep cuts and bruises are healing. While his jaws are knitting, Earl is kept alive on nourishment supplied through a tube.

Disbarred Lawyer Held.

Henry B. Cook, the disbarred lawyer, now living in Newark, was held on bail Monday night by Recorder Edward Houghton, of New Brunswick, upon a charge of obtaining $700 from Joseph Pizzo under false pretenses. The money, Pizzo says, was given for a certificate of sale for property at 254 Burnet street, that city, which, Pizzo avers, he never received.

New Hotel Declares Dividend.

At a meeting of the New Monterey Hotel Company held Monday night at Asbury Park, it was voted to declare a dividend of approximately 5 per cent. Senator O. H. Brown was again elected president of the company. Improvements and additions will be made during the winter and the hotel will reopen the latter part of March as an all-the-year hostelry.

Pine Beach Inn in Ashes.

Fire entirely destroyed the closed Pine Beach Inn, near Island Heights, Monday. The loss was $40,000, part of which is covered by insurance. The fire was the most spectacular ever witnessed there. Strenuous efforts were made by a volunteer corps to fight the flames. Within an hour from the discovery of the fire the structure was entirely gutted. The police are investigating the origin of the fire. Three years ago a syndicate of Philadelphia capitalists built the inn, but from the first the project seemed unfortunate. The application for a liquor license was opposed by the Campmeeting Association of Island Heights, and the matter was taken to court. After prolonged litigation the applicants finally won.

Hurt By Explosion.

Andrew Mahoney, fifty-nine years old, a house carpenter, of Asbury Park, employed at the Hotel Winthrop, was seriously injured Tuesday by the explosion of a fire extinguisher tank. Mahoney had taken the extinguisher to the hotel roof, intending to clean it. In the explosion the bottom of the extinguisher was blown out. A part of Mahoney's face, his nose and the roof of his mouth was torn away. He was taken to the Long Branch Hospital, where his condition is said to be serious, but not critical.

Captain Robert F. Heath.

He is survived by a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Emma H. Love and Mrs. Benjamin G. Carl. He was seventy years old. He was born in Philadelphia in 1845, being a son of Andrew Heath, one of the first conductors of the old Amboy Railroad. In 1881 he was elected on the Democratic ticket to the Legislature, and in 1885 was elected register of deeds of Camden County. For a number of years he was captain of Company B, Sixth Regiment, N. G. N. J., and he was the oldest vestryman of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, of Camden.

Rev. Francis Casey Dies.

Rev. Francis Casey, of St. Peter's College, Jersey City, one of the oldest Jesuit Fathers in America, died from cancer Monday in St. Francis's Hospital after an illness of several weeks. Father Casey had been a member of the Society of Jesus for forty-two years and was seventy-four years old. At the age of six, Father Casey came to America from Ireland, his birthplace, and made his home in New York. He taught for a period of years in Loyola College, Baltimore, and later in Georgetown University. At Boston, Father Casey took charge of his first parish after he was ordained to his priesthood, thirty-seven years ago. In Troy, N. Y., he held a parish up to the time he became connected with St. Peter's College.

Saved From Judge's Yacht.

The Atlantic City Federal guards Monday afternoon rescued the yacht Skibo, owned by Judge Allen B. Endicott, taking off his son, Paul Endicott, and three other youths. The craft's engines became disabled in the rough sea off South Bar. Signals of distress attracted the guards, who hurried out in their lifeboat, took off the boys and then returned and towed in the Skibo.

ANNOUNCEMENT

...TO THE...

Republican Voters of the Third Congressional District.

Supplementing the announcement last week of my candidacy for the nomination to the office of Representative in Congress I desire that the voters understand that I have not asked the support of the party leaders and that if nominated I will be under no obligations to them.

My opponent, Mr. Ramsay, has said that I have absolutely no chance for the nomination, as he has the leaders of Middlesex, Monmouth and Ocean with him, and that after the primary I will not know that I was a candidate. This may prove true.

I do not believe, however, that the leaders control a majority of the voters in these three counties, but I do believe that these leaders will get busy and see that their supporters in the various election districts do their bidding and that they will be active in getting the voters they control to cast their ballots for Mr. Ramsay.

If the Republicans and Progressive Republicans of this district are satisfied with the present machine rule they will no doubt vote for Mr. Ramsay. But if, to the contrary, they desire a candidate who will not be subservient to the dictation of the machine, and who will regard the wishes and requests of the rank and file of the party as of greater moment than the demands of the machine, then I would ask their support. My nomination depends entirely upon a majority of the Republicans and Progressive Republicans opposed to Machine rule voting on Primary Day, which is next Tuesday. Heretofore a small minority of the voters have made the nominations and as these have not always been satisfactory the way to correct past mistakes is for the Republicans and Progressive Republicans to go to the polls and cast their ballots and not stay at home and grumble after the nomination is made because it does not suit them. There should be as much interest in the selection of the candidates on Primary Day as there is in their election and if you voters will bear this in mind and cast your ballots on September 24 for me and I am successful your candidate will not be of the Machine-Made kind.

On motion of Mr. Stanton, it was ordered submitted to the Mayor, and if approved, published in the South Amboy Citizen in accordance with the law.

Mr. O'Connor spoke of a meeting with the property owners on Portia street at 2:30 p. m. September 24. With him representing the city were Councilman Slover and City Engineer Mason. The matter was discussed and the engineer promised to make map of the proposed lines, showing conditions, and a copy of same would be presented to property owners. The ordinance to open and grade Portia street was laid over until next regular meeting.

The clerk read notice of intention to lay sidewalk on David street between Broadway and Rosewell street. The chair called for remarks from

Local Tax	$1 05
County Tax	50

Total $1.80

The increase over last year is 24c a hundred, due to 5c increase in county rate, and 20c increase in local—3c on account of the increase in the school budget, and 11c increase in the appropriation for sewer bonds and interest. The State School tax shows a decrease of one cent.

FRED I. STULTS LEAVES TOWN SUDDENLY

Fred. I. Stults, prominent in fraternal organizations, and agent for the Prudential Insurance Company, left his home early Monday morning without saying good bye to his wife nor child, and has not been heard from since.

His unceremonious disappearance has caused considerable talk about town, but as yet no substantial cause for his action has developed.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Heath, of Broadway, were given a surprise party last Saturday night in honor of their birthday. The arrangements were carefully planned by their children and were successfully carried out. The time was spent in social games, and about 11 o'clock all present gathered around the table, which was beautifully decorated, and bountifully laden with refreshments, and regaled the "inner man." The house decorations were very pretty. Mr. and Mrs. Heath received a number of handsome gifts. About 12 o'clock, the guests departed for their homes, wishing that Mr. and Mrs. Heath may enjoy many more happy birthdays.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Casper Boehm, and son, Casper; Miss Martha Bosson, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bosson and daughter, Dorothy, of Sayreville; Mrs. Earle Smock, Mrs. Frank Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus M. Hamilton and children, Adda and Harold; Miss Helen Smock, Miss Nellie Fisher, the Misses Bertha and Lydia Heath, and Charles Heath, of this city.

GOOD FISHING SUNDAY.

Several fishing parties which went out from Morgan on Sunday had fairly good luck. Dr. Robinson, Bennie Robinson, William O'Donnell and Arthur Van Ness caught twelve fine weak fish. Gus Wagner and Joe Hauck landed six, and Fred Winkler and Joseph Snyder caught eight. All were good sized and the catches were considered good in comparison with the fishing during the rest of the season.

ORNAMENT FOR VACANT CORNER

The placing of the organ in one corner of the Methodist Episcopal Church, left the opposite corner vacant and the church artist is preparing an ornament for it which he hopes to have in place on Sunday.

MANY INSPECT NEW FACTORY

Upon Invitation From E. Kleiner & Co. People Are Given Opportunity to Visit Their New Building and Incidentally Watch the Process of Manufacturing Cigars.

Following the announcement made in last week's Citizen by E. Kleiner & Co., many local people visited their new cigar factory, which is located at the corner of David and Feltus streets.

They were pleasantly received by S. Weltzen, the manager of the local branch, who conducted them through the bright and airy building, explained the different processes of manufacture and presented the men with one of their "La Famosa" cigars.

The factory, which has just recently been completed, is a large two-story brick structure. It is roomy, well lighted and ventilated, and makes a very pleasant place in which to work. When the building was being put up, provision for another story was made, and as soon as the business warrants another floor will be added. The large basement is used as a stock room and is piled high with cases of tobacco. This factory is a branch, the main plant being in New York City.

All the cigars turned out from this plant are hand-made and from well-selected stock. At present they employ 110 girls and several men and boys. The weekly output is between 100,000 and 120,000 cigars.

South Amboy Was Well Represented

The meeting of the Sunday School Association at St. John's Church, Seawaren, on Saturday, was a success in every way. South Amboy was well represented, there being twenty teachers present.

The addresses were excellent and so was the lunch.

The next meeting will be in November at Christ Church, New Brunswick.

M. E. CHURCH BEING PAINTED.

The painters are busy painting the wood work on the outside of the Methodist Episcopal Church on John street. The colors are the same as the parsonage and the property will look very nice when the work is completed. The Primary Department room is also being decorated.

MRS. ELIZABETH LEONARD.

Elizabeth, wife of John Leonard, departed this life on Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Downs, of Stockton street, after a lingering illness from infirmities of old age. She had been a resident of this city a long time, and for many years resided on Stevens avenue, near John street. Besides a husband and daughter, two sons, John and Philip, survive her.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock this Saturday morning from St. Mary's Church. Stillwell & Mason will have charge of funeral arrangements.

CHRIST CHURCH NEWS.

This Sunday will be observed as our Autumnal Rally Day in the Sunday school, and also in the church. It is hoped that every scholar will be on hand at the school, and that there will be large congregations in church. Remember the words of the prophet: "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved."

Instructions to the candidates for Confirmation is given in the church, every Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

PROTECTION ENGINE CO.

Members of Protection Engine Company are hereby given notice that a meeting will be held in the engine house on Thursday evening next. This will take the place of the regular meeting, generally held on the fourth Thursday of each month. At this meeting final arrangements will be made for attending the firemen's parade at Perth Amboy on October 24.—M. Welsh, President.

No complaints were made before Police Justice Birmingham in the city Police Court during the past week.

WAS HONORED GUEST AT NAVY BANQUET

Miss Bessie Wilson, of this city, was among the guests present at a ball and banquet tendered by the officers of the U. S. Battleship Minnesota on Friday night to Captain Clark, who is to retire from the ship for shore duty. The ball was held in the Lulu Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, 768 people being present. Miss Wilson had the honor of leading the march, being escorted by Capt. Clark, who were followed as seconds by Chief Yeoman Edwin Hullt escorting Mrs. Clark. Both Miss Wilson and Mrs. Clark were presented with beautiful bouquets of flowers. Miss Wilson wore a gown of pink messaline over blue. Among the speakers at the banquet was Capt. Clark, who expressed his appreciation and thanks for the honor conferred upon him, which was responded to by Chief Yeoman Hullt, president of the committee in charge of the reception, who spoke of the esteem in which the captain was held by officers and sailors of the ship. The event was a great success, and will long be remembered by the hundreds of guests present.

PEOPLE FROM THIS CITY WITNESS AVIATORS DEATH.

Many people from this city in attendance at the Inter-State Fair grounds, Trenton, on Thursday, saw Charles F. Walsh, an aviator, dashed to his death from a height of 2,000 feet. Although alive when he struck the earth, the man lived but three minutes.

Walsh, who has been thrilling the fair crowds all week by his daring flights in his Curtiss biplane and races with an automobile, soared skyward for about 2,500 feet, and then, when directly in front of the grand stand, attempted a spiral glide—doubtless the most hazardous of aerial feats. When he had come down perhaps five hundred feet one of the wings of his craft collapsed, and machine and man began somersaulting to earth.

There was a moment of breathless silent horror among the five thousand spectators who saw the accident. Then, as the people realized what had happened, there was a rush for the spot where Walsh fell. Harry B. Brown, of Mineola, L. I., another aviator, found Walsh still breathing, he says, but terribly crushed. An ambulance was summoned and physicians were rushed to the place, but the victim was beyond aid.

His body had scarcely been removed from the wreckage when the mob of men, women and children began fighting desperately for relics of the tragedy, and soon nothing was left of the air craft but the engine and other metal parts.

PRESBYTERIAN ITEMS.

We will hold our Fall rally this coming Sunday, October 6th, beginning with the morning service. Just remember it is a communion service and always brings a rally thought with it. The other services will be special. We want every member present. Will you not make an effort to come? Come and get a blessing.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, October 8 and 9, the Sunday school will hold its First Annual Fair and Supper. By that time the Lecture room will be completed and will be open for inspection. If you are interested in the repairs come and inspect them. The fair and supper will speak for itself. Admission free. Tickets for supper, 25 cents. Supper served from 5 to 10 p. m. Here you will find an opportunity to purchase a useful Christmas present for your friend. This will be the Sunday school fair. The Ladies' Aid Society announced several months ago that they will hold a fair and supper on November 12th and 13th. Remember these dates because something fine is coming.

CHURCH READY TO PAVE STREET

With the City Hall, school grounds and church property on John street strangers are asking why the street is not paved. The fault, however, does not lie with the Methodist Episcopal Church as they circulated a petition, secured more than enough signers, and presented it to Council some years ago but for some reason it was buried. The travel on this street certainly warrants paving of not only sidewalks but road as well.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Education takes place this, Friday, evening, in School No. 1.

High School Mentionings

Although fighting against odds in the matter of weight, the S. A. H. S. football team romped home the winners over the fast Metuchen High School eleven on Stevensdale last Saturday afternoon by the score of 6 to 0. The visiting team arrived on the field about 3 o'clock and greatly outweighed the local boys. A crowd of about 500 football fans expected to see the locals go down to defeat before the heavier team. Amboy won the toss-up and defended the north goal. Metuchen was held for downs and by a series of line plays and end runs the ball was brought back to the forty yard line. In the second quarter the South Amboy team made a fifteen yard gain on their fake forward play. Capner made a great end run and brought the ball within a few yards of the goal. On the third down Kwilinski dashed over the line for a touchdown. Grace made a fine tackle of Smith, the speedy Metuchen halfback when he broke away from the bunch in the third quarter.

At all times the South Amboy line held firm and Metuchen gained practically nothing through the Amboy defense. Quinlan and Phil Anderson played great games at end while Baird made some great line plunges and Capner made some swell end runs. Kwilinski and Grace also played a feature game. For Metuchen, Smith and Martin starred while Thompson and F. Morris kept the local ends busy. Davis, the South Amboy guard, was not able to play and Johnson and Albough shared halves in his position. Ed. Wortley crouched at the other guard while Hardy and Crane filled in at tackles. Hoffman played center and Quinlan and Anderson at the ends. Ed. Sutliff acted as referee and Ed. Breen, of Metuchen, umpired.

John Quinlan and Ruth Strusholm, formerly of the eighth grade, entered High School this week.

The monthly report cards were received by the scholars during the week.

This Saturday afternoon the High School football team meets the New Brunswick H. S. eleven on Stevensdale grounds in this city. The county seat team greatly outweighs the local eleven but the boys are prepared to put up a good fight.

Last year the New Brunswick team defeated South Amboy by the score of 27 to 0, but it is to be hoped that the score will be better this game. The game will practically decide the county High School football championship.

The team will journey to Metuchen on Saturday afternoon, October 19, to play the return game. A great contest is expected.

Letters will be awarded to the students who play on the 'varsity football, basketball or baseball teams by the Athletic Association. Every member will have to play a certain number of halves to be awarded his monogram. This system is used in nearly all the High Schools and colleges and makes the boys do their best in order to get their letters.

Coach Dawson is encouraged by the showing which the football team has made so far this year. The eleven is the lightest which the High School has ever put out but they have made a fine start this year. They won their first two games, not having their opponents score on them. The big test comes to-morrow, Saturday, against the heavy New Brunswick team.

The tickets have been distributed for this Saturday's game. It is hoped that a large number will be sold in order to defray the expenses of the visiting teams.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS.

Astor Theatre.

Messrs. Cohan & Harris' tenacity of the Astor theatre in New York was inaugurated on Monday night. The first attraction under the new management was "The Woman Haters," a Viennese operetta translated from "Die Frauen Fressen," by Leo Stein, author of "The Merry Widow," with music by Edmund Eysler, composer of "The Love Cure," adapted for the American stage by George V. Hobart, the producer, being Mr. A. H. Woods.

"The Woman Haters" has more than the usual number of elements to commend it, for the story is dainty and prettily told. The comedy is of the genuine sort, and the music of the higher grade, yet joyous and lingering.

Miss Sallie Fisher is the heroine of the new Viennese operetta, and she sings and acts as she has never done before. Incidentally, she is most pleasing to look at.

A tremendous hit has been scored by Mr. Leslie Kenyon in the character of an Englishman with decidedly opposite views from "The Woman Haters." Mr. Kenyon has the faculty of portraying the stage Englishman without unnecessary burlesquing of the character, and his handling of this particular one is simply artistic. "The Woman Haters" is one of the very best comedies that has come from foreign sources, and that it will be a lasting success at the rehabilitated Astor theatre there is not the shadow of a doubt.

"Grand Opera House."

Henry Miller comes to Cohan & Harris' Grand Opera House, New York, next week in "The Rainbow," his big success of last season at the Liberty theatre. This beautiful and appealing story from the pen of A. E. Thomas won the hearts of New York theatre goers last year and proved one of the really notable hits of the season. The play gives Mr. Miller a wonderfully effective role. It is doubtful if he has ever before had so sympathetic a part, or one that so completely won the hearts of his audiences. He plays it with authority and poise, and is at once gentle, tender and dominant. At the climax of the play when he says good-bye to his little daughter who is taken away from him, he knowing it and she ignorant of the fact, Mr. Miller injects a world of pathos into the situation and the scene tells tremendously. Mr. Miller will be supported by the same superb company that appeared with him throughout the long run at the Liberty theatre last season. The cast includes Ruth Chatterton, Edith Barker, Charles Hammond, Robert Stowe Gill, Daniel Pennell, Ethel Martin, Ann Crewe, Vera McCord, Robert C. Pierce, Conway Wingfield, Joseph Allenton and Ethel Lloyd.

Geo. M. Cohan Theatre.

If laughs are golden, "Broadway Jones," Geo. M. Cohan's latest play now running at the Cohan theatre in New York, will make you rich. Mr. Cohan has written many clever pieces for the American stage, but in this, his latest effort, he is at his best. "Broadway Jones" makes a distinct moral appeal in an atmosphere of hilarious fun, and as a consequence the Cohan theatre is continually crowded with delighted audiences.

Gaiety Theatre.

"A riot of clean fun" exactly describes Augustin MacHugh's famous melodramatic farce, "Officer 666," now in its ninth month of unbroken prosperity at the Gaiety theatre in New York, and when Gothamites continue to laugh and applaud a comedy for that length of time it must be some play.

"Officer 666" is a sure enough play. In construction it is absolutely novel, and its many scenes are so full of action, its climaxes so tense in unexpected surprises, that its audiences are treated to thrill after thrill in a perfect maze of mystery. If you want to laugh without interruption for two mortal hours see "Officer 666."

Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

"Little Miss Brown," with its amusing complications based upon a young girl's difficulties in securing hotel lodgings, is filling the Forty-eighth Street Theatre every evening and Thursday and Saturday afternoons. Some of the characters in Mr. Bartholomae's farcical comedy are especially familiar to most spectators—such for instance as the stony faced hotel clerk, the "fly" telephone girl, the colored porter, the "fresh" bell boy and the coy and pretty daughter of the landlord. All these roles are played with the utmost aptitude, as also is Little Miss Brown, herself, the last mentioned by Miss Madge Kennedy, a new arrival upon Broadway and a very welcome visitor. Miss Kennedy is just emerging from her teens, and apparently justifies the high hopes entertained by the management for her future. "Little Miss Brown" seems certain to remain in New York until past Christmas, and quite possibly may continue through the entire season. It has been steadily increasing in strength from the start.

Brady's Playhouse.

"Little Women" will be produced at William A. Brady's Playhouse on Monday evening. Unusual interest attaches to the event for various reasons, principal among which is in the fact that the novel from which the play is made has been more widely read than any other example of American fiction. The late Louisa M. Alcott wrote "Little Women" a round half century ago, and the vitality of the story is shown by the fact that it still maintains an annual sale considerably in excess of many new novels regarded as highly successful. Not uncommonly in American cities, and also in some English places, "Little Women" is a part of the fixed course in the public schools, and in many instances it is provided that candidates for teacherships must familiarize themselves with the book before they can be appointed.

A mistaken impression prevails in some quarters that Miss Alcott's narrative of simple home life in New England is a tale for children. This doubtless is caused by the title, when as a fact, Jo, Meg, Beth and Amy are at the marriageable age when poor little Beth's sweet life fades out. The birth of Meg's twins seemingly should be sufficient to dissipate the idea of juvenility, but in spite of this the delusion remains widespread.

In preparing "Little Women" for the stage it has been the aim of the dramatist and the producer to preserve the atmosphere of the story and to reproduce the beloved characters with fidelity rather than to mould a play upon scientific dramatic principles. The main incidents transferred from the type pages to vivified stage pictures are the acceptance of Jo's first story, the sudden call of Mrs. March to her husband's bedside in the Washington hospital, the visit of explosive but kind hearted Aunt March, the advent of Professor Bhaer, the courtship and marriage of John Brook and Meg, the regretful rejection of Laurie's suit by Jo, the flight of Beth's spirit just when the twins are born to Meg and John, the happy union of Professor Bhaer and Jo, and the engagement of Laurie and Amy.

The Town Richelieu Designed.

Beldam has a town been more wholly the expression of its founders than Richelieu, the tiny square built town in the corner of Touraine and Polton. It is like some old Greek colony. The streets are cut at right angles. The towers, the church, the private houses, are all wonderful examples of the purest Louis XIII. style. They were all built at the same time in accordance with the cardinal's plan to form a city by the little chateau which is supposed to have been the scene of his birth in 1585. Whether this be so or not (for another tradition places his birth at Paris), Richelieu was the place the cardinal loved and strove to dignify by founding a new town. He approved the plans of a square walled city with six gates, gave exemption from taxes to those inhabitants who built the first hundred houses and built for himself outside a marvelous chateau, rivaling the state of the king, which has since been destroyed.—Westminster Gazette.

Always Fairy Tales.

There has never been a language spoken that has not been used for telling fairy tales. Whether in hot lands or cold, among savages or the most cultivated nations—why, not a moment passes in which some one, somewhere, is not telling a fairy tale or listening to one or reading one or perhaps writing a new one, which makes it delightfully probable that we shall always have them with us, however scarce the fables may have made themselves in those prosaic and practical days.—Hildegard Hawthorne in St. Nicholas.

The Fitness of Things.

During a discussion of the fitness of things in general some one asked, "If a young man takes his best girl to the grand opera, spends $8 on a supper after the performance and then takes her home in a taxicab should he kiss her good night?"

An old bachelor who was present growled: "I don't think she ought to expect it. Seems to me he has done enough for her."—Argonaut.

Up Against It.

"There is an old proverb to the effect that 'when one door shuts another one opens,' so cheer up."

"That proverb don't help me none. My wife's mother is visitin' us an' the proverb ought to read, 'When one mouth shuts another one opens.'"—Boston Herald.

The Way Out of It.

She—So your cousin is thinking of marrying a new girl and settling down. He—Not exactly. He's thinking of marrying a rich girl and settling up.—Boston Transcript.

Contrary.

"When does your husband find time to do all his reading?"

"Usually when I want to tell him something important."—Detroit Free Press.

Sporting Comment.

WRESTLING SHOW MEETS

WITH FANS' APPROVAL.

A fair sized crowd of sportsmen turned out on Monday evening last at the Auditorium, Perth Amboy, to witness the first show of the Perno A. A. since it was closed by the authorities. As boxing has been prohibited, a full card of wrestling was staged and those in attendance expressed hearty approval and seemed as much interested as they had been at the boxing shows. So favorably was this first effort received that the management has decided to hold another meet in two weeks.

Of the bouts, that between Neil Olsen and Hans Lieber was the feature. The two men, both weighing over 200 pounds each, put up an exhibition of skill and strength that greatly pleased the members. Olsen got two out of three falls, thus proving himself the victor.

To throw a wiry opponent twice in thirty minutes is "going some." This was done by Jack Nilfol, feather-weight champion and instructor of wrestling at Columbia College, who threw Young Atlas, of Boston, twice in the time mentioned. The go was fast and at times it was difficult to tell one man from the other in the jumble of arms and legs struggling on the mat.

Felix King, of the D. A. A. C., of Perth Amboy, and Young Muhoney, of Staten Island, opened the show with twenty minutes of fond embracing, neither of them scoring a fall.

John Larson, who has a reputation of being a clever boy on the mat, acted as referee and Jack Woltzen was timekeeper. C. Howard Smith's Band furnished music.

The date of the next show will be announced later.

Neptunes Score First Victory.

In defeating the Newark Stars on Saturday evening the Neptune A. C. recorded their first victory of the season and were "there with the goods," in forty ways. The local boys surely had their eyes on the baskets and had no difficulty in shooting the ball. The score at the end of the first half was 17 to 11 in favor of the local five but in the final play the Nept doubled their score and when the bell tapped the score stood 34 to 21 with the long end in favor of Abe Forgotson's bunch.

Some changes were made in the line-up, Garland appearing at center, "Non" Miller and Tuckerton at guard and Jimmie Cantlon and Manhattan playing forward. And by the way, Jimmie Manhattan played in his last season's form and has strengthened the hopes of the Neptunes' backers who feared that the injured right arm might cause him trouble this year.

The visiting team put up a good fight, giving the locals a run for their money and the game proved interesting for the basketball fans. A large number was present and enjoyed the dancing which was provided by the management of the club. The attendance is expected to increase as the season progresses and some star attractions have been scheduled.

Organizing Football Team.

Wait until you see that football team which is being organized. The young men of the city are getting together and preparing to place on the gridiron an eleven which will be able to outclass anything in this region. The Dexters of Perth Amboy, Metuchen Field Club and other pigskin warriors in the county will be scheduled and if the South Amboy huskies don't show 'em a couple of tricks, it won't be because they don't have the ability.

Here's just a few of those suggested and who probably will line up when the first clash comes: Frank Kelly, who is employed by the P. R. R. in this city and who was picked last year as guard for the All-American eleven by several prominent newspapers. He played at that position at Lafayette and did practically all of their punting. Kelly is game to play for a local team and is anxious to have it organized.

Jimmie Cantlon is reputed to be a smashing good little quarterback while Les Stratton, Frank Disbrow, Lee Cozzens, Frank Delaney, Kid Everett, John Cozzens, Ambrose Atkinson and a number of others would make good material. Pete Magill is reputed to be a regular line "buster" and it is thought that Bloodgood, who played some crackerjack games for the High School will make one of the ends. Pete is game as a doornail and is a mighty fine tackler.

With just a few more classy eleven could be picked and when it comes to football, keep your eyes on South Amboy. We have the county baseball champs and local fans can bet their last dollar they could win the laurels with the pigskin.

Catholic Club Win at Basketball. The Catholic Club basketball team defeated the Knights of Columbus at Scully's Hall on Monday night. The Knights put up a good game but were not in it with the speedier young five. The score was 41 to 19.

They lined up as follows:

Cath. Club.	K. of C.
Casey, Cosgrove, F.....	Delaney
Dugan.....	F..... Nagel, Carr
O'Leary, Moran.....	Carey, Sutliff
Hanaway.....	G..... Gilchrist
Lovely.....	C..... Triggs

Field Goals: Casey, 2; O'Leary, 3;

Moran, 2; Hanaway, 6; Lovely, 4;

Delaney, 2; Nagle, 3; Carey, 1;

Triggs, 2. Foul Goals: Casey, 3; Dugan, Moran, Casey, 3; Nagle, 3.

Middlesex Stars Defeat Neptunes.

On Tuesday evening the Neptune A. C. went down to a 26 to 24 defeat at the hands of the Middlesex Stars, a five of the stars of the various county teams. Paul Check, the former manager of the Sayreville A. C., gathered the team together for the express purpose of walloping the Neptunes. They did this but they were given the biggest battle that they ever went up against. The score at the end of the first half was 20 to 8 in favor of the visitors but as soon as the 2nd half started the Nept got to work and by the brilliant floor work of Cantlon and Miller, and the fine defensive work of Tuckerton and Deegan the locals had no trouble shooting the baskets. When the final round was ended they were only two points behind the County Stars. "Poppy" Phair did nearly all of the shooting for the visiting team. Garland did not seem to be in his true form. The score was as follows:

Neps.	County Stars.
Cantlon.....	F..... Crabel
Miller.....	F..... McCreery
Garland.....	C..... Phair
Deegan.....	G..... Khulthau
Tuckerson.....	G..... Smith

Field Goals: Phair, 8; McCreery, 2;

Crabel, 1; Khulthau, 2; Cantlon, 3;

Garland, 4; Miller, 4; Tuckerson, 1.

Foul Goals: Cantlon and Phair.

Sport Dope.

This Friday night the Neptunes go to South River to clash with the South River A. C. It will be some basketball game and a number of fans intend to accompany them.

Atkinson, Stratton, Keating, Delaney, Campion and Higgins played with the South River A. C. on Sunday when they met the New Brunswick Stars. The South River bunch was defeated by the score of 10 to 4, but through no fault of the local players. Green, South River's catcher, threw wild with men on bases and handed the New Brunswick boys their runs. The South Amboy members of the losing team did some feature fielding.

Among other good things which can be said about Jimmie Cantlon is the fact that he always sticks to his home teams. Jimmie has had offers from a number of basketball fives but sticks to the Neptunes when he is needed. He has played 110 games with the Neps in two years and in all of these games did his share of work.

Few local basketball fans remember when basketball was introduced in this city. About three years ago Bill O'Toole and Molly introduced the sport in the old Columbia Hall and the team consisted of the three Manhattan brothers, Abe and Rube Forgotson and Molly. The boys spent their evenings at the court and soon became proficient in the sport. They have had, since then, three successful seasons and South Amboy has been placed on the county sporting map as a basketball town.

On Sunday the Philadelphia Athletics were defeated (11 to 1) by Dave Driscoll's New Brunswick team. As a local fan says, "The South Amboy Athletics might beat Driscoll's team, but even the World's Champs couldn't beat that umpire."

Here's what a prominent South Amboy sport picks as the champion Middlesex County basketball five: Centre, Schwartz; forwards, Cantlon and Miller; guards, Crabel and Sullivan. The fact that three Neptune players are mentioned does not make the choice seem partial for it is very doubtful if three better men than the first three named can be picked.

The night before the World Series commenced Harris Covell came around and gave away tickets to the first game between the Giants and Boston. Everybody thought Harris was a sport until they read the tickets. On the corner of the ticket was printed: "Bring this ticket to .....s saloon and hear the score of the games."

The World Series games between the Giants and Boston Red Sox certainly is stirring up a lot of interest in South Amboy. A large number from this city witnessed the games played during the week at New York. The scores of the games were displayed after each game at Kaufman's store and hundreds gathered to watch the score board as the results of the games came in.

John Kane is manager of the Neptune Juniors and wishes to schedule games with teams of equal calibre. The Neptune Juniors will travel or play at home. This fast young aggregation expects to come through with a great record this year.

This Saturday night the Neptunes meet the fast Anchor Five of Newark at the K. of P. Hall. Abe Forgotson will strengthen his lineup against this strong team and expects to land a winner.

This Saturday night the Neptune Juniors will meet the Sayreville A. A. Juniors on the home court. Both teams are speedy and a close result is expected.

Who put out the lights at the last basketball game? During a close tussle in the game some wag turned out the electric lights. Just as Rube went to light the gas they were turned on again.

Well, I guess that was some game of football on Tuesday morning. We don't know the lineup but "Dizzy" made some fine tackles.

THE AMERICAN ROAD CONGRESS.

The American Road Congress at Atlantic City was the largest and perhaps the most influential gathering of interests of good roads that ever assembled in the United States. Its deliberations, which extended over an entire week, were participated in not only by American authorities on roads and road building, but by eminent experts from France and Canada.

In so far as the general trend of the deliberations is concerned, there was practical agreement upon certain road policies. For instance, there was not a dissenting vote to the resolution favoring government aid to certain interstate highways. Times without number, not only in the formal papers, but in the general discussions, it was made apparent that the congress believed our highways should be classified as national, State and county, according to the extent of the community which they serve.

Whatever may be said, however, as to the interstate character of certain roads, the federal aid proposal ought to be approached very cautiously.

Another point upon which there was absolute unanimity was that the chief road failure here in the United States has to do with road maintenance. We are building good roads, thousands upon thousands of miles of them. Perhaps at present no country in the world is building better. The trouble is that once built, they are permitted to deteriorate until costly repairs are necessary.

The congress held that any appropriation for road building is extravagant unless it is accompanied by an appropriation for maintenance. The road begins to deteriorate the moment it is placed at the disposal of the public. The decay is noticeable only to the trained eye at first, but unless it is corrected very speedily, it results in greater or less road destruction, which is always expensive.

A patrol system similar to that of France is now employed in many sections of the country with great success, and this is most heartily advocated by the congress. However accomplished, though, the continuous maintenance of the roads from the moment of their completion was shown to be the highest road economy.

It was repeatedly stated on the floor of the congress, that a poorly constructed road, properly maintained, serves the public more satisfactorily and at less expense than a well-built road permitted to go in the usual way.

Another point of general agreement was to the general effect that the whole road movement, here and abroad, is in a transition state. The advent of the automobile has created a road problem of which the fathers did not dream, and one that the present generation has not solved to its satisfaction. There is general search for new road materials, new methods of road building, and maintenance and new plans for road administration. As to the results achieved, there was a division of opinion, but the congress seemed to agree that the road of the future would meet all demands made upon it.

The folly of issuing long term bonds to build roads lasting a few years naturally got thoroughly shown up at this point.—Newark News.

Hopi Indian Debutantes.

Among the Hopi girls of marriageable age signify their willingness for matrimony by doing their hair up in whorls, one over each ear. In the symbolism of the tribe these whorls represent the blossoms of the squash vine. These whorls are taken down at marriage, and thereafter the matron wears her hair in two rolls, one hanging down each side of her face. These rolls are said to represent the fruit of the squash.—Christian Herald.

Sure of His Choir.

A peppery New England parson who was disturbed by his choir during prayer time got even with them when he gave out his closing hymn by adding, "I hope the entire congregation will join in singing their grand old hymn, and I know the choir will, for I heard them humming it during the prayer."

A Fine Distinction.

"Is your daughter willing to learn to cook and sweep?"
"No; she declines to do those things. But she says she'll take a course in domestic science if we'll send her to some college."—Louisville Courier Journal.

A Debt Recognized.

"The world owes me a living!" shouted the exultant theorist.
"Well," replied the serene citizen, "you're alive, aren't you?"—Washington Star.

Greatest Display

Ever Held in American Waters.

The official programme for the great Atlantic fleet mobilization in New York harbor was made public by the Navy Department last Saturday. With the programme is printed a comprehensive handbook of rules and regulations governing the review, both on water and land.

The rendezvous opened officially Sunday, Oct. 6, when, with the fleet proper assembled, Rear-Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, commander-in-chief, arrived in New York. He was greeted by the local reception committee. On Monday Admiral Osterhaus and Mayor Gaynor exchanged formal calls.

On Thursday Secretary Meyer's yacht, the Dolphin, arrived in the harbor. The reserve fleet and its auxiliaries, under Rear Admiral Knight, steamed into the harbor on that day and took their positions in line. Friday the torpedo boat destroyers arrived.

The bluejackets from all the vessels taking part in the mobilization will participate in a land parade Oct. 12 and the same night there will be a smoker for approximately 600 officers at one of the hotels.

The First Big Day.

Secretary Meyer and his aides arrive "unofficially" aboard the yacht Dolphin Oct. 13.

Monday, Oct. 14, will be the first big day of the review. That morning at eight o'clock about 250 newspaper men will be taken aboard the gunboat Nashville and the Secretary's yacht, and the Nashville will steam for a point near the flagship, where they will anchor. Division commanders will then assemble on the fleet flagship. Secretary Meyer will break flag on the Dolphin when nearing the flagship. This will be the signal for a salute of nineteen guns. Then will follow the official visit of the Commander-in-Chief, Chief of Staff and division commanders to the Secretary aboard the Dolphin. Boats will take the members of the House and Senate Naval Committees from the Seventy-ninth street landing to the Dolphin. Secretary Meyer will return the visit of Rear-Admiral Osterhaus, and with him and the Chief of Staff will inspect one of the newest Dreadnaughts, the Arkansas or Wyoming, which have just been added to the fleet.

Upon the return of the Secretary aboard the Dolphin that vessel will get under way for the Secretary's review. The Secretary will be accompanied by the Commander-in-Chief and the Chief of Staff. Cannon Will Roar When Taft Comes. The Secretary will be followed by the Mayor's committee on the steamer Hendrick Hudson.

Shortly after noon, October 14, the booming of all the guns on the vessels in a national salute will announce the arrival of President Taft aboard the Presidential yacht Mayflower. When she anchors Secretary Meyer and his aides will go aboard. The President's flag will then be hauled down and the Mayflower will proceed to a position near the flagship. Again the yacht will break the President's flag while the entire fleet booms the Presidential salute of twenty-one guns. Small boats will take 250 guests from the Seventy-ninth street landing to the Dolphin.

Upon the Mayflower anchoring the division commanders will assemble on the fleet flagship, and then the Commander-in-Chief, Chief of Staff and division commanders will call officially on President Taft aboard the Mayflower. The President will then return the call of the Commander-in-Chief and will visit the Arkansas or Wyoming. Then the Mayflower with the President and Secretary Meyer aboard, and followed by the Dolphin and Nashville, will pass along and review the fleet.

In the evening, Oct. 14, there will be an official dinner ashore for President Taft, his Cabinet and 600 naval officers.

On Oct. 15 boats will take 200 guests to the Dolphin from Forty-second street, and from the same place the newspaper men will be carried to the Nashville. Secretary Meyer and his aides will go aboard the Mayflower.

When these arrangements are completed the Mayflower, Dolphin and Nashville will proceed to a reviewing position, and at 11 o'clock in the morning the fleet will pass out to sea with the fleet flagship leading.

NEW TIMES,
NEW ISSUES.

Equal Distribution of Wealth
the Great Problem.

NEW PARTY, NEW PROGRAM.

Why Roosevelt as Candidate of United Progressive Party Can Get Results and Governor Wilson as Candidate of Divided Party Cannot Get Results.

By GEORGE L. RECORD.

The needs of the times demand a new program of reform which neither of the old parties can produce, and the new party has therefore been formed upon a new program.

The great issue in the last analysis is the more equitable distribution of wealth. The country feels that those who do the work do not get their fair share of the product. Some get more than they earn. Others, the majority, get much less than they earn. This is the essence of slavery, which, as Lincoln said, was the world old fight to prevent one man from saying to many men, "You earn the bread and I will eat it." There are many disquieting signs. Huge fortunes are piling up in the hands of a few. The prices of the necessities of life are steadily rising and wages, if they increase at all, do not keep pace with the increasing cost of living. In hard times thousands of people are thrown out of work and experience actual suffering. In the great cities the horrible poverty of large congested sections, with the incident of sweatshop labor, alarms all thoughtful persons. The census shows an average wage of less than $600 per year, which is too little for the support of a family. The railroads are increasing freight rates directly or indirectly, which the people pay in the enhanced price of everything they buy, all of which comes over the railroad. The financial institutions of the country are under the control of a few people, who can give or withhold credit. Child labor and the labor of women in factories are becoming more frequent.

The disappearance of the independent farmer owning his own land in the west and the growth in his place of the tenant farmer, who is compelled to yield the bulk of his crop for the rent of his land, is another very bad sign. The possession of the ore beds, coal mines and forests of the country by a few is a powerful monopoly by which the people are robbed. The excessive tariff is familiar to all.

Here, then, is a tremendous problem, or series of problems. This situation calls for new remedies, and on every new proposal or issue the people divide irrespective of their former party affiliations, just as the Whigs and Democrats divided on slavery. Therefore, the old Republican party and the Democratic party are both hopelessly split upon these modern questions, and nothing can be hoped from them; besides which the Republican party is controlled almost wholly by the corporate interests of the country, and the Democratic party is in large part so controlled. The Progressive party, on the other hand, is a united party, and presents a new and promising program.

Our first proposition is that the government has drifted from the hands of the people into the hands of the great corporate interests, exercised through an alliance with the political bosses of both parties, who work for their own pockets all the time. Nothing can be done until we get the government out of the hands of these interests and back into the hands of the people. To this end we propose:

First.—The direct primary, by means of which every candidate of every party, from president down, shall be chosen by the direct vote of the party voters, at an official primary, surrounded by the same safeguards as the general election in place of the old delegate and convention system.

Second.—Election of United States senators by popular vote, which will do away with the Lorimer and Penrose type of senators.

Third.—Direct legislation, or the initiative and referendum, whereby a reasonable percentage of the people may, by petition, compel the submission to popular vote of a proposed law, and, if adopted, it shall become an actual law.

Fourth.—The recall of judges or of judicial decisions, whereby the power will be taken from the courts of setting aside as unconstitutional popular laws, such as employers' liability laws, laws limiting the hours of labor for women, etc., by decisions which are based upon no precedent, but are in effect judicial legislation.

Fifth.—Constitutional provisions making it easy to amend our state and national constitutions as the needs of modern progress require.

This program will put in the hands of the people the tools of democracy and prevent control of legislation by the powerful corporate and financial interests.

On the tariff we declare for the principle of protection, limited to the difference in the cost of production here and abroad, to be ascertained by a permanent nonpartisan tariff commission, with the fullest power of investigation. We declare that no tariff is justified unless its effects reach the pay envelope of the worker in higher wages.

We propose to handle the trusts by the creation of a new industrial commission somewhat on the lines of the interstate commerce commission, with the widest powers of investigation, supervision and regulation. This commission will have power to investigate the securities, the prices and the values of the property and the trade conditions of every great trust and the power to put a stop to further watered stock and to all unfair methods of competition, and if such investigation shall show these trusts to be built upon privilege we will abolish the privilege.

We also propose to attack directly some of the most obvious evils of the modern industrial life. We will forbid the work of women and children in factories at night and will stand for a limitation of the number of hours during which they can be compelled to work during the daytime. We stand for a minimum wage for women below which employers cannot take advantage or their necessity to drive down wages. We stand for the eight hour day in continuous employment. We stand also for giving the interstate commerce commission power to value the physical property of railroads, for the parcels post and for the income and inheritance tax on great fortunes.

We stand for a program in Alaska where we can try the experiment of various radical proposals which it is difficult or impossible to try out in the rest of the country, such as government ownership of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, government leasing of coal and mineral lands with a clause of forfeiture for nonuses, etc. In this way we can gain most vital experience for use in the remainder of the country in due time when we are sure of our ground.

Here is a program that is an honest attempt to grapple with new conditions. It offers hope to the worker. It assures the obtaining of the information by which alone we can hope to solve the industrial problem. Upon this program the Progressive party asks and deserves the support of the people.

Bay Tree Beliefs.

Long before the time of Shakespeare the bay tree was an object of superstition. The withering of such a tree was believed to be a sure indication of coming misfortune to those with whom it was in any way connected. Shakespeare gave voice to the superstition in "Richard II," when he made one of his characters say:

"Tis thought the king is dead, we'll not stay.
The bay trees in our country are withered."

It was thought by the ancients that lightning would never harm this tree, and it was customary among them to carry bay leaves as a charm against the thunderbolts of Jove. The same belief was long prevalent in England, and reference to it may be found in an old poem dedicated to Ben Jonson: I see that wreatheth whet's both the wearer's
Against the quick strokes of thunder is no charm
To keep off death's pale dart.

A very novel manner of recording the increase in the organ fund of the Methodist Episcopal Church has been originated by L. E. Stults. Mr. Stults has erected a very large thermometer in one corner of the church and as the organ debt decreases the thermometer raises to the amount. Jesse Fuller and son Albert, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday last with Wm. Munson, of Second street. Mr. Fuller came for two purposes; to hear the new pipe organ in the Methodist Episcopal Church and see his many friends in this city. While Mr. Fuller was employed by the P. R. R. as Terminal Shipping Agent in this city, he made many friends and the only regret he had as to his visit was that he could not get to see them all.

WILSON ON N. J. CORPORATIONS

(From Newark Evening News.)

Senator Joseph M. Dixon simply repeated an erroneous statement when he accused Governor Wilson of keeping silent on the subject of incorporation laws of New Jersey. He intimated further that this alleged silence was due to "that filthy stream of corporation fees from monopolies, not only legalized, but sheltered, in New Jersey, which has flowed into the State treasury."

A few quotations from public utterances by Governor Wilson show that he has freely expressed his views on this subject. In his inaugural address, he called attention to the injustice of some of the State's incorporations laws, and urged "the imperative obligation of public policy and of public honesty we are under to effect such changes in the law of the State as will henceforth effectually prevent the abuse of the privilege of incorporation which has in recent years brought so much discredit upon our State," in the same document, he called for action that would also bring about the regulation of corporations already holding Jersey charters.

The Governor did not stop with this expression of views. The next year, after the Legislature had failed to heed his words, he drafted a plank in his party platform, which was adopted by the Democratic State convention, calling attention to the lax methods of incorporation and favoring "such changes in our law as will throw the proper safeguards around the powers of the corporations henceforth to be created, and, wherever possible, around the further exercise of the powers of those already created."

The fact is, therefore, that Governor Wilson did not keep silent, as charged, and many other public utterances by him on the same line are as strong. As to his present stand on the subject, it is outlined in the Democratic State platform of this year, adopted by a convention of which the Governor was a member, in which is declared the belief "that our present corporation act has been used as an instrument to create conditions which have resulted injuriously to the public. We favor an immediate investigation of the method of incorporation pursued in this State under our laws, and we pledge our party to the enactment of such salutary checks upon incorporations and increase of capital and merger of corporations as will effectually tend to prevent monopolies and have a wholesome tendency to restrict the issuance of securities unless the issuance thereof is founded upon bona fide valuation."

These statements talk louder than does Senator Dixon. They define the views of the Governor of this State both before and after he was nominated for the Presidency. Any intimation that he has been dodging this issue, and especially that he has been doing so from sordid motives, is unfair, and can be accounted for only on the theory that his words fell on deaf ears.

Away He Went.

"Madam, I'm traveling around the world on a wager. I have to make good time or I lose my bet."

"Well, I don't mind letting my bulldog pace you a couple of miles. Here Tighe."—Kansas City Journal.

Eiffel Tower's Changes.

That the Eiffel tower moves daily vertically and horizontally has long been beyond doubt. It may be seen in a gale swaying from side to side. M. Guillaume has been investigating these movements and has given the results in a paper read before the Academy of Science. He finds that the great iron structure may vary from two to three centimeters in height every day. The elevation and depression are not equally distributed, as only one of its sides may be affected by the rise or fall of the temperature, and thus the tower may be compared to a person shifting his weight alternately from one foot to another. If a cloud covers the tower and hides the sun the temperature falls a few degrees and the tower diminishes, and when the sun shines again it rapidly rises a centimeter or two. But the bolts holding the frame together are affected only to an infinitesimal degree. Therefore there is no danger of any violent dislocation.—Exchange.

GREAT AVIATION MEET AT OAKWOOD HEIGHTS.

Frank Coffyn, who last winter made hydro-aeroplaning famous in the city, is going to fly Robert J. Collier's aeroplane this Saturday afternoon from Wickatunk, to the Aeronautical Society's grounds at Oakwood Heights Staten Island.

Mr. Collier, who is the president of the Aero Club of America, has consented to help the Aeronautical Society make its meet a success by having his machine make this cross country flight which will be about 30 miles. Mr. Coffyn, who has been in his country home at Hobart, N. Y., has come here especially to fly at the Oakwood Heights tournament.

The Aeronautical Society has received so many requests from aviators who want to take part in the tournament that it has been necessary to hire extra tents for the housing of the machines. There will be about as many machines at Oakwood Heights this Saturday afternoon as there were at Belmont Park during the International Meet.

It is expected that there will be at least 5,000 sailors from the fleet at the meet as the Aeronautical Society especially selected Columbus Day in order to make the tournament part of the celebration for the members of the visiting fleet.

Some of the big features of the day will be the altitude flying by Miss Ruth Bancroft Law; Frederick Rodman Law's parachute jump from Harry Bingham Brown's aeroplane 2,000 feet high; George W. Beatty's demonstration of the Turkey Trot; Prof. Hoffman's sharp shooting from an aeroplane; Captain Baldwin's stunts with his Red Devil and as a finale, the grand review of the entire fleet of aeroplanes in military formation.

A large delegation of automobiles is expected at the aviation meet. The Society has provided special parking space for 600 automobiles. The roads on Staten Island for motorists are excellent and the easiest way to reach the field from New York is by Staten Island Ferry to St. George. From St. George by the Richmond and Amboy Roads to Guyon Avenue, and east on Guyon avenue to the field.

The card of events will start at 2 p. m. and those from this city who wish to attend can reach the field by way of Perth Amboy and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway.

THE DOG AND THE CHILD.

The sight of a pet dog occupying in solitary state the tonneau of an automobile bound for the country never fails to awaken serious reflections in the mind of the thoughtful pedestrian.

As the motor car rolls grandly past, the thoughtful pedestrian sees a ragged little child in the gutter, sharing a carmine lollipop with a typhoid fly, and he thinks how much better things would be if the dog and the child might change places.

If the child might have the dog's seat in the gliding car and ride through the park and country in the golden autumn; and if the dog might lie in the gutter and consume the child's aniline confection, how much better for all parties concerned, possibly excepting the fly.

But things are unevenly divided in this blue world. The mucilaginous lollipop is eaten by the child, whose stomach it will undermine; while the dog, to whom the coal tar delicacy would mean only a barkish night, rides through ruddy October scenery that suggests nothing to its animal mind but raw beefsteak.

For the child, the gutter and a stomach ache. For the dog, the luxurious comfort of a speeding motor car and the glorious inspiration of the country. For the reflective observer, pedestrianism and his thoughts.—Newark News.

A Funny Siamese Custom.

They have a very funny fashion in Siam. When an inferior comes into the presence of a superior he throws himself upon the ground. Then the superior sends one of his attendants forward to see whether the prostrate man has been eating anything or has any offensive odor about him. If he be blameless in this respect the attendant raises him from the ground, but if he be guilty the attendant straightway kicks him out.

A Useful Paragraph.

Singleton—What do you want it for?

Wedderly—I want to show that paragraph to my wife.

Pretty Long at Times.

"I believe honesty pays in the long run."

"So do I. But I often wish it were not such a mighty long run."—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Didn't Count.

Mr. Thind (hearing a voice at 2 a. m.)—I think, dear, that there is a man in the house. Wife (scornfully)—Not in this room.—London Sketch.

A Lesson In Giving

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Of course the people of Smithville had heard of the celebrated "cowboy preacher," so called because of his regeneration from one of the wildest desperadoes of the west to become a missionary among the cattlemen of the great plains. The name of the Rev. Jackson Kidder often appeared in the missionary monthly to which everybody in Smithville subscribed, and there had been much discussion concerning the success that had followed his simple, unaffected appeals to the souls of the men he sought to save.

The Ladies' Missionary society had taken undoubted pleasure in packing a barrel to send to the newly ordained minister when the missionary monthly dutifully announced that interesting event.

Mrs. Deacon Baxter generously contributed her son Willie's Christmas muffler and his five-bladed knife, and the packing of the barrel in Mrs. Baxter's kitchen was accompanied by the subdued roars of little Willie, who lifted his voice from the murky depths of the kitchen left in vain expostulation.

"Trash barrel!" sniffed Mrs. Weeks contemptuously after a scornful examination of the barrel. "You can't fool the Lord, sisters!" And as evidence of her conviction on this point Mrs. Weeks contributed a huge roll of flannel and a bolt of chocolate-colored calico. "There's one thing about it—that cowboy preacher can hold a rummage sale after he gets this barrel and maybe get money enough to buy what he wants."

The barrel went on its way, and in due time there came back a letter from Jackson Kidder effusively thanking the good ladies of Smithville for their generous donation and asking that he might have the pleasure of ad-

A grim smile played around Mr. Kidder's lips as a murmur of horror passed like a wave over the room. He thrust a hand deep in his trousers pocket and drew therefrom Willie Baxter's knife, with several long strides he had left the platform and was placing the knife in Willie's shamelessly eager hand.

While the congregation looked scornfully upon the avaricious Willie Baxter and his embarrassed mother, the preacher went back to the platform and continued his address:

For twenty minutes by the clock above the door the cowboy preacher held his listeners spellbound by the magic of his silver-tongued eloquence. His views on the subject of missions were convincingly strong in favor of the heathen at home in Smithville rather than those indefinite but more picturesque idolaters in some foreign, spice-laden land.

"And now," he ended vigorously, "show your desire to help along the great cause, whether at home or abroad. Demonstrate your willingness to live up to your protestations of gratitude to the one who has prospered you. Come and lay your choicest treasures in this alms basin. Come!"

There was an uneasy rustling among the congregation, and somebody moved toward the door.

"Stop!" cried the preacher. And he emphasized the command by producing two blue muzzled revolvers. "Deacon Pringle, kindly lock the door and lay the key on the table. Thank you! My hearers, this is merely one of my peculiar methods of exhortation. Now I am ready to receive your offerings. Who will be the first one to come forward?"

Somebody creaked up the aisle and gravely deposited a silver coin in the alms basin that was placed on the table beside the key. Another followed and still another, but the amounts were small and evidently displeasing to the preacher.

"Now, all the persons in the front seats come forward and lay their offerings in this basket. No matter how humble it is, it will be appreciated. I demand that you, as Christians, divest yourselves of gold and silver jewelry and of precious stones and place them here for the use of the poor!"

"Come, Brother Pringle; you may lead the way with your gold watch. A silver timepiece will answer your purposes, and maybe some poor sinner may be clothed and fed and warmed with the proceeds. Sister Beesley, your garnet brooch will not come amiss, and the brother who wears the large seal ring must offer that as evidence of his good faith. Those of you who can may redeem whatever you please with good money tomorrow morning before the church service, but I require that every man and woman in this room contribute something."

And they did. They came forward, protesting mildly in the face of those blue muzzled revolvers that seemed to follow each individual doggedly around until a contribution of some sort had been made. There were indignation, rage and despair among the good people of Smithville as they sullenly divested themselves of jewels in lieu of money.

Deacon Pringle compromised on a fifty dollar note instead of his gold watch, and those who knew the deacon's avarice smiled even as they were called upon to deliver up their portion.

When the meeting was declared closed and the revolvers were dropped back in Mr. Kidder's capacious pockets Deacon Pringle unlocked the door. There was a wild rush for departure, and not one friendly hand was outstretched to the cowboy preacher, nor did one person express any pleasure or profit derived from his eloquent discourse. Even the Pringles departed abruptly, and Mr. Storer, who had uttered frightened ejaculations during the sensational discourse of the visiting preacher, stood mutely waiting for his brother cleric.

Smiling bitterly, the Rev. Jackson Kidder lifted the brimming alms basin and placed it in the hands of the pastor.

"Brother," he said quietly, "tomorrow morning return these ornaments to the owners. God wants nothing given unwillingly or under compulsion. Tell them to talk less about loving and giving. Impress upon them the necessity for actually doing these things generously, unostentatiously. I regret that I cannot keep my engagement to preach to your people tomorrow. I am sure that they will not be disappointed."

With a quick shake of the bewildered pastor's limp hand and a murmured blessing on him and his indignant flock, the cowboy preacher passed swiftly from the church and strode toward the railroad station.

His going was unattended by any curiosity or interest. Few saw him leave and none cared. Once he paused and chuckled softly to himself: "If it hadn't been for Willie Baxter's indignant letter which he slipped into the barrel I should never have come down here. 'You bring back my knife!' he commanded. Well, Willie was honest about it anyway," he ended, with a sigh.

Before he reached the station pattering footsteps came behind him, and he turned to see Willie Baxter, panting and breathless.

"Say, mister," gasped Billy repentantly, "I'm sorry about that knife. I sneaked out of bed and I saw you coming up the street, so I followed you. I want you to give this knife to your little 'Dolphus' with my regards," he ended, shamefacedly, for the cowboy preacher had taken Willie in his arms and kissed him tenderly.

"I will," he said solemnly. And as the train bore him away he smiled thoughtfully. "Who shall say it has been in vain?" he murmured.

Rules For Autumn Guests.

The plaint of the hostess is again heard in the land. The house parties of autumn are supposed to be joyous affairs, but often the joy of both hostess and guest is of the tempered variety. The following list of "don'ts" comes from the heart of a suffering hostess. A careful application of these rules will, she says, insure a second invitation:

Don't wait a couple of weeks before accepting an invitation to visit a friend. It is possible that she desires to make plans for other guests. Write at once—day, train and length of stay.

Don't take a large trunk for a brief visit. It is sometimes most inconvenient to handle, especially if no handy man is employed.

Don't fail to make the train promised or to go on the day appointed without giving notice by telegram or telephone.

Don't keep a meal waiting while you make an elaborate toilet, if you arrive about meal time.

Don't be officious in trying to save the maid's work by doing the chamber work for them.

Don't, however, leave your personal belongings carelessly about the room. Don't drop medicine on the top of a white enamel dressing table. Many hostesses have had real heartaches after a guest's departure over spots and stains.

Don't unpack your suit case on an immaculate white bedspread.

Don't compel your hostess to wait breakfast for you half an hour after the usual time, while the cook is worrying over spoiled food.

Don't fail to give your hostess a chance to get a little afternoon rest. A quiet withdrawal for an hour or two will be beneficial to you both.

Don't follow your hostess into the kitchen unless invited. Many a pleasant culinary surprise has been spoiled in that way.

Don't, after presenting your hostess with a generous box of candy, feel it your duty to eat almost the whole contents of the box. Let her have a chance to enjoy some of it after you have departed.

Don't forget to have a pleasant morning greeting for the servants. No one loses by gracious courtesy to all with whom he comes in contact.

Don't, if you have a family of children and they were omitted in the invitation, think a change might do them good and take them with you; also do not take a friend to whom you would like to give an outing at some one else's expense mentally and financially.

Don't monopolize the bathroom at rising time. Remember others are waiting for the morning tub.

Don't, if you smoke, scatter matches, cigar and cigarette ends about the house or on the front lawn, and don't let the cigarette burn a hole in the table top or cloth. Ask for a receptacle, if none is handy, and use it.

Don't overstay the time limit of your visit or embarrass your hostess by compelling her to hint that other guests are expected.

Don't, above all, fail to write a kindly, courteous note of appreciation of hospitality received after your return home.

Outfit For the Groom.

The proper dress for the bridegroom at a morning or afternoon wedding consists of a black or dark blue frock coat, high white double-breasted waistcoat or one that matches the coat in texture, gray trousers, white linen, a full folded white silk or satin necktie, or one having a white background relieved by figured decoration in color, gray suede gloves, patent leather shoes and a top hat.

For an evening wedding a dress suit should be worn. This consists of a clawhammer coat, black trousers, low cut white waistcoat, a white lawn tie around a standing collar, white gloves and patent leather shoes.

The bridegroom usually has one attendant, that one being the best man. It is his duty to make himself as useful as possible to the bridegroom. If the bridegroom desires it he should assist in planning and preparing for the wedding journey, in procuring the ring and the license and social details involved.

The bride or her parents send out all invitations and announcements. A list of the groom's friends and relatives is secured from him, so that no one will be slighted.

New Engagement Ring.

A new engagement ring will be fancied by the girl who likes unusual and interesting trinkets. Instead of being set with the conventional solitaire, this ring has two sunken stones, one the birthstone of the groom and the other the bride's special luck talisman. There is a hidden clasp under the setting, and the ring may be broken apart between the two sunken jewels. On the inner faces of gold which form the halves of the separated ring are inscribed the names of the engaged pair or any tender sentiment never intended for alien eyes.

Visiting Card Etiquette.

In paying calls in strange cities, write your temporary address in the corner opposite that in which the engraved address appears. When calling in a hotel it is sensible to write the name of the person for whom it is intended, so as to prevent confusion.

M. P. CHURCH NOTES

The bakery and chowder sale held by the Sunday School last Friday proved a grand success. Thanks to all.

Gas fixtures have been installed and the new heating plant, which is being installed by V. N. James, is nearly completed in the new parsonage.

After the usual song service the closing service was held, the pastor preaching on God's Blessing upon us the past year. A very large congregation was present, finishing up the old year in a grand way.

The C. E. service was largely attended and very interesting exercises held. Mr. Haue led the meeting. One aged sister thrilled the service by giving her testimony as to her conversion over 50 years ago.

The last Quarterly meeting of the old Conference year was a day of great refreshing from the presence of the Lord. Communion service, Love Feast and experience meetings were services of deep spiritual power.

Among the many good things accomplished the past year the church has remembered a number of the deceased members by having their names put upon the memorial roll and contributions to their names of Preacher's Aid Society.

The effort on the part of the Sunday School to make their offerings to the parsonage fund $500 was a success. $64.37 were turned in last Sunday making a total of $512 given by the School alone in about nine months. Great rejoicing was manifested in the victory achieved.

At the last Quarterly Conference, held Thursday night of last week, business of importance was transacted. The work of the past year was received and all departments showed progress. The delegate was unanimously instructed to ask for the return of the present pastor.

ignoring Noise.

Our suggestion that the senses be trained to ignore noise recalls Lord Lyndhurst's heroism. He found education in distraction. "I recollect many years ago," he wrote, "when I was studying in chambers, having a neighbor who was learning to scrape on the violin. I was at first disposed to complain of my neighbor's innocent pastime as an annoyance, but on a little reflection I said to myself, 'Is it wise in me to object? Let me see whether I cannot stand it without distraction. If I can, what an admirable discipline it will be to me in pursuing my mathematical studies!' After a time I ceased to hear the nuisance as it was called; it made no impression on me." Even an amateur violinist has his apostolic mission!—London Chronicle.

ORIGINAL POEM OF IRELAND'S OWN.

I read of late in 'The Advocate' a prize would be given 'way' For best composition in competition among poets of our day. The poem to appear both far and near, name and address likewise Of the poet whose best in the Herald test for winning of the prize.

In ancient days Ireland raised famed bards and warriors brave, Kings and sages down through the ages were renowned Celts she gave.

Our country then produced great men when kings for centuries reigned, While bards sang praise in poetic lays of warriors who were famed.

We still inherit their poetic merit whoso'er we be, Across the foam or our native home of a country that is free, Until alone came to the land of fame fierce havoc on it made, As history shows and the world knows our Isle they did invade.

Her poets to-day where'er they stay are like the bards of old, Able to compose of braves and foes their deeds can well unfold, Some poems I've sent to appear in print and with them signed my name, No editor refused while he perused the lines composed by same.

I hope we'll see our green Isle free once more before we die, But must depend on our best friend, Him who rules on high, Who formed the earth, land of our birth, from where we're forced to sail, Across the foam far, far from home, our own loved Innisfail.

The Irish race can hold its place all over at any meet.

In erudition, athletics or battlefield they're hard for to defeat, Had I great lore I'd praise them more for the fame that in them lies, But I've done my best in the poem contest, hope readers won't criticize.

JOHN O'BRIEN,

424 43rd St., Brooklyn, N. Y. I like the way Liam O'Shea gives praise to Paddy Ryan. In his wonderful showing at hammer throwing with the missile he's doing fine.

NEW JERSEY NEWS CONDENSED.

Items of Interest From all Parts of the State as Gleaned From Our Exchanges Briefly Paragraphed.

Enlarging Keansburg Dock.

Work has been begun on widening the dock of the Keansburg Steamboat Company at Keansburg. An eight-foot path for pedestrians will be constructed on one side and piling will be driven to support trolley tracks on the other. It is intended to have a spur connecting the boats with the Jersey Central Traction Company's tracks in operation by next summer, as well as cars direct to the Keansburg depot. The steamboat landing will also be considerably enlarged. John E. Howland, formerly of Seabright, has the contract to do all the work.

Dairy Company Breaks Ground.

The Greenfield Dairy Company which has offices in a number of cities and towns in the state, have broken ground for a new creamery building in Keyport. They have bought two lots of James S. Walling on Division street, in the rear of the hygeia ice plant and adjacent to the New Jersey Central Railroad tracks, and will erect a substantial building on them.

Trolley Companies' Bond Transactions

A certificate filed with the secretary of State on Monday by the Trenton and Elizabeth Railroad Company, which operates a trolley line between the two municipalities, indicates that it has issued and sold $300,000 of fifty-year five per cent. gold bonds under a mortgage given to the Logan Trust Company of Philadelphia. An issue of $250,000 worth of similar bonds under a mortgage by the West End Trust Company of Philadelphia, was made by the Riverside Traction Company as shown by a certificate filed with the secretary of State Monday. This company operates a trolley line between Trenton and Camden.

A Perfect Record at Sunday School.

Samuel Winterton, of Keyport, was presented with two medals for fifty years of perfect attendance as Sunday-school Sunday at the First Baptist Church at that place. The first medal was given by the Sunday-school of the church, and the second by the Monmouth County Sunday-school Association. William F. Stanhope made the presentation for the church and Captain Parsons, of Red Bank, for the association. At the age of four Mr. Winterton was taken to Sunday-school by his mother and has not missed a Sunday since Mr. Winterton is now fifty-four years old and lives with his brother in Broad street, Keyport.

Seabright Mayor in Auto Mishap.

Mayor and Mrs. George W. Elliott, of Seabright, were in an automobile accident near Belvidere Sunday afternoon, in which Mrs. Elliott was pitched out of the machine driven by her husband and received bruises and scratches on the left side of the head and on the left arm. Mayor Elliott escaped injury. The couple started early Sunday morning and drove to Delaware Water Gap, but on the return, while they were descending a long hill, the brake refused to work, and to avoid a more serious accident Mr. Elliott ditched his machine. A passing auto carried word to a Belvidere garage, which sent a relief crew to patch up the Elliott machine, but it was four o'clock Monday before Mr. and Mrs. Elliott reached home.

Found Dead in Alleyway.

Three hours after he has purchased provisions at Mahoney's store, Freehold, Saturday evening, the dead body of Martin Loftus, twenty-eight years old, was discovered in the alley beside the store. Loftus had been picking potatoes for Michael Crine, Jr., at Wickatunk, for six weeks. Coroner A. W. Bennett, of Belmar, ordered an autopsy, which was performed by Drs. H. W. Ingling and Harvey S. Brown. Alcoholism was ascribed as the cause of death. The body was claimed by Loftus's brothers in Washington, D. C.

Father and Son in the Same Cell.

Owing to alleged violations of the school law, Keron Coffey and his son, William Coffey, sixteen years old of Rahway, were arrested Saturday by Truant Officer Krause and lodged in the same cell. Later the father was released in $100 and the son in $50 bail for a hearing Thursday night before Police Justice Buckley. Young Coffey had his father's permission to go to work for a local construction company and did so, ignoring a notice sent to his father to have the boy attend school. The boy says he has the permission of the city clerk to go to work.

Suspicious Shore Hotel Fire.

Fire in which a strong odor of gasoline was detected, did $500 damage to the Marlborough Hotel, in Chelsea avenue, Long Branch, Monday. An investigation by the authorities is under way. The hotel is owned by V. Garafalo, of New York, and was leased last season by Jacob Brown, of Lakewood. It had been closed for a month. The blaze started in the kitchen and was spreading to the dining room when checked.

Recent Incendary in $15,000 Quarry Fire.

Fire, thought to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed a large building, part of the quarry equipment of former Mayor Newton B. Smealley, of North Plainfield, at Watchung Mountain Monday morning. The loss was about $15,000. The building was of concrete and wood. It was divided by wooden partitions into three sections and contained the boiler-room and several quarry bins. Two men discovered the building in flames when they went to work at 6 o'clock Monday morning. The North Plainfield Fire Department responded to an alarm, but could do nothing. The discoverers of the fire, known only as "Dick" and "Albert," told Mr. Smealley that they saw two strange men attempting to enter the building Saturday night and chased them away. The flames are supposed to have started in the boiler-room, although there was no fire under the boiler.

Doctor Preaches To Patients.

Patients, employees and guests at the State Hospital for the Insane had a decided surprise Sunday when religious services were conducted in the chapel by Dr. Britton D. Evans, head of the medical department. Dr. Evans preached on the fourteenth chapter of the gospel of St. John, and later decided that in the absence of any of the preachers who alternately hold services at the hospital, he would himself occupy the pulpit. Probably few of his friends and associates knew that before he studied medicine and received his medical degree in the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore, Dr. Evans was a licensed preacher on the eastern shore of Maryland and that he still holds his preacher's license.

Train Stoned and Passengers Hurt.

Several windows in the theatre train of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, due at Perth Amboy at 12:50 Sunday morning, were broken just as it was passing Hall avenue of that city. Two passengers were injured by stones and flying glass. The injured persons, according to the police records, are E. Hoffman, of 168 Madison avenue, Perth Amboy, and Maxwell Cornwall, of Newark. Both were struck in the head by stones. The engineer of the train says he saw four young men near the place, and it is his belief they threw the stones. They appeared to be intoxicated, said the engineer.

Child Beater Arrested as Thief.

Following the arrest of John Benz and his wife of New Brunswick, Saturday afternoon on the charge of cruelly beating the stepson of the former, John Benz, nine years old, and their release on bail the stepfather was arrested Sunday on another charge, that of larceny from the Michelin Tire Works at Milltown, where he is employed. Benz was committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail. Cloth, with which the boy's hands had been tied, gave the clue to the thefts. The boy, whose body was covered with marks made by a window shade pole, with which he had been beaten, has been placed in good hands by Chief of Police Michael O'Connell, who is caring for him. Photographs of the boy's injuries will be shown at the trial. The boy was found naked in a closet in the attic at his home on Albany street Saturday, having been left there all night and twice beaten cruelly. The boy's hands were tied behind his back with a piece of green muslin and this was traced to the factory, where the stepfather was employed. H. C. Young, of the Michelin Tire Works, and Detective-Sergeant George Dunn searched the Benz house and found a large quantity of this green material and other goods which had been taken from the plant. Some of the material had been made into sheets for the bed and some into skirts, which were worn by Mrs. Benz. When arraigned upon this charge Benz admitted having carried the goods away from the factory.

Picked up at Sea in Open Boat.

Lying exhausted and chilled in the bottom of a rowboat, which was dancing like a cockleshel on the heavy sea, an eighteen-year-old boy, who said he was Jacob Kanazogile, of New York, was picked up off the Highlands Monday afternoon. After telling of spending twenty-four hours in the boat, which he hired at Sheepshead Bay the afternoon before to go fishing, of being swept out to sea by the fast tide and falling overboard several times because of the pitching of the boat, the boy was turned over by his rescuers to the captain of the Scotland Lightship. The latter sent him to Sheepshead in a scout boat. Abram and Calvin Parker, lobster fishermen, of Highlands, were out in a power boat setting traps when they saw the rowboat. They thought at first they had a lobster stealer.

New Brunswick Claims 27,456 Population.

The population of the city of New Brunswick, according to the police census, the report of which was presented at Monday night's meeting of Common Council by Chief of Police Michael O'Connell, is 27,456. Census taken by the government officials in 1910 showed that there were 23,388 inhabitants. This census was not satisfactory to New Brunswick residents, who thought many people were missed. The police census was completed Monday. The police have found that there are sixteen Chinese in the city, 820 colored people and 26,620 white people. Of the inhabitants there are more women than men, the figures showing 13,461 males and 13,995 females. There are representatives of thirty-seven nations in the city. Four of the persons quizzed as to their age, nationality and so forth declared they belonged to no nation. There are 19,204 Americans and of the other nationalities there are more Hungarians than any other race. The natives of Hungary number 3,618.
